The U.S. dollar skyrocketed more than 4 per cent against the Japanese yen today in its biggest single gain in five years and opened dramatically higher across Europe today in response to President Carter's dollar-rescue plan.

Gold fell, opening $4.75 lower in London at $222.25 and $1.25 lower in Zurich at $219.25.

In New York at noon, the Canadian dollar was down 23-100 at 85.65 cents U.S.

On Wall Street Wednesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rocketed 35.34 points — the largest one-day increase in history.

The market settled back today as investors began to have second thoughts about the dollar-strengthening package.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 9.53 to 818.26 at noon.

The dollar rose in Zurich, London, Frankfurt, Paris and Milan, but dealers cautioned that initial euphoria would wear off quickly and continued recovery depended on a follow-through by American economic policymakers to halt the greenback's steepest decline in post-Second World War history.

The U.S. currency began the day 5.56 per cent higher on the Tokyo exchange, opening at 188 yen — a stunning increase of 9.9 yen over Wednesday's closing price.

It climbed to 188.50 yen in chaotic trading before ending the day at 186, representing a 4 per cent jump. It was the dollar's biggest gain in a single day since 1973. Trading was a record $1.3 billion.

The Journal de Geneve, representing the Geneva banking community, in an article headlined, "The moment of truth for the dollar," said Carter "finally took the steps that everyone had been waiting for."

"This turn-around marks an end, hopefully, to the worst decline of the U.S. currency in post-war history," said a spokesman for the Swiss Bank Corp.

$297M Reserves Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Strengthening of the Canadian dollar during October left $297 million U.S. more in international reserves than one month earlier, the finance department said today.

This is the first time the department has reported a monthly increase in U.S. dollar holdings since May.

During recent months reserves of U.S. dollars have been falling as Bank of Canada traders intervened in international currency markets to support the dollar.

During September official reserves were depleted by $1.4 billion.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien welcomed Wednesday's dramatic increase in interest rates in the United States, saying the move will help stabilize the Canadian economy.

But Chretien refused to say whether he plans to match the 9.5 per cent U.S. Federal Reserve Board rate with an increase in the Bank of Canada lending rate.

Zambia Raid By Rhodesia

SALISBURY (AP) — Rhodesian planes bombed a black guerrilla position in Zambia today, the military command announced, and unofficial reports from Zambia said casualties were heavy.

It was the first cross-border strike into Zambia by Rhodesian forces since airborne troops raided a dozen camps of the Zimbabwe African People's Union on Oct. 19 and killed a reported 1,500 guerrillas.

The South African Press Association reported from the Zambian capital, Lusaka, that the Rhodesian jets pounded a ZAPU guerrilla training camp just outside Lusaka. It said the camp housed 3,000 youths and clouds of smoke were pouring from it.

Unofficial reports said casualties were heavy, according to the SAPA dispatch.

ZAPU sources in Lusaka contended that the facility, called Victory, was a camp for black Rhodesian refugee children and housed more than 14,000 youths.

The Rhodesian military communique said that "as a result of information obtained from captured terrorists an air strike was carried out against a newly identified terrorist target in Zambia."

"The attack was carefully planned to ensure that a minimum threat was posed to Zambian life or property and was carried out with pinpoint accuracy," the communique said.

About an hour before news of the raid was flashed on Salisbury radio, three Hawker-Hunter jet fighters screamed over the Rhodesian capital.

In the raids two weeks ago, one of the camps attacked by the Rhodesians was described as military headquarters of ZAPU chief Joshua Nkomo. At the same time, Rhodesian troops swept into Mozambique to strike bases of Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union.

After the previous raids into Zambia, Britain airlifted a variety of anti-aricraft equipment to the Zambian government with the proviso that it not be given to the guerrillas.

Strikers Paper On Way

VANCOUVER (CP) — Many workers at the Province and Sun who went on strike Wednesday against Pacific Press Ltd., which produces both daily newspapers, were at work producing another newspaper six hours later.

The Express, written and edited by striking members of the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild, will appear Friday with an initial press run of 100,000 copies, the union said.

Managing editor Alex Young, a Province reporter for 11 years, said the thrice-weekly paper will sell for 25 cents at newsstands and at street corners.

The guild and the Vancouver Printing Pressmen's Union went on strike Wednesday after negotiators reached an impasse in discussions of a new collective agreement.

Four other unions in the joint council of newpaper unions were then locked out by the company.

Major issues in negotiations are a manning clause for printing pressmen, contracting out, manning for mailers, who bundle the papers, and proposed reductions in guild jurisdiction.

In a joint statement, Sun publisher Clark Davey and Province publisher Paddy Sherman said Wednesday that the issue of manning the presses involved restrictive labor practices, which they called featherbedding.

(Well-known Sun feature writer Moira Farrow echoed this sentiment when she commented on leaving the newsroom that she didn't see why the guild should be going out for the sake of a "bunch of feather-bedding pressmen.")

The company wants to alter the unit manning clause which establishes the number of presses running. It has promised all persons now employed will retain their jobs and proposes to pay an average of $5,000 in cash to each pressman in return for giving up current practices.

"I don't foresee any meetings right away," pressmen's negotiator Gary Dunster said. "Economic issues haven't even been discussed—that will be the fun part."

The average daily circulation of the Province is 132,000 and the Sun's is 252,000. Some other newspapers said they would fill the void created by the strike.

A spokesman for New Westminster Columbian said the paper would not expand its distribution area but would have a slight increase in today's press run.

Victoria Times and Victoria Colonist will increase production to take up the slack in Vancouver Island areas usually serviced by the Province and the Sun, but the papers will not increase their distribution in Greater Vancouver.

UNITED WAY EXTENDS DRIVE

The United Way campaign is being extended to counteract the effects of the recent postal strike.

As of today, $630,000 or 68 per cent of the campaign's $926,000 goal has been reached.

The campaign was to have closed Oct. 31 but officials have decided to keep it going for several more weeks in a bid to make up any shortfall caused by the postal strike.

TRAIN SWEPT INTO SKEENA

Mudslide, Floods Hit Terrace Area

Times News Services

TERRACE — Two communities east and north of here are being evacuated today in the wake of rampaging flood waters and a mudslide which also swept a train into the Skeena River and stranded motorists.

RCMP are evacuating people in the Lakelse area, 25 kilometres east of here, because of rising water levels and residents of Remo also are leaving their homes.

George Blakey, of the atmospheric environment service at the Terrace-Kitimat airport, said although the worst of the rain is over, water levels will continue to rise for at least 24 hours because of mountain run-off.

The rain was tapering off early today.

Record rainfall overnight Wednesday, combined with melting snow, caused a run-off which severed most highway and telephone links in the area. Telephone service was out in most areas, although electrical power was not affected.

About 20 persons were stranded overnight between two bridges knocked out by flooding on Highway 16.

Two persons suffered minor injuries when they drove off a washed-out bridge. One had a neck injury and the other was cut on the forehead.

Rescue workers are also attempting to reach a Canadian National Railways car carrying two crew members which was swept into the Skeena River.

Highways minister Alex Fraser, who has been stranded here by the flooding, said he would ask the provincial government for disaster assistance for the area.

Fraser estimated damage to the highway system at about $5 million and said his ministry has "a mammoth task ahead" in replacing bridges.

The minister said he has ordered Bailey Bridges to be brought into the area as soon as possible in order that temporary facilities can be established.

The native village of Kitimaat, adjacent to the community of Kitimat, is completely isolated because the bridge which serves as its only approach has been washed out.

Chief Heber Maitland said most of the 20 homes in the village have about four feet of water in the basements.

The heavy rains have resulted in indefinite closures to Highway 16 from Hazelton to Terrace; Highway 16 from Terrace to Prince Rupert; Highway 37 from Kitwanga to Meziiaden and Highway 35 from Terrace to Kitimat.

Teenage Pipebomb Factory Smashed

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Saanich police have broken up a pipebomb factory run by juveniles.

Officers have seized seven of the crude but highly dangerous bombs and are hunting for others.

Four boys aged 12 to 16 are being questioned about the bombs but no charges have been laid as yet.

The bombs were made out of three to four-inch lengths of half-inch copper tubing filled with about an ounce of gunpowder and crimped at one end with a crude fuse or piece of string attached.

One Saanich policeman said it's a miracle no one has been maimed or killed.

"It's surprising considering the methods they used they all still have two hands," he said.

"They took very few precautions and obviously they were not aware of the danger to themselves and public. To them it was just a prank."

Police appealed to anyone finding one of the bombs to turn them in.

"These things are extremely dangerous," the spokesman said. "A person can lose a hand, arm — even his life — if he uses them in the wrong way."

A Saanich police spokesman said the bombs were put together in a shed at the rear of an unidentified Saanich property.

The owners of the shed were unaware of the operation which the juveniles apparently set up last Saturday to make Halloween bombs.

Still not known is where the boys got the supplies but a police spokesman said the gunpowder — as much as 20 pounds — may have been stolen from a home.

Also unknown is how many bombs were made. On group of boys told officers they had made 11 bombs in one hour.

Police with search warrants recovered seven bombs from two homes on Wednesday and several other residences have yet to be searched.

At least seven bombs exploded on Halloween including three in mail boxes and one in the wire grate on the door of a store at Durrance and West Saanich Road.

A fifth bomb demolished a mail box in Central Saanich.

Director Given Blame

A report by Vancouver consultant Gordon Newhouse says the city of Victoria's personnel department functioned inefficiently under former personnel director Terry FitzPatrick.

FitzPatrick, a 31-year veteran with the city, was fired recently.

Council did not have Newhouse's report at the time of the dismissal but it is understood the consultant had briefed Mayor Mike Young about the matter.

In his written report to council, received by aldermen Wednesday, Newhouse said the personnel department has been functioning at about only 35 per cent of the required level for the last three years.

He said the rating would appear to be a direct reflection of the philosophy, approach and level of expertise of the personnel director in terms of both general and personnel administration.

Shortly before FitzPatrick was fired Newhouse also spoke to the mayor about a long-standing practice in the personnel department of allowing access to confidential files by the company that publishes B.C. city directories.

FitzPatrick allowed staff from B.C. Directories to get names, addresses and occupations of city hall employees out of the personnel files.

Newhouse became aware of the policy when he was studying the personnel department and was highly critical of the practice.

Newhouse recommended the clerical staff in the department be reduced and a new personnel director and a personnel officer be hired.

He also said the newly structured personnel department should play a greater role in labor-management relations and establish a working relationship with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association.

Youth Dies In Flaming Sports Car

Kevin Lee Skailes, of 1617 Amphion, was a passenger in the car driven by Wayne Anthony Roos, 18, of 88 Wellington.

Roos escaped with only minor burns to his face and hands.

A Victoria police spokesman said Skailes was trapped inside the burning car which ended up wedged against a fence and utility pole guy wire which preventing him from opening the door.

The heat was so intense there was no chance of anyone rescuing the youth.

The accident occurred at 3:18 p.m.

Police said the 1967 model car was travelling north on Rockland when Roos lost control on a downhill bend.

Police mechanics were examining the charred wreckage today to determine why the car burst into flames.

An inquest is expected to be held but no date has been set.

Broke VSO Could Fold This Week

Before the week is out the 37-year-old Victoria Symphony Orchestra could be out of business.

It could be as sudden and complete as that.

The Victoria Symphony Society board of directors meets tonight to discuss its $160,000 deficit, approximately $14,000 in unpaid taxes for which Revenue Canada is pressing, and an orchestra payroll of about $35,000 for the past two weeks due this week.

According to sources close to the situation, the society is flat broke with all available funds gone, including subscriptions for the balance of this season's concerts, and unable to raise money from any source.

At tonight's meeting, a confidential report on the society's situation prepared by Vancouver Symphony manager Michael Allerton will be presented at an in-camera session.

It has also been reported, though not confirmed, that symphony manager Jean Hunter, who has held the office for less than a year, will tender her resignation.

The board must also face the possibility that more than $100,000 in expected grants from the Canada Council and the B.C. Cultural Fund could be cancelled because of the VSO's precarious financial situation.

Symphony president Dorothy Frost has denied a report given out by a symphony employee last week that the financial firm of Richardson and Sons, with which she is employed, had offered temporary financing.

A securities analyst with the firm, she said, "There was no truth in it at all . . . I don't know how it came about. I don't carry that kind of influence with the firm."

Among rescue operations that have been scouted are proposals to suspend the board and install a business administrator, but this has met with negative response.

Frost, who was elected president at the last meeting of the board refused to comment on the situation until after tonight's meeting, but says the mood of the meeting will not be unrelieved doom and gloom.

"There are a number of proposals to be considered and some really exciting ideas to be discussed," she says, refuting the pessimism expressed by a number of people close to the operation.

As an ironic footnote, Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night agreed to consider sponsoring a concert.

The motion by secretary Larry Ryan passed but not before Telecommunications Workers Union delegate Dick Belfit said council shouldn't be "fiddling around with the cultural advancement of the community" at a time when there were economic wars to be fought.

Trudeau Blames Levesque For Constitutional Impasse

OTTAWA (CP) — Wary provincial premiers agreed Wednesday to join Prime Minister Trudeau in another search for a new Canadian constitution.

But all 11 government leaders acknowledged at the end of three days of constitutional reform talks that the day when Canada has its own homegrown underlying law may be a long way off.

"You're always happy when a miracle happens," Trudeau said as he reflected on yet another unsuccessful attempt to get provincial leaders to agree on a method of claiming the country's constitution from Britian with a formula for changing it at home.

"But I didn't expect it to happen."

At the same time, he and a number of premiers said they were pleased they had made some progress in a constitutional rewriting process that started in 1927 and has gone on intermittently since.

B.C. Premier Bill Bennett, who came to the meeting equipped with constitutional-change proposals ranging from reorganization of the Senate to making B.C. a separate region, said Canadians would decide what the conference accomplished.

Trudeau told reporters that his wish to disband the Senate and create a "house of the federation" will not be included in a list of priorities for constitution reform to be studied by federal and provincial officials in the next three months.

But Bennett reportedly plans to continue a behind-the-scenes campaign to convnce other premiers to revise the upper house.

During the conference, many premiers stoutly defended the Senate, saying it was a myth the upper house was useless and filled only with worn-out political hacks.

The prime minister placed most of blame for his failure to patriate the constitution on Quebec Premier Rene Levesque, who said he would be pleased to take part in future power-sharing talks between Ottawa and the provinces but that he wanted nothing to do with suggestions to make the British North America Act a Canadian law.

Trudeau, outwardly exasperated, said he found difficulty understanding why the Quebec premier would block efforts to end Canada's colonial status with Britain when he advocated an end to Quebec's so-called colonial status with Canada.

Despite their differences, all 11 government leaders agreed in a final enigmatic, two-page communique — it was reduced from a 12-page draft—that constitutional change was important and urgent.

And they agreed to meet again Feb. 5-6 to discuss the results of a late November meeting of ministers on new power-sharing arrangements.

Although he made only passing mention of it in the communique, Trudeau earlier offered to give up what he described as "a little bit" of federal power to provinces in several key areas.

In the end, the 11 leaders agreed specifically to limit overlapping services in such things as agriculture,

SOVIET COSMONAUTS LAND SAFELY

MOSCOW (AP) — The longest space flight in history ended today when Soviet cosmonauts Vladimir Kovalenok and Alexander Ivanchenkov parachuted back to earth after spending more than 139 days in space.

The Tass news agency said Kovalenok, the 36-year-old commander, and Ivanchenkov, the flight engineeer who celebrated his 38th birthday during the flight, landed near Dzhezkazgan in Soviet Central Asia 200 kilometres east of the Baikonur space centre.

Both were reported in good condition after a medical checkup.

The space endurance record is 139 days, 14 hours and 48 minutes.

The two men were launched June 16 aboard the Soyuz 29 spacecraft which linked up the next day with the Soyuz 6 space station where they lived during their long trip.

They returned aboard the Soyuz 31 spaceship, left docked at their space station by one of two other pairs of cosmonauts who visited briefly and swapped capsules with them.

King said he will seek the NDP nomination in Shuswap-Revelstoke in the next election. His own riding of Revelstoke-Slocan was eliminated by recent redistribution.

King has represented Revelstoke-Slocan since 1968.

If nominated in Shuswap-Revelstoke, King would face Social Credit MLA Len Bawtree, now in his first term as member for the riding

NOW YOU'LL NEVER HAVE TO MISS THE GREAT THINGS ON TELEVISION AGAIN.

RCA ANNOUNCES SELECTAVISION 400.

The Video Cassette Recorder that turns on and off and changes channels for a whole week...all by itself.

Think of the last time there was something too good to miss on television. And you missed it.

Think of the four shows you want to put on video tape this week. The game on Monday, the special on Wednesday, perhaps the Friday movie, or something educational for the kids.

SelectaVision 400 hooks up to any T.V. to record any program and play it back whenever you want it. It will record what you're watching, record one channel while you watch another. Even record while you're asleep or away.

Now, simply by touching a few buttons, you program your selections into the timer of the incredible new SelectaVision 400. The rest is automatic: The 400 will turn itself on at kick-off time, silently record the game, then turn itself off. When it's time for your second selection, the 400 turns itself to the proper channel and starts recording again—automatically. The entire schedule is preset by you up to a whole week in advance—as many as four different shows or even the same program for seven straight days.

New electronic tuning

A new programmable timer isn't all that's new about the 400. Now, for example, you select channels by pushing a button instead of twisting a dial. It's electronic. And so is the 400's new tape indexing system. The 400 will automatically cue up the program you record at precisely the right point.

New color cameras

Now you've got more options than ever in SelectaVision optional equipment. To start with, there are two new black-and-white cameras, one with a Canon zoom lens.

But the really exciting news is color. Now SelectaVision offers two optional color cameras for your home productions, one with a Canon zoom lens (plus an electronic viewfinder that lets you see exactly what you're recording). All cameras are lightweight, have built-in microphones, and a price that's easy to handle. With the introduction of these new cameras, RCA has made in-home video taping very affordable.

Up to four hours on a single cassette

Remember, SelectaVision 400 lets you record up to four hours on one cassette. So, with SelectaVision 400, there shouldn't be any cassette-changing interruptions in your favourite shows. Nor any missed endings.

And the 400 has more to offer

One look at the 400's intelligent new design, and you know you're dealing with a whole new generation of video recorders. But, we haven't left out the things that have made SelectaVision so popular. Like a remote pause control—you can start and stop SelectaVision from up to 20 feet away. Direct-drive motor for precise operation. And the special circuit that automatically compensates for changing signal strength.

It's all there in the new 400. Go see it at your RCA SelectaVision dealer. Now you can have the best of television—for a whole week at a time. On the new SelectaVision 400. The 4-hour video cassette recorder with the 7-day memory.

U.K. Test-Tube Baby No.2 Expected in February

OLDHAM, England (Reuter) — Dr. Robert Edwards, who with gynecologist Patrick Steptoe developed a method of fertilizing a human ovum outside the womb, said today that a second birth by the method is due next February.

"I am absolutely delighted," he said after confirming that a second patient is pregnant. "It is now true that this shows there is hope for literally thousands of women who for one reason or another cannot at the moment have children."

Dr. Edwards said Grace Montgomery, 32, has undergone at Oldham General Hospital in central England the same treatment that led to the world's first test-tube baby last July.

At that time, Lesley Brown gave birth to a baby girl, Louise, after being treated by the Edwards-Steptoe method.

Dr. Edwards and Steptoe have spent 15 years in developing a method of removing a woman's ovum, fertilizing it with her husband's sperm outside the womb and implanting it in the womb.

'A Taste Of His Own Medicine For Idi'

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — Tanzanian troops are prepared to strike back at Ugandan invaders to give President Idi Amin "a taste of his own medicine," informed sources said today.

Ugandan-Tanzanian fighting swirled around the northern town of Kyaka after Amin announced Wednesday that his troops had annexed 1,850 square kilometres of Tanzanian swamp and scrubland.

The Tanzanian army is requisitioning trucks and buses here and in other cities to move men and equipment to the war zone for a counter-attack, the sources said.

Tanzania's government newspaper, The Daily News, said: "Tanzania has no desire for an inch of Ugandan territory. But we are not going to give up an inch of our territory either to the buffoon (Amin) to satisfy his ego."

Government sources said an undisclosed number of Tanzanian troops had clashed with up to 3,000 Ugandan soldiers backed by tanks and heavy artillery at Kyaka.

Kyaka is on the Kagera River which flows east into Lake Victoria 32 kilometres south of the Ugandan border. Radio Uganda said the river forms the new boundary between the east African countries.

Exxon Payback Of $316M Order

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Exxon Corp. has overcharged natural gas liquids customers by more than $316 million since August 1973, according to a suit filed against the company by the federal government Wednesday.

The Department of Energy's suit, filed in U.S. District Court here, asked that Exxon be ordered to repay the alleged $316 million overcharge plus interest to the federal government, which would accept claims for restitution from Exxon customers.

In a statement released late Wedneday, Exxon said its pricing actions concerning natural gas liquids "were in complete compliance with the applicable regulations." The company said it would contest the government's suit.

DOE said the suit arose out of a "comprehensive audit conductd by DOE's Office of Special Counsel," and that it represents the largest single enforcement action ever filed in connection with the government's investigation of oil industry pricing regulations.

That investigation has uncovered an alleged $1.7 billion in overcharges by several oil companies in various areas of pricing.

Some $600 million of that total has been charged against Exxon, DOE sources said, in the form of court actions and administrative levies and notices of probable violation.

In Wednesday's suit, the government alleges that Exxon improperly overpriced the cost of natural gas liquids, which are used for such products as propane, butane and as feeder stock in the gasoline refining process.

The federal regulation in question orderd oil companies to freeze the price of natural gas liquid products at the May 1973 level, and allowed increases on that price only when the companies could show increases in costs of production.

The government alleges that when Exxon was buying natural gas liquids from its own affiliated companies it inflated the value of those liquids.

According to the DOE filing, Exxon set the price of the liquid it was buying from its own companies at the amount it claimed it cost to buy those liquids on the open market.

But, the government alleges, those prices were set too high. DOE points out that Exxon was also buying some natural gas liquids from non-company sources, and paying less than it claimed it would have had to pay for its own natural gas.

Israeli Peace Price $4.4B?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American role in the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks took on new importance today with the Israelis linking the outcome of the conference to a request for U.S. financial help.

Israeli officials said Wednesday the subject of the financial relationship would be "high on the agenda" in talks today in New York between Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

President Carter has promised to consider such a request for aid and asked the Israelis to prepare an estimate. Israeli sources said the cost could be as high as $4.5 billion over a three-year period.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said Wednesday the talks were progressing.

TWO SLAIN IN RAID

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Armed men attacked the home of Fuad Butros, foreign and defence minister, today and first reports said two persons were killed and four wounded.

Official sources said the attackers were loyal to a rebel right-wing officer killed Wednesday in a gun fight with a regular army detachment attempting to arrest him.

WALDHEIM PLANNING VISIT TO CAMBODIA

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim has accepted a formal invitation to visit Cambodia to make a first-hand assessment of the human rights situation there, his spokesman said today. The trip follows presentation to the United Nations by Canada's esternal affairs minister, Donald Jamieson, of detailed evidence of human rights violations in Cambodia.

Confirming that Waldheim will make the trip, the spokesman said a date will be arranged through normal diplomatic channels.

Waldheim first was invited informally by Cambodian Foreign Minister Ieng Sary Oct. 12, and Ambassador In Nath delivered a formal letter to confirm the invitation Tuesday night.

Cambodia has been accused by several countries of widespread violations of the human rights of its citizens.

Historic Event in Advertising

Late in August there occurred an historic event, according to B.C. human rights director Kathleen Ruff — a major department store distributed a back-to-school advertising flyer featuring black children and oriental children as well as whites.

The Bay's Meet the Class ad supplement (it appeared in the Times and other B.C. newspapers) broke ground in a field where an unofficial color bar has been in place for years.

Minority groups appear from time to time in print advertising and television commercials but almost always as exotics — whisky ads set in far-off lands, pitches for winter holidays, and so on. Rarely is someone from a "visible minority group," as the studies put it, depicted in ordinary circumstances modelling a winter coat or back to school clothing.

A 1977 Ontario study of television commercials, newspaper and magazine ads and department store cotalogues found few minority groups represented as ordinary Canadian citizens. They counted 2,064 people in TV commercials during the test period, and just 48 were minorities (not a single native Indian or Inuit among them). A large part of these were ads for CARE and Foster Parents.

Of some 1,232 people identified in print ads, more than 10 per cent were minorities — but 40 were Fijians dancing for Canadian Club and 50 were blacks in tourist promotions for the Caribbean. Hardly representative Canadian citizens in Canadian settings.

It may not be a matter that has much troubled the majority of Canadians, but it is an important issue to minority groups. Besides it being just bad business practice to ignore large groups of potential customers, it is a form of discrimination that rankles just as much as a racial epithet or being refused an apartment.

"You can also discriminate against someone by ignoring them entirely. You're denying their equality, you're denying their humanity, you're denying their worth," says Ruff. A back to school flyer — especially one that comes out in B.C. — that is filled with pictures of caucasian kids only tells East Indian and Chinese children: "You're not as interesting or worthwhile as white kids. It is a different form of discrimination, but it is just as harmful."

Would this not mean establishing strict quotas? Ruff turns the question around: what we have now is a 100 per cent white quota in some advertising. "The people who shop in the stores aren't 100 per cent white. Neither are they in the schools. We should have a mix — that's reality.".

A Discriminatory Law

Employment Minister Bud Cullen is to be commended for promising a quick review of unemployment insurance laws affecting maternity benefits. It is unfortunate, however, that it took a three-year court battle by a Vancouver secretary to open government eyes to what must be regarded as discrimination in the way women are treated by unemployment legislation.

In the case of Stella Bliss, the Supreme Court ruled unanimously Monday that the maternity benefits provisions do not discriminate, at least not in the strictly legal sense. But when a woman is twice fired from a job simply because she is pregnant and is subsequently denied both maternity and regular benefits under the unemployment laws, something is clearly amiss.

After being fired once by Brown Brothers Ford for being pregnant, Mrs. Bliss was reinstated after complaining to the B.C. Human Rights Commission. Days before the birth of her son, she was dismissed a second time, but did not seek reinstatement and applied instead for unemployment insurance.

This is where the questionable legislation comes in. Because she had not worked a full 10 weeks prior to conception, she was not eligible for maternity benefits as provided for in the Unemployment Insurance Act. And because the law prohibits regular benefits to women during the first six weeks of motherhood, she could not obtain regular assistance either.

It is not suggested that any changes will be made in the 10-week rule, although the figure appears arbitrary and it is questionable whether the period prior to conception should be relevant in the first place. But on the question of disallowing benefits after birth, clearly the lawmakers have overstepped their bounds.

Mrs. Bliss was certified medically fit for work six days after delivery, yet the law said she was not fit and therefore not eligible for benefits. Had she recovered from a broken leg or dengue fever, the question would never have arisen. But because she had given birth, she was penalized.

The decision of the Supreme Court was undoubtedly legally correct. Morally, however, the law is and has been wrong. Three years is a long time to fight a just fight and lose. But if Cullen honors his commitment and quickly brings legislative changes to the cabinet, the struggle will not have been in vain.

Arguing for Rights Charter

OTTAWA — Canadians have traditionally been content to leave questions of freedom and individual rights to the political process rather than to seek the sort of constitutional guarantees the Americans have always been determined upon.

This cannot have come about because Parliament and the provincial legislatures have been good guarantors of freedom and individual rights, for they have not been anything of the sort. They and the governments dominating them have been susceptible to waves of emotion, false apprehensions of urgency or subversion, political expediency and popular prejudice.

The list is long and well-enough known: the loss of French school rights in Manitoba, the wartime transportation of Japanese-Canadians in the 1940s, restrictive Ontario school legislation earlier in this century, the great reluctance of the King and St. Laurent govenments to surrender the emergency powers of the Second World War which did not finally expire until 1954, the nature of the powers taken under the War Measures Act in 1970, some aspects of current Quebec law on education.

Muted Protests

On the two most dramatic occasions — Japanese transportation and the 1970 powers — popular emotion has kept the level of protest so muted that, on the most recent occasions, Americans were astonished by Canadian acquiescence in the use of extreme powers.

The part freedom played in the American dream was historically a greater magnet to other peoples than Canadian conservatism, yet it cannot be said that constitutional guarantees of individual rights did much to aid the unpopular segments of society in the United States. Slavery was not prevented, nor, for a century after its abolition, were the constitutional guarantees effective for blacks. Early American labor organizers did not find much protection in the constitution of the United States.

Canadi[illegible] concern [illegible] the codification of individual rights, in any effective way, began with John Diefenbaker when he was prime minister and led to passage of the Bill of Rights, a noble statement of a theme but subject to the vagaries of Parliament. In practice, it has proven ineffective in preventing such a fundamental violation of individual rights as arbitrary detention without trial.

The case for codification has been carried forward by Trudeau through his determination to secure entrenchment in the constitution of a Charter of Rights, yet it was this prime minister who only a few months ago argued the need to preserve the potential use of such draconian powers as he once actually called into use. His deepest concerns, evidently, are not political rights but linguistic and educational ones, seen as a means of reducing tensions between the two main Canadian communities, English and French.

In 1971 the country's first ministers would have accepted constitutional entrenchment of rights if Premier Robert Bourassa's demands for much greater provincial control of social policy had been accommodated at the Victoria conference. This general willingness probably flowed from the high level of concern over Quebec's future course that prevailed then. Today, the willingness is not general: there are strong opponents now. This reversion to a more classical Canadian position apparently reflects a conviction that it is not by this sort of action that Premier Rene Levesque's form of separatism will be turned back.

Saskatchewan was prepared to entrench linguistic and educational rights but [illegible]ce's [illegible]general, Roy Romanow, put the classical case against constitutional protection of other rights:

"We say that to entrench rights in the constitution is to put them for all practical purposes beyond the reach of legislators and legislatures."

That is, of course, the precise purpose of constitutional guarantees, to ensure that during times of stress and deep emotion the majority does not disregard the rights and liberties of an unpopular minority.

Two provincial spokesmen in particular put the opposite view strongly. Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said: "I have come to the unqualified conclusions that individual rights must be included in the constitution." Arguing for entrenchment, Prince Edward Island's new premier, Bennett Campbell, said of a charter that "it would become a statement of ideals that could influence the development and the thinking of young Canadians and new Canadians."

It is clear that no charter of rights will receive nation-wide constitutional entrenchment in Canada at the present time. The issue does not grip the imaginations of most Canadians and haa a low place among their priorities.

Future Provinces

The division of powers between the federal and provincial governments certainly does arouse the interest of the provinces and in a least some cases, it evidently engages their people as well. Many of them have positions which must be considered with sympathy in the interest of the mation's future but one weakness is too [illegible] among the provincial leaders.

There are exceptions, but these leaders tend to tell us what sort of provinces they believe there should be in future. Except by implication, if that, they rarely say what sort of country they believe there should be.

Premier Levesque is a notable exception: he is the clearest of them all about what sort of country should result from changes in this federation. Premier Davis is less clear but exhibits a national as well as a provincial outlook. Premier Blakeney has publicly expressed worry that provincial demands could leave the national government too weak.

Wonderful City

Earlier this year, my wife and I moved to Victoria; we are much impressed and greatly pleased with our new city. We write to offer our congratulations, praise and thanks to the city of Victoria and its people for establishing and maintaining a truly wonderful community.

Among all the things which impress us, there are four which are outstanding.

☐ The outstanding natural beauty of this place, supplemented by the apparent desire of almost all its inhabitants to maintain and embellish it. People take immense pride in their homes, lawns and gardens.

☐ The excellent work done by the city. Trees are trimmed, sidewalks repaired or rebuilt, public parks and gardens are carefully tended, bus shelters are constructed, roads are improved, curbs at intersections are sloped to assist the handicapped and many other projects are contemplated which will combine to make this city an even better place in which to live.

☐ The friendliness and helpfulness of the people of Victoria is certainly noteworthy. Although it may often be a casual friendliness, it is nonetheless a real pleasure to have people greet you cheerily on the street.

☐ Finally, there is the courtesy and consideration shown to senior citizens. These people in their sunset years form a large segment of the population. Most are on fixed incomes and have to battle both inflation and infirmity. They are neither organized nor unionized. Were it not for the material benefits and tangible support given to seniors by a considerate and understanding government, many of these people would indeed be in dire straits.

There are many more good things we could say, but will only add the sincere hope that all the fine people, beautiful things and progressive projects which are so apparent here will continue to typify this wonderful garden city. — Ruth and Dryden Heavysege, 159 Cook Street.

Need to Beat Fear

Of all human emotions fear is the most devastating and, in extreme forms, can lead to despair or suicide. Some fears are irrational and unfounded, others stem from the physical or social conditions that surround us.

The country's unstable and shaky economy is, in my opinion, the main cause of Canadians being afraid. The large number of unemployed are scared because they don't know if the depleted federal coffers will be able to provide them with adequate benefits. People relying on small pensions worry about the increasing cost of living. Others hold on to their modest savings, wondering how long these will last, as the purchasing power of the dollar declines more and more.

Nothing in the immediate future appears to inspire us with new hopes or confidence. Yet we live in a country very rich in natural resources. We do not suffer from overcrowding, from lack of shelter, from epidemics and from danger of internal strife. We are law-abiding citizens in spite of the fact that the crime rates are too high for a country of little more than 24 million souls.

We seem to have lost confidence in our government and its ability to deal effectively with overspending, international debts, new and bold approaches to labor problems, steady markets for our goods, and so on. There is too much talk of "crisis" and we seem to plunge from [illegible] crisis into another

Some of us look forward to a 1979 federal general election but, regardless of the outcome, will this restore our shaken confidence and bring about new hopes? Or will our doubts, our mistrusts, our uneasiness become even deeper? It is impossible and unwise even to attempt to find an answer to this question. But by and large we are good people, we live in a great country and altogether we will find a way out of our present mood of despondency.

We need a confident attitude towards those who shall lead us along yet unexplored paths even if some of these paths are steep and thorny. — E. J. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

Palestinian children undergoing guerilla training in desert.

Arabs Pushed Out

In reply to Mr. E. Kaellis' letter answering mine on Palestine and the Middle East, I should like to make the following observations:

First of all, it is quite true that there have been Jews living in Palestine since the days of Joshua, but they have not been a nation there since the year 70 A.D. — quite a long time! However, there have also been Arabs living there, even before the days of Muhammad.

Secondly, the Arab refugees did not leave their homes and properties voluntarily — they were expelled forcibly by the Zionist invaders and in most cases fled in terror as a result of the atrocious massacre at Deir Yassin in April, 1948, where some 254 Arabs, nearly all women, children and old men, were brutally murdered by the Irgun (leader, Menachem Begin) and the Stern gang.

Thirdly, contrary to Mr. Kaellis' assertion, Jews living in Arab countries are very well treated. (The American Council for Judiasm chairman, Dr. Elmer Berger, will testify to this.) Prior to the advent of political Zionism, Arabs and Jews lived as brothers, and when the Jews were persecuted in Europe during the Middle Ages, especially by the medieval church, it was the Arab countries, Palestine included, which gave them refuge.

On the other hand, it has been the Arabs in the Zionist state and in the Zionist-held areas of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip who have been suffering the indignities which Mr. Kaellis mentions in his letter. Not only the Arabs, but the Oriental Jews as well are treated as second-class citizens in the Holy Land, despite the fact that they are Jews!

Fourthly, the civil war in Lebanon is not a religious one, but a political struggle between the right and the left. It is true that most on the left are Moslems but there are a good many Christians on the left as well, and also among the Palestinian and Syrian armies. Indeed, one-third of the Palestinian Arabs are Christian, as are also a fair percentage of the peoples of Egypt, Syria, Jordan and Iraq. As far as the right-wing Phalangists are concerned, they are as much "Christian" as the fanatical Orangemen of Northern Ireland or the notoriously Ku Klux Klan in the United States! Religiously, they are simply non-Moslems, and politically they are fascists.

Finally, the Palestinian refugees do not wish to be absorbed by the other Arab states. They are Palestinian as well as Arab — a distinct [illegible] entity. Neither do they wish to throw the Jews into the sea. They are willing to live in peace with them as fellow-Palestinians. The Zionists, on the other hand, want an exclusively Jewish state, and this is where the trouble lies. Racial and religious exclusiveness has no place in the world of today, and this is something the Zionists have to mark, learn and inwardly digest if they want to see a just peace in the Middle East. — Richard D. Corrance, 710 Cormorant Street.

'Nocreds' Cure

Premier Bill Bennett governs by negative omission, rather than by positive action. He does as little as he can, while telling the voters that this is necessary and praiseworthy in order to save as much money as possible, the buildup of a fat provincial purse being the most important aim of any good government.

The populace is supposed to swallow this pleasantly flavored medicine and be cured of all its various sicknesses. Trouble is, when the medicine becomes a personal cure, it isn't as soothing anymore and suddenly starts to stick in your throat and choke. Saving money simply for the sake of accumulating it, when it is desperately needed for an endless list of humanitarian projects, seems to lack a sense of conscience. If he is, he is in danger of being labelled as merciless, if not mercenary. Money is not worth it, Mr. Bennett, when you get it at the expense of the well-being of society.

If the "Nocreds" (no credibility) have trimmed the fat from government, as they recently claimed, then by fat they must mean any and all reasonable and humane gestures, operations and expenditures, that were taken for granted by the population. The sick, the needy, the downtrodden, the suffering, are all now relegated to the brand new socio-economic level, just invented for them by the Nocreds — waste fat.

Bennett's mandate to Ottawa in the spring could be "moral bankruptcy." I am sure the Nocreds would go for that. After all, the last thing Bennett and his horde would tolerate in this province is any sort of program that doesn't produce a profit. And all those in the newly established category of "waste fat," are surely bankrupting the government by grovelling for handouts and the economy, by not contributing huge pay cheques. — Joan Bittorf, Davie Street.

Back to the Grid!

Frank J. Baillie (letter, Abominable Format, Oct. 27) is to be congratulated for sharing his feeling that "the way you print the television programs is abominable." I can't help but wonder if the wee print now used in Prevue didn't force this gentleman of 90 years of age to reach for a magnifying glass. I know of folk in their 70s who have had to make this step in their attempts to read the television information. Thus far I am able to read the print but I don't enjoy this grand new format.

The old format was a setup I often boasted about to readers of the Vancouver papers, as I was able to easily check the schedules and establish my viewing schedule for the coming week.

So let's stop the justific[illegible] the new Prevue; forget about the "slight technical problem" on the innovation and solve the problems of the old version. Yes, back to the grid! And admiration for Mr. Baillie for leading us to the battle. — M. Mathieson, Duncan.

These Are Not Men Of Peace

By RICHARD COHEN

The Washington Post

By way of getting to the Nobel Peace prize announced for Menachem Begin and Anwar Sadat we begin with a story about a man named Deak Lyman, an aviation writer for The New York Times who received a call from Charles Lindbergh inviting him to New Jersey for an exclusive interview. The two men were friends, which is why Lindbergh told Lyman and Lyman told the world that the Lindbergh family was going into European seclusion. For this, Deak Lyman won the Pulitzer Prize.

It was not quite that simple, of course. There was, as Meyer Berger later wrote, general recognition "that the story had come (Lyman's) way because of the character he had established as a trustworthy newspaperman," but the gist of it is that someone got handed a story and walked off with journalism's highest honor as a result. That's not the way you're supposed to win awards.

This is pretty much the same feeling that hit when it was announced that Sadat and Begin had been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. There is something that rings hollow here, something that just doesn't add up. There is a history to these awards, going all the way back to when Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite, bequeathed $9 million to endow the awards and the first was awarded in 1901. This is not the way it is supposed to happen.

In the first place, you're supposed to have peace. It's not always essential, given the award in 1973 to Henry Kissinger and Le Duuc Tho of North Vietnam. Tho declined the honor, Kissinger did not, but you have to ask yourself just what peace the Nobel Committee had in mind since it wasn't until April 1975 that peace came to Indochina. It came, not to put too fine a point on it, when we lost and it came a lot later than it could have — thanks, in part, to the efforts of our very own Nobel laureate, Kissinger.

This is not the sort of thing for which you are supposed to get the Nobel Peace prize. The prize is supposed to be awarded to the likes of Ralph Bunche (1950), who worked tirelessly for a peace in the Middle East, or Theodore Roosevelt (1906), who got the Russians and the Japanese to shake hands at Portsmouth. It is for giants of the earth like Martin Luther King (1964), who conducted himself daily with courage, showing what guts it sometimes takes not to fight.

Sadat and Begin . . . they tried war first and it didn't work

The prize is for men like Albert Schweitzer (1952), the United Nation's agency that keeps children alive, and for Andre Sakharov (1976), the Soviet dissident who stays and stays and stays — a living monument to courage and the spirit of mankind. It is for brave ladies like Mairea Corrigan and Betty Williams (1976), the women from Northern Ireland who have tried to end the killing in Northern Ireland and for the like of Dag Hammarskjold (1961), the secretary general of the United Nations whose occupation, if he was asked that on a form, would be seeker of peace. He died in its pursuit.

King, Schweitzer . . . their Nobels were justified

Now, however, there is something new and it is not only that we have a prize without the peace. It is almost as if the Nobel committee thought that the Camp David story was so big it deserved something. It reminds you of the Academy Awards, where there is always something for a really big picture. You cannot allow expense to go unrewarded.

But there is something else at work here and it has to do with how the fundamental rules of understanding or whatever you want to call them have been broken. It is like the New York Times man and his Pulitzer — it is not supposed to happen this way. This is a peace prize and both Sadat and Begin have been men of violence — Begin a terrorist, anathema, even, to many Israelis. As for Sadat, he was an army officer and as a national leader it was he who made war upon Israel in 1973, attacking, if you will remember, on Yom Kippur. It is almost as if he turned to peace when war did not work. That's not the way you're supposed to win the prize.

The fact is that neither man is a zealot in the cause of peace. At the moment, for instance, Begin is hardly twisting himself into a pretzel, trying to accommodate himself to Egyptian or even American demands. But what really jars is that these were always the men who had the capacity to make peace, just as they had the capacity to make war — and they have gone from one to the other not from any burning sense of moral commitment or purpose, but because it now suits their purposes. You don't get the Nobel Prize for that sort of thing.

A Disease of Many Causes

THE ECONOMIST

At least 20 per cent of new cancer cases in the United States will come fron exposure to carcinogens in the work place, according to a recent major study sponsored by the department of health, education and welfare. The estimate contradicts previous predictions, mainly from industry, which ranged from 1 to 5 per cent. Asbestos is by far the most serious culprit. Almost 11 million American workers have been exposed to it since the beginning of the second world war; at the moment about 5 million workers in different industries inhale it every day. The study predicts that asbestos will lead to 18 per cent of all cancer deaths in the next 30 years. The other "high risk" carcinogens inhaled at work include arsenic, benzene, chromium and petroleum products.

The report explains the pitfalls in past thinking about the incidence of cancer related to work. Much of it was based on incomplete or out of date information. Few industries have been investigated properly. The international agency for research on cancer has tested 368 chemicals and industrial processes on animals and has found 221 to be carcinogenic. But it has not been able to test their effect on humans. So far only 26 chemicals and industrial processes have been clearly identified as leading to an increased cancer risk in man. But the risks of occupational illness are constantly increasing. Production of synthetic organic chemicals, many of them new and untested substances, has increased from 1 billion pounds in 1940 to just over 300 billion pounds last year.

Estimates have been flawed by attributing each case of cancer to a single cause. It is now seen as a disease of many phases and causes. Earlier thinking about cancer also failed to take into account the 10-50 year latent periods which characterize most occupational cancers. Most of the serious diseases associated with asbestos, for example, take from 15-35 years to develop. To assess the full risks of exposure to occupational carcinogens it is literally necessary to follow workers to the grave.

Vast sums of money have been channelled into cancer research, especially since former President Nixon declared his war on cancer in 1971. The federal government alone has been contributing just under 1 billion a year. So far there has been little to show for it. Scientists are no nearer finding a "cure" for cancer than they were seven years ago. Congress, which controls the purse strings, and expects results, has begun to ask why.

Several senators think that research budgets have been wrongly focused on treatment, not prevention. Meanwhile the country is abuzz with stories about cancer-causing foodstuffs: saccharin, nitrite-cured meats and even fried hamburgers are under suspicion. Many people now believe that approximately half of all cancers may be diet-related. But relatively little research is done on the relationship.

When the secretary of health, education and welfare, Joseph Califano, unveiled the report at the AFL-CIO's national conference on occupational safety and health, he drew it to the attention of 85 million workers. At the same time he infuriated the chemical industry, whose spokesman said that the department did not have the data to back up its conclusions. The report will also support the Occupational Health and Safety Administration's efforts to establish a rigorous new policy on carcinogens.

The Vanity of Authors

By HENRY FAIRLIE

The vanity of authors is presumably a subject to which I can speak without being told that I do not know what I am talking about. There is something touching about it, since authors have nothing to show off. We cannot carry around our last five published books and pretend that just coincidentally we have them with us.

But actors and actresses can and do carry around their looks with them, to say nothing of the dedication with which they continue to act off the stage. Conductors of symphony orchestras are allowed almost more indulgence, and behave in sitting rooms with at least as much drama as when they're in the concert hall. The author has only satchels of books, which really no one cares about, and which he can display only by looking like a salesman.

Painters can and do stand in front of their own works in their homes. But it would be regarded as odd if authors filled their bookshelves with their own masterpieces, and then stood in front of them with an off-hand glance over their shoulders now and then to direct attention to them.

It is true that there are poets — the vainest of writers — who carry about with them the look of a poet. If ever the conversation seems about to leave them, they gaze around the room like dreamers who are about to be visited by the muse, which we naturally turn to see alight on them. This gift seems to be possessed instinctively by even the youngest poets.

I have watched one of the considerable poets of courage on many such occasions. It does not matter whether he is in shaggy tweeds or immaculate black tie. He is ordinary like us, until the talk strays from the only subject that interests him, at which he surveys the room. A student of moods as a poet should be, and he reaches infallibly to the right image.

He becomes the poet Keatsian, fingering an urn of ashes which, although they are only the remains of cigarettes, suddenly seem as fragrant as death. He becomes the poet Byronic, at which one of his more mature hostesses, in my presence, once asked him if he felt all right. He is thoroughly irresistible as the poet Tennysonian, cloak seeming to stream fron his suddenly broad shoulders, as he sets himself against the winds of the Fens again, even as he warms himself with his port by the roaring fire.

But we commonplace authors do not have these bags of tricks. So our vanity takes very odd forms indeed. It is private and very obsessive. It has something psychopathic about it. Freud would have identified it as unmistakably anal. Perhaps I should not describe it: we will understandably be locked away.

The most obvious form is the vanity of the index-hunter. There comes a stage when we start looking up our names in the indexes of new books. I used to travel from the countryside to London on the same train as the great English essayist Cyril Connolly, and of course we did not speak a word to each other while we ate our breakfasts. But as we reached the big city, we exchanged a few quick words. I noticed him one morning with a review copy of Hugh Thomas' monumental work on the Spanish Civil War. "Hugh done a good job?" I asked. To which Connolly said: "Only read 50 pages so far. But looked up my name in the index. Three references to me. That seems about the right balance."

It is said that when William F. Buckley Jr. sent a copy of The Unmaking of a Mayor to Norman Mailer he did not inscribe it. But when Mailer turned to the index, he found that Buckley had written against his name: "I knew that you would look here first." Authors may often be found in bookstores, turning furtively to the indexes of new books, but the disease only becomes serious when one looks up one's name in a book published before one was born. An extreme version of this was a friend who once confessed to me that after writing a book on Rome, he had found himself looking for his name in the index to Gibbon's Decline and Fall.

There's glory

To be found

I am not so much an index-hunter as a footnote-hunter. A reference to me in the main text could merely be the writer filling up his page, plagiarizing what I have written on the pretext of arguing with my thesis. But to be a footnote! I sink into a footnote reference to me as Roman emperors sank into the arms of slave Libyan princesses.

You may think this is all very pathetic. We know that it is. But our resources are not slender. If you take it into your head to needle us, you will find that our vanity is quick to retaliate, as when Tennyson was once staying at Balliol College, and read a manuscript poem to the company. It was left to the master of the college, the great Benjamin Jowett, to express the group's pleasure at the poem, but instead he said: "I wouldn't publish that, Tennyson, if I were you." There was a pause until Tennyson at last said: "If it comes to that, master, the sherry you gave us today at luncheon was filthy."

All of this occurs to me because I think that, especially in America, authors are too smitten by solemnity. Solemnity about their trade, about themselves of course, and about other authors. The reviews of even quite lightweight works of literature are painstaking in their earnestness, in finding some great verity on a small, but of course precious, insight in what is really just a competent piece of work. No first novel is reviewed as just a good read. Authors review each other as they hope to be reviewed when next it is their turn. Their vanity used to be that of individuals, harmless enough, but now there is a collective vanity of authorship.

This presumably has something to do with our exaltation of all art, and more particularly with the pampering of authors, especially by the universities that canonize them as writers in residence. The middlebrow readership that now dominates our culture has an altogether mistaken notion of the importance of literature, and of the illuminations that it can give of their own lives and of Life, so that we get the quick succession of the faddish novelists of the past 30 years who simply cannot carry such a weight.

This used to be most noticeable in the audiences on lecture tours, who provoked the outraged but justified protest of Dylan Thomas. The authors "begin to mistrust themselves and their reputations," he said, "for they have found, too often, that an audience wil receive a lecture on, say, Ceramics, with the same uninhibited enthusiasm that it accorded the very week before to a paper on the Modern Turkish Novel." The tours killed Thomas physically, they had already killed him literarily.

This false adulation of the author is now threatening to take an even greater toll. It is killing the diffidence with which, behind the eccentricities of their vanity, the author used to regard his elusive function, and in the end this must mean the death of literature. The vast industry of literary criticism at the universities may seem to exalt literature, but in fact its predictable effect has been to squeeze the festiveness and playfulness and dancing life out of it.

The vanity of authors was far more harmless when it was confined to such innocent expressions as that of Montaigne and Spenser, Browning and Carlyle and Dickens, Hugo and Tennyson, all of whom boasted of fictitious pedigrees in order to assume a coat of arms. But that freed them to get on unpretentiously with their scribbling.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Prices moved moderately lower in active mid-session trading today on the Toronto stock market.

Horne and Pitfield Foods Ltd. fell ⅞ to $13⅝ on the sale of 400 shares, while M. Loeb was unchanged at $7½ on 900 shares following their opening resumptions. Horne and Pitfield has announced shareholder-approval of its amalgamation with a wholly-owned subsidiary of Loeb and the company's continuance under the Canada Business Corporations Act.

Conduits-Amherst Ltd. gained 40 cents to $4 on 1,200 shares following a brief trading halt for news the company will pay a special 46-cent dividend.

Inco A dropped ⅞ to $19¾.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled back today as investors began to have second thoughts about the dollar-strengthening package which pushed the market to its best single-day rise ever Wednesday.

Pan Am led the most-active list, falling ¼ to $7½. A 130,700-share block traded at $7¾.

Stocks which scored hefty gains Wednesday were among the biggest losers; IBM fell 7 to $269⅛ and Boeing dropped 2⅛ to $62. IBM said 1978 profits wouldn't increase quite as much as they did last year.

Other losers of a point or more included Polaroid, off 1¾ to $47½; Eastman Kodak, down 1⅝ to $59⅜; Alcoa, off 1⅜ to $45½; General Motors, off 1 to $61.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Industrials and papers were higher and utilities and banks declined in moderate activity on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Northern Telecom was up $1⅛ at $32¼, IU International ⅛ at $13⅜ and CP Ltd. ⅛ at $22⅞. Bell Canada was off ⅛ at $61, Inco A ½ at $20⅛ and Baton Broadcasting ⅜ at $12⅝. Among speculative issues, Stanford Mines A was unchanged at 62 cents with 16,000 shares traded.

London

LONDON (CP) — Concern over union wage claims in excess of government pay guidelines sent the London stock market sharply lower near the close of moderate trading. The Financial Times index was down 7.1 to 472.1 an hour before the close. Leading industrials declined after an early rally, while oil issued eased.

CP AIR OPTS TO LEASE DC-10 PAIR

VANCOUVER (CP) — A review of future financial projections has influenced CP Air to postpone the planned 1979 introduction of DC-10 aircraft to its fleet, the company says.

Two wide-body DC-10s that were to be delivered in March and June, 1979, now will be leased to other airlines. Two additional DC-10s remain on order for delivery in 1980 and 1981.

A threatened strike of the airline's pilots this month further complicated the financial outlook as passenger loads on both domestic and international routes declined rapidly after the strike threat was made public, the company said in a press release.

Inland Gas

Inland Natural Gas Co. reported a profit of $4,940,040 or $1.25 a share for the year ended June 30, compared with $5,497,041 or $1.44 a share the previous year.

Revenue was $70,736,316, compared with $53,093,875 the previous year.

Inland received an interim rate increase in August amounting to about $1.5 million on an annual basis, less than half the amount the company had applied for to the British Columbia Energy Commission.

Another rate hearing is scheduled for Nov. 7 in Penticton.

Cominco

Cominco Ltd. reported profits for the first nine months dipped to $35.6 million, or $1.83 a share, compared with $48.5 million, or $2.68 a share, for the same period last year.

Sales, however, were up at $644.4 million compared with $578.1 million last year. The company said share earnings included an extraordinary gain of 13 cents from the sale of real estate and dock facilities at New Westminster, B.C.

M. N. Anderson, company president and chief operating officer, said prices for refined zinc and zinc concentrates remained at levels below last year and reduced earnings.

He said the outlook for the fourth quarter is more encouraging and the demand for refined zinc has improved. He also said prices in the U.S. have increased to 34.5 cents a pound in October from 31 cents a pound in June.

Vestgron

Vestgron Mines Ltd. reports unaudited consolidated net earnings for the first nine months of 1978 of $274,000 or six cents a share from sales of $27 million, compared with $5,225,000 or $1.24 a share from sales of $31.4 million for the corresponding period in 1977.

Earnings for the third quarter were $1,032,000 or 24 cents a share from sales of $13 million. The loss for the first half of 1978 has been recovered, said company president O. E. Owens.

Demand and prices for zinc concentrate have improved and markets for lead concentrates remain strong, Owens said.

Stelco

With demand for its products continuing strong, Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Stelco) reports profits for the nine months ended Sept. 30 of $92,911,000 or $3.42 a share compared with $69,835,000 or $2.64 a share for the same period last year.

In a report to shareholders, Stelco said the outlook for the fourth quarter is optimistic, although output will be restricted while the company's largest blast furnace is being relined.

Save-E&N Crusade 'Catching on Nationally'

Local supporters of the E&N Dayliner are being joined by transportation enthusiasts in Eastern Canada as passenger totals climb toward a record.

John Cooper, chairman of the Vancouver Island E&N Steering Committee, said a tremendous interest has developed in the Budd car system since the Canadian Transport Commission tentatively agreed to a CP Rail application to abandon passenger service on Vancouver Island.

"What's happened in the past year has caught the imagination, not only locally but nationally," Cooper said.

The Victoria-Courtenay diesel car service carried nearly 5,400 passengers in October, an increase of 500 over September and only 3,000 short of the peak month of August.

It represents an 800 per cent increase from a year ago.

Cooper said he has heard support from Transport Canada and Frank Roberts, president of VIA Rail which has taken over the E&N passenger service.

Recently he spent two hours with Roberts, whom he said was "extremely impressed with what is happening to this line."

VIA has plans for the Dayliner run, but Cooper preferred not to be specific until the transport commission's review committee deals with the proposed continuation of service beyond Dec. 31. The committee sits in Victoria Nov. 15.

One of the first things that could be recommended, said Cooper, is a rescheduling of the timetable, at present offering one trip daily in each direction.

A complete set of recommendations will be made by Cooper's committee when hearings open here.

Meanwhile, within the next few weeks VIA intends to distribute new E&N brochures to travel agents and tourist centres and to insert local newspaper advertisements promoting the Dayliner.

Future improvements in the following three or four years, Cooper suggests, could be a complete refurbishing of the 25-year-old diesel cars which are still structurally sound but will need new engines and improved interiors.

Roberts also is sympathetic to the idea of a co-ordinated transportation system incorporating local and regional rail and bus lines, and ferry services, Cooper said.

The steering committee chairman intends to present to city council a proposal for a new transportation centre in downtown Victoria that would incorporate, coach lines, Dayliner service and passenger parking in a single block opposite the Government Street brewery.

The property is owned by the CP Industries subsidiary Marathon Realty Ltd., is undeveloped except for one small building and is already served by a rail spur.

He quoted additional Dayliner traffic figures showing more than 36,000 passengers had been carried on the line this year, with 45,000 a distinct possibility by year-end.

By comparison there were only 50,000 passengers on the line in the four preceding years.

Revised Fishboat Insurance Program In Works

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc will announce soon a plan to save the fishing vessel insurance program and the low rates it offers 8,000 fishermen across the country.

Federal involvement in the plan is to end April 1 as part of government cost-cutting. LeBlanc has said he has no intention of letting the program die.

LeBlanc wants to consult the fishermen to see if they will accept a replacement program his officials have devised. There would be no government involvement in it.

Fishermen's groups have complained bitterly about the proposed demise of the program saying it makes money for the federal government. LeBlanc says he wants to end government involvement in the program to free manpower for other tasks.

The plan ran almost consistently in the red from its inception in 1953 to 1967 when the premiums were raised. In the last five years it has consistently earned a profit for the federal coffers, says Carl Mitchell, the program's administrator.

Last year, premiums exceeded claims by $1.5 million and even after deducting all the administrative costs, "accountants figured it earned several hundred thousand dollars a year," Mitchell said.

He said the program now offers fishermen a comprehensive vessel replacement and repair policy with premiums set at 2.6 per cent of the vessel's value.

Only fishermen with new vessels in top condition could get those kind of rates from private companies, he said.

The program is a boon to operators of older and smaller craft whose premiums, if they could get any insurance from a private firm, could go as high as seven or eight per cent.

"We cover a lot of little boats that private companies wouldn't even touch," he said.

"The minister wants to ensure that fishermen get comparable coverage at the same price."

The government plan should be attractive to the fishermen, Mitchell said. But LeBlanc wanted to consult them to see if they would accept it. "He doesn't want to shove it down their throats."

City Men Appointed To Board

Two Victoria men have been appointed to the seven-member board of hearing aid dealers and consultants, Health Minister Bob McClelland announced Wednesday.

James Dunn of the West Coast Society of Hearing Aid Specialists and Robert Gary join the board that was set up in 1971 to keep tabs on the industry.

The board is designed to protect the public regarding testing and fitting of hearing aids by dealers and consultants.

It hears complaints from the public and aids in resolving them. It also registers dealers and sets standards in training and fitting.

Iran Political Prisoners Promised Freedom

TEHRAN (AP) — The Iranian government, bruised by riots and strikes by oil refinery workers and others, says it will free all political prisoners Dec. 10 and abolish special military tribunals soon.

Justice Minister Hussein Najafi, who announced the concessions Wednesday, said Dec. 10 was chosen to free the prisoners because the United Nations has set aside that day to pay tribute to the protection of human rights.

He did not say how many will be freed but it is believed they will include all those jailed for inciting religious and political rioting which has killed more than 1,000 persons this year. Those held for terrorism are expected to remain in prison.

At least 23 anti-government protesters died and 56 were injured in clashes with troops or government supporters Wednesday in the western cities of Sanandaj and Azarshahr. The demonstrators demanded release of persons jailed for opposition to Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

A strike of about half of Iran's civil servants has virtually paralysed government services.

About 37,000 oil refinery workers went on strike Tuesday, cutting Iran's vital oil exports by 60 per cent.

U.S. oil industry officials say the United States, which normally buys about 900,000 barrels of crude from Iran daily, might feel a shortage if the strike lasts more than a week.

Tsitika Clear-Cut Denounced

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

The provincial government's decision to allow clear cutting of the Tsitika River watershed was denounced Wednesday at a public meeting on salmonid enhancement.

Veteran fisherman Reg Payne of Sidney, who has served on government advisory fisheries committees, told the sport and commercial fishermen and conservationists at the meeting that clear cutting of the valley spells disaster for its rich fisheries resource.

"I'm fed up to the gills being asked for advice on ways to preserve the the fisheries industry and then having governments ignore it," Payne said.

He said the logging industry's practice of clear cutting is the main cause of declining fisheries resources in the province.

And he predicted clear cutting in the Tsitika will bring flooding, loss of soil, sedimentation of the river and the destruction of salmon spawning grounds.

The provincial government decided Wednesday to lift a five-year-old logging moratorium on the 84,839-acre valley and endorsed a planning committee report allowing clearcut zones of up to 600 acres.

Payne, deploring the government's lack of interest in the fisheries industry, said although the fisheries resource is under federal jurisdiction, the maritime provinces have fisheries ministers and pour money into the resource.

"We have no such ministery in B.C.," Payne said.

"Let's face it — our fisheries resource is drastically declining."

David Orton, representing the B.C. Federation of Naturalists, asked why federal and provincial fisheries officials who served on the Tsitika Planning Committee had supported the traditional bare land logging practice for the Tsitika.

The officials were present at the meeting.

"Here you are taking about enhancing salmon streams and rivers and yet you have endorsed clear cutting on the Tsitika," Orton told the officials.

They did not respond.

Chief Louis Claxton, representing four Indian bands on southern Vancouver Island, advocated more controls on logging practices.

"Something should also be done to control the actions of municipal governments which tend to approve all types of small industries which have an effect on salmon," Claxton said.

He also urged fisheries officials to take a closer look at the use of poisonous chemicals by farmers and the practice of allowing subdivisions alongside salmon creeks.

Major Earthquake Hits Soviet Asia

MOSCOW (UPI) — Radio Moscow today reported a strong and potentially devastating earthquake struck a remote region of the Pamir Mountains in Soviet Central Asia late Wednesday.

Radio Moscow reported that the quake occurred at 10:49 p.m. (11:49 a.m. PST) and registered a massive 9 on the Soviet 12-point seismic scale.

Western seismic observatories in Sweden and the United States reported their instruments logged the earthquake at between 6.7 and 7.2 on the open-ended Richter scale.

Radio Moscow said the epicentre of the quake was located in a sparsely populated area of the Pamirs and there were no reports of casualties or damage.

It said the quake registered only 5 in Tashkent, the nearest major city.

Inflation Signs In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices in the United States rose 0.9 per cent in October for the second straight month, a sign that inflation may worsen, labor department figures showed today.

The department's report showed that the price of food, before it reached U.S. grocery stores, rose 1.7 per cent for the second month in a row after declining during the summer.

The wholesale price figures give consumers an early indication of what to expect in coming months. Many of the costs eventually are passed on to retail shoppers.

The U.S. inflation rate for the year has been nearly 10 per cent, but the government had been counting on prices to ease by the end of 1978. The October increase, if averaged out over an entire year, would be about 11 per cent.

In October, prices of products sold at farms and mines jumped three per cent, the second biggest rise of the year. At the intermediate stage of production they rose 1.2 per cent, the biggest increase in four years.

Some of the biggest increases were in food, but other products were rising in price as well. Rising sharply were wholesale prices for gasoline, home heating oil, tires, soap, detergents, leather shoes, clothes and beverages. Prices were up for kitchen utensils, jewelry and mobile homes.

U.S. Dollar Skyrockets

The dollar opened in Zurich at 1.6050 Swiss francs from 1.5725, picking up another full point to 1.61375 during the first half hour of trading, an ecstatic reversal of the pattern earlier in the week of daily record lows.

Although gold fell, the pound sterling followed the dollar upwards, gaining in Zurich to 3.1975 Swiss francs from 3.1305 and in Frankfurt to 3.74 marks from 3.67.

The greenback's sharp recovery was welcomed by jubliant Americans in Europe and Asia, who have watched the cost of lodging, transportation and food spiral as the dollar declined.

If the dollar's 5 per cent gain holds, a cup of coffee in Tokyo will fall from $1.40 to $1.33. A hard-pressed GI in West Germany said, "It came at the right time.."

The dollar reached all-time lows against the world's major currencies earlier this week, representing losses of 25 per cent this year against Swiss and Japanese currencies, 16.5 per cent against the West German mark and 6.5 per cent against the pound.

The widespread support among dealers for Carter's measures indicated the crisis of confidence — always a major factor in the financial world — might finally be over.

"This is the sort of action for which we have been waiting so long," a Swiss broker said. "It should have come sooner."

In London, Midland Bank officials said the measures were "a much stronger package than expected," and a dealer at Chase Manhattan said: "It's like a breath of fresh air."

PCP Leak Claimed Harmless

PENTICTON (CP) — Preliminary tests of ground water near the spill of 2,500 gallons of toxic chemical on Penticton Indian band property last week have shown very low levels of danger, Doug Wilson, of the Environment Protection Service, said Tuesday.

The sodium pentochlorphenate (PCP) leaked from a tank at the Greenwood Forest Products Ltd. lumber operation about 150 metres from the Okanagan River.

Wilson said tests of well water used by Greenwood show concentrations of 0.9 parts a billion, about 20 times less than the level considered safe for drinking.

He said no tests have been done on the river water or nearby Skaha Lake, although further studies will be carried out. Wilson says he thinks there's virtually no threat of danger in either body of water.

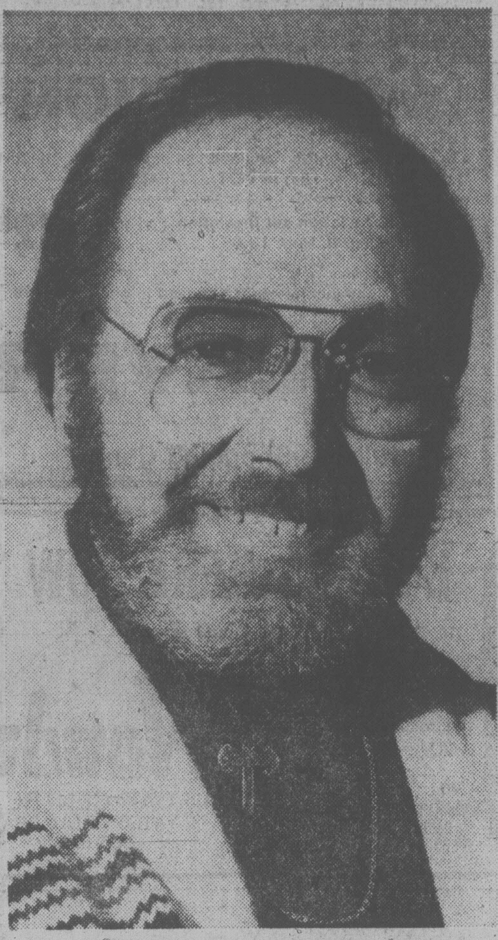
The Mustard Seed



Ex-street gang member Gipp Forster rescues outcasts, runaways, derelicts

By AB KENT
Times Staff

GIPP Forster is a soul-saver who knows the seamy side of life from the bottom up.

Twenty-five years ago he ran with a street gang in Ottawa. He stole, fought, carried weapons and knew if he kept it up he wouldn't live much longer.

Today Gipp helps rescue outcasts, runaways, drug and alcohol-ridden derelicts and the whole gamut of street people who inhabit a grey world between "clean" society and the gutter.

Forster, 41, director of an urban mission called Because We Care, knows he will be only as successful as his street people want, and that actions speak louder than words.

For three years tangible evidence of the group's ministry has been a tiny Pandora Avenue storefront bearing a biblical title, The Mustard Seed, where the sick, the homeless, the unloved can unburden themselves.

"If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you. Matthew 17:20.

The mountain has started to move, with a little impetus from Forster and his volunteers, bridging the gulf between the sheltered, church-going Christian and the ministry of faith.

"If Christianity is real there's no class distinction, but if you're going to have faith, you've got to back it with action," Forster said.

Feeding the hungry, comforting the sick and sheltering the homeless is a Christian responsibility the mission takes seriously, especially directed toward children.

The wayward come to 552 Pandora in all ages and both sexes; drunks and drifters, teen-aged addicts, prostitutes, girls who have bolted an unhappy home, petty thieves, pool hustlers and pushers. And there are the lonely, the misfits, the simple, to whom the hand of friendship is almost beyond yearning.

Recently 80 street people aged 18-40 turned up for turkey dinner. Some may have been scraped off the sidewalk a day or so before, given a place to sleep instead of being picked up by the paddy wagon. Regulars include 12 and 13-year-olds hooking to make enough to buy dope.

Some nights there may be 100 in and out of the shelter and for many there is no other place for them to go.

Forster refers to his work as "recycling kids," and helps set the pace by taking three youngsters into his own home where they are completely accepted by his wife Dawna and two children.

The Mustard Seed offers a place that's warm, dry, has decent furniture, something to eat, supervision and a measure of stability.

"It's for those who are trying for a family atmosphere and can't make it in the street or with their own families."

SOME have no family, few work, others are welfare cases and some have been written off by the ministry of human resources with the comment: "Can't be reached."

Drop-ins have to show a glimmer of initiative.

"They have to come to us; input from them first. But we don't come down on them heavy. We accept them as they are," Forster said.

"We say, 'Don't preach. Serve.'

"If they want to be part of the Mustard Seed they've got to prove themselves and straighten themselves out.

"If they're going to use it as a flophouse, come in at night and be off in the morning, they can forget it," Forster said.

Because We Care is an Emmanuel Baptist Church mission in the urban community in much the same way as most organized churches minister to foreign fields. It is an area Forster feels has been largely neglected, despite efforts of other faiths which tend to come on too strongly.

Volunteers have reached 16-year-old Julie (not her real name), who ran away several times before leaving home for good. She could not get along with her mother and was having problems.

"I had nobody to talk to and got bottled up. I took it out on other people, I fought with my mother, and she'd hit me with a broom handle. I finally said I wouldn't go back.

"I got along well with kids on the street," Julie said.

Then the shoplifting, purse-snatching, begging and break-ins began, and Julie landed several times in juvenile court.

There were "foster homes, group homes and every other kind of homes. I was going with guys 20, 25 years old and got into sex, miscarriage, hooking, the whole thing. You learn how to survive."

Julie learned the kind of false friendship practised in the street: "People are your friends if you'll do things for them — get them dope, give them money or sex.

"Bumming . . . sleeping on the street and being with the wrong kind of people, you can get addicted to it. I said to myself I can't take it any more. It's no kind of life," the youngster said.

A street acquaintance took her to the Pandora drop-in one night.

"When I walked into the Mustard Seed I knew there could be something better.

"I can rely on people at the Mustard Seed."

Julie, who has only Grade 8, is thinking seriously of going back to school, but she won't go home again.

Instead, she will be among the first tenants of a halfway house donated to the mission by a member of Emmanuel Baptist congregation, where eight to 10 youngsters can live co-operatively in a supervised atmosphere.

Julie isn't there yet — the two-storey building at 3028 Jutland is still being readied — but already relations with her mother have improved. The last time they met there was no hassle: "It's best to treat with kindness," said Julie. "It's working."

Boys and girls like Julie have found their way to the Mustard Seed. Forster recalls a girl who had staked out a secluded alleyway as her apartment, a place to stash a few belongings and spread her sleeping bag.

SOME will seek out the Mustard Seed, others will be given sanctuary when their need becomes apparent. Like those found drunk or sick by patrolling volunteers.

Forster hopes a service club will put up money for a rescue van to make the mission's work more effective.

The board of directors frequently takes initiatives without the funds to back their action.

"We do many things on trust, hoping the money will appear later. Usually it does," Forster said.

"To do what we need to do, we could use a $10,000 a month budget. But we don't need government (human resources) support. It's a Christian responsibility."

Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto Me. Matthew 25:40.

'You May Discover Yourself'

Maj. Barry Phillips of CFB Esquimalt is one whose Christian awareness was awakened by the Mustard Seed.

Visiting one night he was struck by the warmth, spontaneity and compassion between street people and helpers.

He found it thrilling, even as a spectator:

"I met many people that night, most of whose names I have since forgotten. It is not important because their faces are etched into my mind with indelible ink. Faces that were young yet at the same time painted with the marks of age. Age brought about prematurely by being forced to live alone in a harsh, unrelenting world."

There were hard eyes, but also a brightness which Phillips realized was because "these people have found the answer, which a good many of us will spend a lifetime looking for — sadly enough; some of us will never find it.

"I invite you to discover the Seed — but be careful, you may discover yourself."

'Amazed People Accept This'

University of Victoria senate did the only thing it could Wednesday in shelving plans for a much-needed optometry school.

UVic president Howard Petch said today the senators were only being realistic when they decided to forget about establishing the school.

He said without support from the provincial government the idea isn't feasible.

Opportunities for young people in B.C. to enter professions are limited, he said.

"I'm amazed people in B.C. will accept this."

Petch said the government has made no move toward development of an optometry school even though the senate decided in 1973 it was a high priority.

Canada's only English-speaking optometry school, at the University of Waterloo in Ontario, is overcrowded.

B.C. students have trouble entering the Waterloo school because the province didn't enter into an agreement made by the other western provinces to support it. Most U.S. optometry schools are closed to B.C. residents.

The situation is the same when it comes to other professions.

B.C. imports most of its medical people, including doctors and speech and hearing specialists.

Petch said the government would rather import professionals because it's cheaper than spending money to train B.C. residents.

"There seems to be a great reluctance to develop professions in the province," Petch said. "We have to hire Americans."

Vander Z Rejects Doctor's Charge Of Token Effort

VANDER ZALM
. . . wants the best

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm today dismissed criticism from the Capital Region's Child Abuse Committee that his white paper on the family is a token effort.

Vander Zalm said he wants to develop the best possible legislation for families and children and that some criticism is healthy.

"But to criticize a public input paper for not being more specific is contradictory to the very process of receiving submissions on a white paper," the minister said.

The government's white paper on proposed Family and Child Services Act was released in September.

Abuse committee chairman Dr. Brian Pound said Tuesday the Dec. 31 deadline for submissions is unrealistic.

He said there are a lot of guidelines in other jurisdictions for children's legislation but the government's deadline makes it impossible to do the necessary research.

Vander Zalm, however, said that to suggest more than four months is needed is "what one would only expect from those who are no too certain of what they want in the first place. Probably 12 months would serve them no better."

The minister said he has already received numerous valid criticisms and comments which are being considered for inclusion in the final bill that will be presented to the spring session of the legislature.

Pound also criticized the white paper for having no clear definition of child abuse or incorporating any of the steps essential for resolving child abuse cases.

But Vander Zalm said his bill is not designed to be a definitive, global authority for all matters related to child welfare.

"Our long-term goal or ideal would be to have one act which incorporates all those matters relating to families, but our first priority is the replacement of The Protection of Children Act."

The minister in today's press release did not respond to Pound's accusation that B.C.'s superintendent of child welfare Vic Belknap has been muzzled on the subject of child legislation.

Pound said Belknap, who is now in charge of co-ordinating submissions on the white paper, worked for a whole year studying children's legislation in other jurisdictions and drawing up his own proposed changes to the Protection of Children Act, passed in 1901.

Pound says Belknap refuses to comment on his research saying he is not allowed to give any details.

Vander Zalm addded there is a lot of discussion these days on the rights of children and whether or not they should be the property of their parents under the law.

"That is a point the public should consider very carefully and give us the benefit of submissions."

Two Men Jailed On Drug Counts

Two Victoria men were sentenced by Judge Montague Drake today to 18 months in jail for conspiracy to traffic in hashish.

Russell Tschritter, 33, and James William Buckner, 35, were found guilty by a county court jury Sept. 13 of conspiring between themselves and others unknown between July 15, 1975, and Jan. 6, 1976, to traffic in the drug.

During the trial, Buckner, who acted in his own defence, suggested to two RCMP drug officers they had tried to coerce him into digging up information which would incriminate provincial Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf in the drug trade.

Both officers denied the suggestion and said no threats or inducements had been offered.

Bawlf later denied any association with anyone dealing in drugs.

He said the sources of rumors of his involvement with drugs were "twisted minds who had attached derogative or even sinister motives to my involvement in Old Town."

'No Leadership Given by CLC' During Postal Workers' Strike

The leadership of the Canadian Labor Congress took a pummelling from Victoria Labor Council delegates Wednesday night during a post mortem on last week's national postal strike.

Trade union officials said the CLC stayed on the sidelines during the strike, thereby denying members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) any chance of success and weakening the future position of other unions.

"There was absolutely no leadership given by the CLC at any stage in that dispute," said Roger Lewis, president of the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America.

During the strike, he said, CLC president Dennis McDermott sent a letter to the group's affiliates telling them to hold off on any action until they had heard back from the national labor body.

"I still haven't heard from the CLC," Lewis said angrily.

"By taking that action they removed the rug from under the union."

He said if the CLC had taken a stronger stand during the dispute the government may not have been so successful in its efforts to get the 23,000 CUPW members back to work.

By sitting on its hands, Lewis added, the CLC has also signalled to other employers that they may get away with the same thing.

"We are all going down the drain on the goddamn thing."

Dick Belfit of the Telecommunications Workers Union said there is an organized corporate movement to smash unions one by one "and the CLC isn't doing anything to stop it."

He said he was astonished that there was not some pre-arranged plan worked out between the postal union and the CLC to fend off what was a predictable move by the government.

Peter de Belle, recording secretary for CUPW's Victoria local, asked the council to pass resolutions giving further support to the postal workers who he said are facing political witchhunts, possible trusteeship and decertification.

Council delegates agreed to demand that all disciplinary actions against CUPW members be dropped and that they be reinstated without loss of pay.

De Belle said five members of the union's national executive have been charged with offences under the Criminal Code because they advised their members to ignore a government back-to-work order. Four members of the Vancouver local also have been charged and another 27 had stays on their charges, de Belle said.

The council also agreed to form a committee to co-ordinate activities in defence of the CUPW members who face prosecution.

High Marks to Students For Russian Farce Effort

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Those theatre-goers familiar with the special manic style of Russian farce will be ready to congratulate everybody responsible, starting with director Bindon Kinghorn, for the degree of success achieved in UVic Theatre Department's production of Nicolai Erdman's The Suicide.

The graduate student, who chose the play as a thesis and then bowed out for romantic reasons, also merits applause for her research and astuteness in making the choice. The play, written in 1928 and having its Canadian premiere at the Phoenix Theatre this week, turns a mocking spotlight on conditions within the Soviet Union in the 20s . . . particularly regarded classes of people who found themselves existing in a sort of nether world.

But quite apart from its socio-political conscience The Suicide is a good play because it's filled with distinctive characters, genuinely funny situations and displays the play craftsman's genius for shaping and building his material into effective drama.

The large cast of 39 students and the crew are mostly first-year, and on behalf of the crew it should be said the handling of scene changes and lighting cues deserves high marks.

It's early in the semester to expect much in the way of polished performance but what is lacking in this area is compensated for to a certain extent by the high vitality and all-out effort toward ensemble playing that is quite exceptionally successful.

Director Kinghorn has scored here in bringing his cast to an excellent pitch, most positively in the second act where the stage is filled with well-planned movement and where tensions are sustained more consistently than in the first act.

The young actors in principal roles have made some inroads toward understanding the — to the western mind — complex Russian character, and in terms of farce the naivety and rather primary colors in which many of the people are drawn, is not disturbing.

What is disturbing however, is the speech. Russian plays, and especially comedy, are filled with argument, either between characters or in soliloquy and it's all done at a high-tension level. Add to this that The Suicide is intended as social commentary and therefore indulges now and then in rather profuse and significant utterances.

Unfortunately, bearing in mind that this is a farce and rapid tempo is of the essence, the actors are given to headlong spates that, because of poor diction are blurred and almost unintelligible. In this area, the theatre faculty and the students have an enormous amount to accomplish and those especially who are attracted to on-stage careers, should waste no time in cleaning up the consonants and improving vocal resonance.

Semyon Semyonovich is a young man unable to cope with conditions and with typical melodramatic intensity decides on suicide, only to find, when the word gets around, that various people wish to profit by his action and turn him into a people's martyr. His Hamlet-like indecision leads to numerous comic situations, ending with a grandiose and ludicrous funeral scene.

Greg Keenan manages the rôle quite well and with some understanding. His faults are technical, mostly to do with speech, too much eyelid rather than eyeball, and discomfort when the action and the tempo pauses. There are many small roles promisingly performed and distinct promise in the work of Holly Olson as his wife.

Ross Nichol has come up with an interesting set which suggests a circus tent; an acceptable projection of the play's action and content. Costumes have been well handled by Karen Moore.

Dad Sentenced

HALIFAX (CP) — Bernard James Murphy, 41, of Windsor, N.S., convicted of abducting his two-year-old daughter, was given a one year suspended sentence in supreme court.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 21-year-old Sidney man who pleaded guilty to driving while suspended, failing to remain at the scene of an accident and taking a vehicle without the owner's consent as well as his third drinking-driving conviction was given an intermittent, 30-day jail term by Judge Harold Alder in provincial court Wednesday.

Leonard Georgeson, 2159 Weiler, will serve the term on weekends at Wilkinson Road jail.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said Georgeson was involved in an accident about 1:15 a.m., June 13, failing to stop after hitting a parked car. The pickup truck Georgeson was driving belonged to his landlord, Mulligan said, and Georgeson was also under suspension at the time because of his driving record.

Georgeson was convicted twice in 1976 of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08, on March 4 when he was fined $325 and on Oct. 7 when he was sentenced to 20 days in jail.

He also was convicted Jan. 11, 1977, of dangerous driving and fined $400.

Defence lawyer James Robertson told the court Georgeson had six beers that evening before returning home and taking a hay fever pill. He then drank some Southern Comfort and some wine, Robertson continued, and did not recall a thing after that.

An 18-year-old was given a suspended sentence by Alder on condition he attend an intensive Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Society program.

Laurie Ronald Davis, 2190 Amelia, pleaded guilty to breaching a probation order made on May 19, 1978.

Mulligan said the probation order stipulated that Davis abstain from alcohol until he is 19.

However, on July 13, Davis submitted to a breath test because of a motor-vehicle mishap and a reading of .16 was obtained by police.

Alder gave Davis a suspended sentence and placed him on six months' probation as well as ordering him to attend the DARS clinic on Dallas Road.

Farmhand Knifed Fellow Worker - Farmer

A Central Saanich farmer told a B.C. Supreme Court jury Wednesday he saw a 40-year-old farmhand stab a fellow worker in a field near Island View Beach on June 26.

He was driving his tractor shortly before 8:30 a.m. and saw seven persons working in a potato field including Gill and Pelkey. He said the two men and Eric Henry, 19, were hoeing different rows facing the sea and each one about 10 feet apart from the other.

He drove along a road beside the sea and saw Gill walk to his lunchbucket with his hoe in his hand and reach for something. Then he went back to Pelkey who was hoeing.

When Gill was about 15 feet from Pelkey he put his hoe up and started swinging. At that point, Pelkey was still hoeing. There were several blows to Pelkey and after one or two blows, Pelkey put his hoe up and swung back at Gill.

Michell said he was about 30 feet away from them, jumped off his tractor and ran over. Gill was "hollering" but he didn't understand the language he was using.

Both men landed blows and Pelkey was backing up and Gill was advancing on him. He heard Pelkey say to Gill "get away, what is the matter with you."

Michell said he told Pelkey to back off and run to the south end of the field and Pelkey kept backing away but they were still swinging their hoes.

He then demonstrated, with a hoe and a pencil, how Gill held the hoe with both hands and the pencil, representing a knife, was in the right hand and flush with the hoe.

Pelkey let his hoe down and put out his arms and quickly Gill stabbed him with his right hand while holding the hoe in his left hand. Michell said he was five to eight feet away. He had seen the blade and hilt of the knife just before that.

Pelkey was bleeding badly and backed away about 30 feet and did not have his hoe after the stabbing. He was crouched by a drainage canal and Gill was still holding his hoe and knife and was about five feet from Pelkey.

He heard Pelkey ask "why did you do that?"

Asked if Pelkey had shown any signs of anger during the incident, he said "no sir, not anger." He said Gill was "hollering" up to the stabbing.

Henry, meanwhile, was about 10 feet from Michell and holding a hoe and "I said 'Eric, swing at him, hit him' which he did. He got Gill on the side. One blow."

Gill then turned and walked between Henry and Michell, carrying the hoe and knife, into the fields away from the ocean.

Michell said Pelkey was a good worker. Although he had seen him drunk two or three years ago, he had never seen him drunk on the job.

He described Gill as a fairly good worker who had never caused trouble before and had worked with Pelkey before.

Michell was to continue his testimony today.

Henry testified Gill walked to his lunchbucket, opened and closed it, came back to Pelkey and started swinging his hoe at him and they were swinging at each other. After Pelkey started bleeding, Henry struck Gill with his hoe.

He said when Gill arrived for work, Pelkey was saying something to him but he couldn't hear what it was.

Henry agreed he told police in a statement that Pelkey asked Gill if he knew what time he was to be at work. But he denied saying in one part of the statement that Pelkey got "plenty mad at him."

He also denied telling police that Gill couldn't hit Pelkey so he ran to his lunchbucket and got his knife.

He agreed he told a preliminary hearing that as Pelkey was talking to Gill his voice was getting louder and louder. But he said it was not true when he agreed at the heaeing that when Pelkey's voice gets loud it is an indication he is getting mad.

He did confirm another part of his hearing testimony that he knew Pelkey was getting a little mad.

He agreed with a part of his police statement that before the fight, Pelkey was asking Gill why he was late for work, "kinda joking around and the East Indian got mad."

He agreed Pelkey was teasing Gill and said he thought it was during the teasing that the fight started.

He said he didn't hear Gill say anything and he wasn't hollering or shouting but he heard Pelkey say at one point "why did you do that?"

Henry denied saying "you - - - Hindu" and "go back home" to Gill. He also denied hitting Gill more than once and denied there was more than one fight.

3 Years For Sex Offences

A 32-year-old man who holds a degree in child psychology was sentenced in county court Wednesday to three years in the penitentiary after pleading guilty to five sex offences against a 10-year-old girl.

Gerald Patrick Rushford pleaded guilty to four counts of indecent assault and one count of gross indecency.

He pleaded not guilty to two counts of buggery, one count of gross indecency and one count of assault causing bodily harm to the same child and the prosecution entered a stay of proceedings.

Judge Montague Drake accepted a suggestion from Crown counsel Donald Laughton and recommended that Rushford serve his time at the federal institution at Matsqui where psychiatric counselling is available.

Laughton told the court the offences occurred between May 15, 1976, and April 14, 1978, but did not come to light until June 15 when the child became hysterical about a planned visit with her mother to Rushford's home.

How To Get Clobbered And Like It

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Trouble is, on a day on which form prevailed and there was some excellent racing, I didn't get no respect.

Not that I deserved it after what happened at Sandown Park, Wednesday, as the 17-day thoroughbred meeting of the Capital City Turf Club went past the halfway mark.

It came about this way. As you know, or should, each day preceding a race card a Sandown the Times Handicap under the byline of you-know-who appears on these pages. It is an honest effort to predetermine the result mf the races on the card and there has been some success at times.

Take Wednesday, three first picks came down in front. Three second choices got there in time and one third selection was a winner. Not bad in eight races? Not good is more like it. In fact it was lousy.

The reason is there are other handicappers in town (yes, I'll admit it) and they jumped all over me.

Take Harry Filion who does the job for radio CFAX. He's the guy who, several years ago when he was doing the same job for a Portland newspaper, picked eight winners and lost a photo finish in the ninth on opening day and you couldn't buy a copy of the Oregonian the next morning on the newsstands. Well, Harry had five. I didn't hear Doug Reid, who does the selections for CJVI, but I heard he had five too. Then there are the other regulars in the media room at the track—Jim Tang, George Harknett and Ed Popham.

The media room is where most things, and sometimes winners, are determined. That's what we like to think anyway. And if there are five people there could be five different winners. On some days that is.

Tang belongs. He's in the fold. Harknett is president of the CCTC and Popham past president, so they're welcome.

On Wednesday all three were puffed up like Peacocks. Harknett marked a card for a friend, Bill Campbell, a sales representative for Texaco, and on it he had EIGHT winners. He revealed the fact after five races as he "released" the final three for the benefit of the press present.

Popham, who had arrived late, only had time to pick the last six. And for a guy who used to do the front-page selections for the late edition of the Times and seldom got more than one, no wonder he was smirking.

Of course, Harknett and Popham don't count because they don't have to prove it in print. Still, the fame and the money is nice to have.

But Tang. TANG!.

He blew the cover off the handicapping future of the meeting. He had SEVEN and that's news and the Colonist didn't even report it. Shame! If a jockey gets seven, it's headlines, so how about the poor handicapper.

The odd part about Jim's feat however is that he started a show parley on the first race, went four straight, and then ducked out because he never had four wins a row before and wasn't confident he could make it five for five, which he did. So he wasn't on it.

Now, the question is: what's he going to do for an encore?

Meanwhile Barbie Baby, a five-year old chestnut mare, captured the featured Vancouver Island Thoroughbred Horse Society 6½ furlong sprint with Win Key second and Fleet Avalanza third. The favored Teddy Bear D who had run a smasher on Saturday in the Times Handicap, wasn't up to the task having picked up 10 pounds over Saturday's race.

And that really was the only startler in a formful day of close and exciting races.

Charlie's Capri ($3.40) became a three-time winner by going long and taking the eighth race. The Lady Isa Tramp ($3.40) won her second in the sixth and Kan Tuk ($8.20), a three-year old filly, came through on the rail to win the fourth (and her second) in a three-horse photo with Remi Tike and Tenelta.

* * *

Leading rider Mark Walker had a win, three seconds and a show for the day and he leads Travis Wilkinson, who had two Wednesday, 16-13. Ray Creighton and Meno Mena also scored on two.

Harknett also announced that he had booked the Jawl Brothers' Bold Laddie for Major Hike. Woodland Shadow has been assigned top weight of 126 for Saturday's Vancouver Island Derby. The other imposts are: Wild Rover 111, Earl of Bon 116, Marine Driver 111, Problem Solved 114, Lyric Line 117, Will She Be Frisky 116, Devilry 118, Reformed 120, Prince Gesture 111, Kan Tuck 113, Prince of Derry 115, Parkhead Prince 111.

The crowd was 1,808 and the mutuel handle $145,776.

Vikings, Vikettes On Exhibition Trip

UVic Vikings and Vikettes are on the prairies this weekend for their final tuneup before the opening of the Canada West University Athletic Association basketball schedule Nov. 10.

Vikings are in Winnipeg for three exhibition games starting tonight against the University of Manitoba Bisons, defending Great Plains Athletic Conference champions. Friday, UVic meets University of Winnipeg Wesmen, another G-PAC power, and completes is visit Saturday with a game against Winnipeg Nicolets, defending Manitoba Senior "A" champions.

Vikettes, meanwhile, open an eight-team tournament tonight in Calgary by meeting University of Alberta Pandas, finalists last weekend in a tournament in Saskatoon won by Laurentian University Vees of Sudbury.

Other teams in the Calgary tournament are Simon Fraser, Calgary Dinnies, Saskatchewan Huskiettes, Lethbridge, Regina and Mount Royal Community College of Calgary. The single-knockout event concludes Saturday night.

Both Viking and Vikette coaches report their teams are healthy.

Gradin, Hanlon Spark Canucks

Times News Services

Vancouver's Thomas Gradin and Lars Lindgren combined for the only goal of the game late in the first period Wednesday night and rookie goaltender Glen Hanlon recorded his first National Hockey League shutout, blanking Chicago Black Hawks 1-0 in Chicago.

Gradin, drafted by the Hawks in the 1976 amateur draft but traded last June, scored his sixth goal of the year on a rebounded shot after Lindgren had blasted away from the point.

Lindgren, a burly defenceman, stopped four would-be Hawk shots in the last two periods.

Vancouver's win, its fifth in seven tries on Chicago ice in the last two years, boosted the Canucks into a first-place tie with the Black Hawks in the Smythe Divsion.

With 1:12 remaining, Chicago goalie Tony Esposito was pulled from the net and Hanlon smothered a shot by J. P. Bordeleau from point-blank range and then turned aside a wrist shot by John Marks with 25 seconds remaining.

Only Montreal Canadiens have ever started a National Hockey League season faster than Atlanta Flames have this year and Dan Bouchard gets the credit for extending Atlanta's streak Wednesday night.

The Flames goalie, getting his first shutout of the season, turned back 40 Philadelphia Flyers shots for a 3-0 Atlanta win.

The victory, a club-record ninth straight, raised the Flames' record to 9-0-2 and the Atlanta players want to keep the streak alive.

"I'm sure everyone thinks like I do, that we hope the streak can keep going," said Flames coach Fred Creighton. "I sure would like to go into Montreal with it intact." Atlanta plays the Canadiens on Saturday night.

To do that, the Flames will have to beat Pittsburgh Penguins at home Friday night.

In other NHL games Wednesday, Montreal beat Detroit Red Wings 4-1, Washington Capitals defeated Pittsburgh 6-4, Minnesota North Stars thumped St. Louis Blues 9-1 and Toronto Maple Leafs downed Los Angeles Kings 4-2.

The Flames scored their first goal at 6:09 of the opening period when John Gould took a pass from Ken Houston behind the net and drilled the puck past Flyers goaltender Bernie Parent.

Tom Lysiak got the Flames' second goal at 10:11 of the same period on a power play with Bobby Clarke in the penalty box. Ken Houston scored in the last minute of the second period on a deflection of a shot by David Shand.

Right winger Guy Lafleur capped a three-goal second period with his fourth goal of the season as Montreal won just its second game in its last six starts.

Other Montreal goals came from Larry Robinson, Yvon Lambert and Pierre Larouche.

Esks Critical Of City's Rent

EDMONTON (CP) — City hall's "greed and arrogance" has forced the Edmonton Eskimos to think about moving the Canadian Football League's Western Conference final elsewhere, Eskimo general manager Norm Kimball said Wednesday.

"I've about had it right up to here," Kimball said at a news conference held to explain the club's position on the rental charge for Commonwealth Stadium.

After tough negotiations, the city's commission board rejected an Eskimo bid Wednesday and stuck with a demand to have the city receive the regular-season share of ticket sales for the higher-priced final playoff game.

Sticking with the regular agreement would give the city about $60,500.

The Eskimos have offered $40,000, about $3,000 less than the city's regular take for a sold-out game during the season.

"We have great difficulty with Norm's logic," city public affairs commissioner Alf Savage told reporters. "They're telling us to take less when everyone else would get more."

The next city council meeting is scheduled for Nov. 14, just four days before the final game against either Calgary or Winnipeg.

Kimball said: "They (the city) have made it obvious they couldn't care less whether an event like the Western final is held in Edmonton . . .

"We get absolutely no consideration for our status as a community-owned- enterprise. The city expects us to pay almost the entire operating cost and debt retirement of Commonwealth Stadium."

Western Conference president Earle Hiebert said in a telephone interview he is "100 per cent" behind Kimball's stand.

Hiebert says the conference wants the game in Edmonton but he will talk to the presidents of the five Western clubs about the situation this weekend.

Half the proceeds of the final go to the players; the remaining half is divided equally among the five Western teams.

Kimball insisted the city is driving the toughest bargain in the country, pointing out Calgary received only $20,000 for the 1975 Grey Cup game.

"And what about the rest of the league?" he said. "What will Toronto's city council say to only getting $35,000 for this year's Grey Cup when Edmonton gets $60,500 for the Western final?"

Relaxed Cats More Potent

It's harder on goaltenders, but the strategy — or lack of it — appears to produce victories.

Of late, the Cougars have generally been outshooting their Western Hockey League rivals but failing to capitalize with goals and subsequent wins.

Things were reversed Wednesday in Portland.

Cougars were outshot 43-29 but managed to come up with a 5-4 upset victory over the Portland Winter Hawks.

The win moved Cougars into first place in the Western Division, one point ahead of the Hawks and New Westminster Bruins.

Kevin Eastman, the Victoria netminder, proved to be the main stumbling block for Portland. He was unbeatable in the first period and kept the Cats in contention until the shooters found their range.

Eastman made 39 saves over-all and effectively stifled a furious rally by Hawks late in the third period as they fought to avoid losing their first game on home ice this season.

Brad Palmer led the Cougars with two goals and singles were added by Greg Adams, Sid Giroux and Torrie Robertson. Bart Yachimec, Max Kostovich, Tim Tookey and Mike Toal replied for the Winter Hawks.

In other games, Brian Propp and Ray Allison each scored three goals as Brandon Wheat Kings defeated visiting Saskatoon Blades 10-3, Mike Schneider scored with 58 seconds remaining to lift Edmonton Oil Kings to a 6-6 tie with Regina Pats and Calgary Wranglers trounced Medicine Hat Tigers, 8-3.

In Regina, the Oil Kings got the tying goal after pulling their goaltender. Steve Blue paced Edmonton with three goals, with singles coming from Dave Barr and Gerrard Jubinville.

Doyle Wankel, James Pearson, Dirk Graham, Barry Ziegler, Tim Wicijowski and Lance Davis all scored singles for the Pats, who outshot the Oil Kings 46-32 and led 4-3 after the first period. The second period ended in a 5-5 tie.

Sheldon Currie scored three goals for the Wrangers in the penalty-filled Calgary game in which referee Ian Sandercock assessed 10 of 19 minors and six of 13 majors against the Tigers. Calgary took four of six game misconducts and 93 of 163 penalty minutes.

Lions Try Rick Odom

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions have placed import defensive back Rickey Odom on a five-day trial with the Canadian Football League team.

Odom was on the National Football League roster of Kansas City Chiefs for eight games this season before being released. He began working out Tuesday with the Lions.

B.C., which has won its last three games, finishes the season here Saturday against Edmonton Eskimos.

Canadian defensive backs John Beaton and Doug Carlson suffered knee injuries in Sunday's 31-15 win in Toronto over the Argonauts and are listed as doubtful starters for the Edmonton game along with wide receiver Leon Bright, bothered by a variety of leg problems all season.

McNab Picked As Cap Coach

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bob McNab, a 14-year veteran of English League play, was named assistant coach of Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League today.

A club spokesman said McNab would begin work immediately in Europe, along with head coach Tony Waiters, in scouting players for the 1979 season.

Bobby Hull Ending On-Ice Career

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Jets announced Wednesday that Bobby Hull, the 39-year-old left winger who gave the World Hockey Association the credibility it needed to get started, has hung up his skates.

Jets president Michael Gobuty said Hull, who jumped to the WHA seven seasons ago after an outstanding career with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, feels he has played enough.

Gobuty told a news conference that Hull, who amassed a total of 1,012 goals and 988 assists in 1,623 regular-season and playoff games over 22 years in the NHL and WHA, will stay with the Jets as a vice-president.

Hull, who has been away from the Winnipeg club for the last 12 days, did not attend the news conference. But Gobuty read a statement from the Golden Jet, expressing his intention to retire as a player.

The statement also said Hull has no intention of returning to the NHL, squelching a rumor that has pursued H[illegible]ggedly ever since he sprang to the Jets in 1972 for a 10-year contract worth $2.75 million.

"I have always said that I would play hockey as long as I continued to enjoy the game," Hull's statement said.

"However, for personal reasons I have not been able to devote my full attention to the game and, therefore, in all fairness to my team-mates and management, I feel that this is the right decision for all parties.

"If I ever decide to play again, it will be with the Winnipeg Jets. Obviously, the decision to hang up my skates was not an easy one so it would be ludicrous for anyone to suggest that I am contemplating playing for another team."

The latest rumor about Hull had him going to New York Rangers to rejoin Swedish-born Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson, the sharpshooting linemates who left the Jets after last season, breaking up a dynamite combination.

But a spokesman for the NHL club denied on Tuesday that there was any attempt to lure Hull back to the league where he originally carved out a fine reputation.

"Bobby Hull does not fit into the plans of the New York Rangers," the Rangers spokesman said. "We are not interested in Hull because of his age."

Hull had missed the Jets' last five games. Sources said that in addition to his duties as a player, Hull has been under pressure from domestic matters. After 18 years of a marriage that produced five children, Hull is in the process of getting a divorce.

In his statement, Hull indicated the Jets' owners were willing to give him an extended leave of absence, but he felt that considering the team's best interests, he should refuse the offer.

"Look at my rug! I told you not to put exploding cheese down the mouseholes."

Behaving Tigers Deserve Chance

And they've proved their point: they're as good as they said they were. Maybe even better.

Prevented from playing this season in the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association league competition because of a so-called roughness feared by the other clubs, the Tigers, a team made up of East Indian-born players, were recently given a chance to show they can behave.

Tigers were allowed to play the club with the bye each Sunday in the seven-team, one-division league on an exhibition basis only. A committee made up of members of the other clubs is watching each game to see their is no undue roughness or rudeness to the referee.

So far, though it doesn't count toward the league title, Tigers have blasted Rebels 1, 6-1, Rebels 2, 11-0, Rebels 3, 6-0, and Castaways (last Sunday), 6-0. So far all the games have been clean and above board and the referees have left the field without having a heart attack or swallowing their whistles.

Clearly, the pressure is now on president Craig Wilson and the VIMFHA whose members agreed that, if the Tigers played cleanly in these exhibition games they would be allowed into the league for the second half of the season, which begins soon.

I can't see how they can refuse.

No matter how odious this trial system may seem, Tigers went along with it. They've showed they can play field hockey, both well and cleanly. But they didn't like it.

"It wasn't until less than a week before the league started this season that we were told we weren't in it," president Subhash Sharma of the Tigers Club told me in a recent interview. "I'm aware that some of the things that have happened in the past involving walkoffs by Tigers players have been wrong," he added. "But I came on the field hockey scene here in 1975 and since then we've played well and cleanly."

Subhash (whose nickname is Bash) Sharma made quite an impact on the field hockey scene here, actually. In 1975, Tigers won the league title and the playoffs and Subhash took the individual scoring title.

"For two years in a row my scoring average was over three goals a game," he told me. In one game (when Tigers beat UVic Vikings, 8-2,) he scored six goals. When Tigers beat Rebels 1 (top team in the league) recently, Subhash scored four times and he got another six in the rout of Rebels 2. His brother Surinder scored all the other goals.

Though he was scoring champion for two years, Subhash was not selected to the Island team that took the men's field hockey gold medal at the Penticton B.C. Summer Games. Four other Tigers were included in the games team but Subhash claimed he and many other East Indian players are not given a chance for rep teams because the big Rebels Club, with three teams in the league and Wilson as playing-coach, dominates everything.

"And here's the big joke," Subhash said. "Our players played clea)ly in Penticton and were never warned or anything yet Craig Wilson, the rep team's playing-coach, in one match was given two warnings and then kicked out of the game!"

Other clubs complain about the Tigers' conduct on the field but the Sharma brothers said it runs deeper than that.

"Some of our players can't speak English," Subhash explained. "They're fresh from India and they chatter away to each other and this upsets the Rebels. Perhaps they take it as abuse.

"But I'll tell you what really upsets them: the fact that we beat them!"

"Why should we, the best team on the Island, be outcasts while they act as gods saying 'maybe you can play; maybe you can't'?" asked Surinder Sharma.

"After all," Subhash pointed out, "it's a recreational sport. None of us are paid to play it. Field hockey is our national sport in India. These other guys can play golf or tennis but this is the only game we know."

It just happens that at the moment all the members of the Tigers Club are East Indians, Subhash said. But anyone is welcome to join, he said, and the club hopes to build up to two field hockey teams and eventually to branch out to include a cricket team and perhaps a soccer team.

"Our basic concern is that, no matter who plays or who wins, we should not be treated as second-class citizens, either in the country or in the field hockey league," the club president added.

"Craig Wilson has worked hard and has done a lot for field hockey on the Island but the trouble is that he doesn't want his image that Rebels are the best to come tumbling down.

"All we want is fair treatment . . . no team should be treated the way we're treated — whether it's the best team or the worst team in the league!"

RON GUIDRY
. . . it was expected

Guidry's Selection Unanimous

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — A 25-3 regular season, three post-season victories, best winning percentage in 44 years, an earned run average of 1.74, a unanimous Cy Young Award winner.

What can Ron Guidry do for an encore?

"I'm going to approach next season just like I did this one," said the soft-spoken Cajun after he became the fourth New York Yankee pitcher to capture the award.

"My goal was to help New York to the world championship—and that's what I'll be shooting for again. If I win only 15 games and they play a part in another championship, I'll have made my contribution."

However, the 28-year-old hard-throwing left-hander is aware he has a tough act to follow.

"If I lose four or five games next year, you're going to hear talk that I'm through," he said. "A season like I had comes along once in a great while. A lot of things had to fall into place."

Only one question remains for Guidry about the 1978 sesson—will he or Jim Rice of Boston Red Sox be named the American League's most valuable player?

"There can be only one," he said. "One guy will end up with a pat on the back and have to try again."

Would he mind sharing the award with Rice?

"It's fine with me—but you better clear it with Jim," Guidry said.

Finalists Meet Again

ZURICH (Reuter) — Holland and Argentina, finalists in the World Cup this year, have agreed to meet again at Berne next May 22 to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the founding of the International Football Federation, governing body of world soccer. Argentina defeated Holland 3-1 in the final at Buenos Aires last June.

Canadians Reach Finals

LAKE KARAPIRO, N.Z. (CP) — Two Canadian women's crews qualified in Thursday's repechages for the world rowing championship finals on Saturday.

The Canadian eight, bronze medallists at last year's championships in Amsterdam, covered 1,000 metres in three minutes 7.27 seconds to finish second to the current champions, East Germany (3.05.69). The Canadian women got off to a good start and led the East Germans by half a boat length until the final 100 metres.

On its time in the repechages and Wednesday's heat time, when Canada was third to the Soviet Union and East Germany, Canada is a strong favorite to take third place in the final. The other finalists are West Germany, Bulgaria and the United States.

The other Canadian crew to reach the finals was the women's coxed four, which made up half a length on New Zealand to take second, and the last place in Saturday's final. Canada finished in a time of 3.38.52, less than 1½ seconds behind the first-place Americans. Other finalists are the Soviet Union, Romania, Bulgaria, and East Germany.

The Russians, East Germans and Bulgarians have qualified crews for all six women's finals and Romania has five boats racing on Saturday. The East Germans have also placed all eight of their men's crews in Saturday's semi-final round.

Canada has one more women's crew in Saturday's final. The coxless pair of Betty Craig of Brockville, Ont., and Susan Antoft of Halifax, received a bye through to the final because they were bronze medalists last year.

One men's crew from Canada has qualified for Saturday's semi-finals. Tim Britton-Foster, of Toronto, and Tim Storm, of St. Catharines, Ont., were a surprising second in the pairs in 7.08.19 eliminating crews from the Soviet Union and Bulgaria. Ireland won the repechage event with a late charge that took them past Canada in 7.06.97.

The coxed pair of Robin Catherall, and David Orr, of Vancouver and Cox Chris Marshall, of Brockville, Ont., were fourth and last this afternoon (Thursday) in 8.02.57. Czechoslovakia was first in 6.38.92. Canada's coxless four was fourth and last to finish in 6.57.08. The Soviet Union was first in 6.26.35.

PERFECT 300 GAME PROVIDED BONUS

Sheldon Nipp hit the headlines last week for a single game but his series also provided a bonus.

Nipp, who sandwiched a perfect 300 game between a 171 start and a last-game 169 effort, collected men's tenpin laurels during the fourth week of the 16th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest with his 640 series in the Northridge League.

Lorna Pollock emerged with the women's award during the same week with a well-balanced 200-188-196 — 584 series in the Ladies Commercial League.

Both series were bowled at Mayfair Lanes.

Volleyball Leaders Maintaining Paces

Spectrum and Victoria High came up with victories Wednesday to maintain their leads in the Greater Victoria High School Volleyball League.

Spectrum topped Oak Bay 15-5, 15-10 to keep a slim lead over runner-up Lambrick in the boys' division. Lambrick kept pace with a 15-5, 15-9 win over Reynolds.

In other boys' games, Mt. Douglas dropped Parkland 15-7, 15-11; Victoria tripped Claremont 15-7, 15-10 and Dunsmuir, which has announced its withdrawal from the league, forfeited to Esquimalt.

Victoria High boosted an unbeaten record to 9-0 atop the girls' division with a 15-5, 15-9 triumph over Claremont.

In other games, second-place Spectrum nudged Oak Bay 16-14, 15-11; Parkland rallied for a 4-15, 15-9, 15-9 win over Mt. Douglas and Reynolds managed to edge Lambrick, 7-15, 15-10, 15-7.

Esquimalt Clips Bucks

Rob Coldwell, Rugs Pritchard, Art Webster and Randy Krantz scored for Leafs while Bill Pettinger replied for the Bucks.

Goaltenders Reg Wonnenberg of Esquimalt and Dave Andrews of Western Homes each made 30 saves.

Ai-Yu Tu Holds Two-Stroke Lead

HANAYASHIKI, Japan (AP) — Taiwanese pro Ai-Yu Tu shot a one-under-par 73 today and held a two-stroke lead over leading U.S. woman money-winner Nancy Lopez after the second round of the $125,000 Mizuno golf tournament.

Tu, after a 68 on Wednesday, had four birdies, one bogey and a double bogey for a 36-hole total of 141, seven under par on the par-74 Hanayashiki Country Club course.

Title Defence Set

43 Declared Free Agents

NEW YORK (AP) — It is a measure of the quality of this year's pool of baseball free agents that no team will suffer terribly from the loss of its unsigned players.

In the first two years of free agency, two clubs were decimated by the players' newfound freedom. Oakland A's, a dynasty in the early 1970s, lost six star players in 1976. One year later, Chicago White Sox lost two players who had a combined slugging total of 61 home runs and 184 runs batted in.

After losing infielders Bert Campaneris and Sal Bando, outfielders Don Baylor and Joe Rudi, catcher Gene Tenace and relief ace Rollie Fingers, the A's hit rock bottom in the American League in 1977, even finishing behind Seattle, a first-year expansion club.

The White Sox battled for the AL West Division flag in 1977, but lost Richie Zisk and Oscar Gamble to free agency. Without their power, the White Sox floundered this season, beating only Oakland and Seattle in the division.

As of midnight Wednesday, the cut-off point, 43 players had declared their intentions of becoming free agents and offering themselves in Friday's re-entry draft. Excluding pitchers and designated hitters, only two of these players were regular starters for their clubs in 1978—Pete Rose of Cincinnati and Darrell Evans of San Francisco.

The Giants will miss Evans' 20 home runs, but not his spotty infield play. They may get along next year with Bill Madlock moving to third and Rob Andrews taking over second base. They also felt they can get along without right-hander Jim Barr in the starting rotation.

Los Angeles Dodgers, may be suffering the most as they may lose ace lefthander Tommy John, who won 37 games the last two seasons, and two important subs, versatile Lee Lacy and speedy Billy North.

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner is reported to be is interested in the 35-year-old John.

RIDE & POWER:
The Chevette won't ride like a Datsun 210, because it doesn't have the 210's independent front, 4-link coil rear suspension. And it's power to weight ratio is less than that of the 210.

MANOEUVERABILITY & MODEL CHOICE:
The Omni and Horizon can't turn in the 210's 32.8 ft. circle. And they only offer 2 different body styles versus 4 for the 210.

COMFORT & CARGO ROOM:
You get 3.0" more legroom in a new 210 than the 40.0" in Corolla. And Corolla's cargo area is less than the roomy 9.0 cubic feet in the 210.

All 79 Datsuns are covered by the Datsun 6 Year Anti-Rust Plan.

ECONOMY:

WHERE OTHER ECONOMY CARS LEAVE OFF, THE '79 DATSUN 210 KEEPS RIGHT ON GOING.

The Datsun 210 – new for '79. Put it all together for yourself. Sit in it. Stretch out. You'll find you have more head and shoulder room than you'd have in a GLC.

Ride in it. With an independent front suspension, a 4 link coil rear suspension, and wider track, you'll be enjoying a much smoother ride than you'd have in either a GLC or a Chevette. Park it. You'll need a lot less turning space for this than you'd need for an Omni or Horizon. Drive it. You'll go at least 150 kilometres* further on a tank of gasoline than you would in a VW Rabbit.

The new Datsun 210 comes with an impressive list of standard features, too. And Datsun dares to put its six year anti-corrosion policy in writing. The new Datsun. See it at your local dealer.

SKATERS FORCED TO TRAIN IN EUROPE

Program Skids on Placid Ice

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian speed skaters have been forced to train in Inzell, West Germany, because of poor ice conditions at Lake Placid, N.Y., and the added $10,000 expense might jeopardize the national program.

"We have enough money until Christmas but the world championships are in February," Tom Overend, technical director of the Canadian Amateur Speed Skating Association, said Wednesday.

Overend said there are no artificial racing tracks in Canada and in the past the national team has trained in Europe. The Lake Placid track was built last year and the association anticipated travel and accommodation savings by training there.

"There was one built for the 1975 Canada Winter Games in Lethbridge, Alta., but it is not being maintained."

Estimated costs for an artificial 400-metre track range from $1 million and $2 million. Existing hockey rink surfaces are not suitable because they can accommodate only 100-metre tracks.

The entire budget of the national team is $66,000 but that included training arrangements in New York State where the accommodation is cheap and the travel limited, Overend said.

"We now are spending money at a faster rate than we thought we would when the budget was made last year."

Overend said the association has applied for emergency financing from Sport Canada, the federal agency responsible for amateur sport.

"But we couldn't wait to find out whether we would get the funds," he added. "The worst that could happen. . .is to cut back and eliminate programs."

The association sent 30 skaters to Lake Placid on Oct. 18 and Overend said they had skated six times in two weeks because of unseasonably high temperatures and problems with the refrigerating plant.

The association can't afford to send the junior team to Europe and they must wait for conditions to improve. Overend said 16 other skaters from across Canada are heading for Lake Placid this weekend at their own expense to train.

"They're the big losers."

Other members are Craig Webster of Regina, Cam Tipping of Edmonton, Jaeques Thibault of Quebec City, Don Bumstead of Calgary and Pat Durnin and Kathy Vogt of Winnipeg.

'Silence Bid Tried'

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto lawyer has described a meeting between Douglas Laidlaw, a lawyer for Canadian Dredge and Dock Ltd., and Joseph Pomerant, a lawyer representing the company's former president, as an attempt to suppress evidence and obstruct justice.

Alan Lenczner told an Ontario Supreme Court jury Wednesday that in the course of the meeting in the fall of 1974, Pomerant tried to trade off Robert Schneider's silence in a dredging fraud-conspiracy investigation in return for Canadian Dredge and Dock's buying Schneider's shares in the company, valued at $200,000.

Canadian Dredge and Dock and its chairman, Hugh Martin, are among 11 individuals and nine companies charged with defrauding public agencies in Canada of $4,279,000 by rigging bids on dredging contracts between 1969 and 1975. During the trial, Schneider has testified for the Crown.

Pomerant and Schneider were called by Laidlaw as defence witnesses for Canadian Dredge and Dock and Martin.

Lenczner said he was Laidlaw's junior law partner at the time and that he had been asked by Laidlaw to sit in on a meeting held at Pomerant's request.

Lenczner said Pomerant raised the matter of Schneider's recouping his 35-per-cent ownership in Canadian Dredge and Dock. Pomerant "said Schneider could say things that might be harmful to the company," he said.

"If he got his investment back, those things might remain unsaid," Lenczner said.

Laidlaw asked if that was a threat and Pomerant replied: " 'You and I are experienced counsel. There is no need to see it that way,' " Lenczner said.

Lenczner said Laidlaw concluded the meeting by saying: " 'If I were Jesus Christ himself, I would not make a deal with you.' "

Pomerant angrily denied that the meeting had been as Lenczner described it, or that Lenczner had accurately described the conduct or purpose of the meeting.

In cross-examination by Crown Attorney Roderick McLeod, Lenczner said he had not thought about reporting to police what he saw as Pomerant's attempt to suppress evidence:

"It was a suggestion that was made. We (refused) . . . that was the end of it."

Violent Windstorm Fosters Fellowship

GRANDE CACHE, Alta. (CP) — Winds gusting to more than 100 kilometres an hour tore roofs from buildings but brought the citizens of this nine-year-old town together as never before, said witnesses to a storm which began Tuesday and ended Wednesday.

"No one likes to see a storm, but it was wonderful the way the whole town pulled together," said Noel Eddy, editor and publisher of the Grande Cache Mountaineer.

"As soon as that happened, the miners from the coal mine were there helping to move the furniture," Eddy said.

A fire spread from the town dump and another started at a nearby golf course, but volunteers quickly extinguished both.

Property damage was high, however, RCMP Sgt. Floyd McLennan said Wednesday debris was being cleaned up and the town, located 370 kilometres west of Edmonton, returning to normal.

'Easier to Travel as Terrorist. . .'

OTTAWA (CP) — N. L. Masimini, an African leader who slipped into Canada with U.S. papers, says he had an easier time travelling as a so-called terrorist than as official representative of the small South African republic of Trans kei.

The trouble is that Canada and other Western countries don't recognize Transkei — they say it's little more than a puppet of South Africa. They won't accept his Transkei diplomatic passport for visa purposes.

So Masimini said Wednesday he travels in Canada and the United States with U.S. residence papers he got when he was an African freedom fighter — "probably called in South Africa a terrorist."

The 47-year-old Transkeian "minister at large for the western hemisphere" was in Ottawa Wednesday to publicize his country's campaign for Western recognition and economic support.

He came even though the Canadian embassy in Washington refused to give him a visa to enter this country on his Transkeian diplomatic passport.

Transkei, a nation of three million people in southeast Africa, gained independence from South Africa two years ago. It was part of a plan in which South Africa was trying to divide parts of the country into so-called tribal homelands while retaining much of southern Africa for the governing whites.

Transkei severed all diplomatic relations with South Africa a year ago but Western countries such as Canada, Britain and the United States remain unconvinced.

Masimini, who travelled the world as a representative of black African liberation movements in the 1960s, is not giving up. He was posted to Washington last year to drum up support for the Transkei in the U.S. and Canada.

"The world has condemned us for the sins South Africa committed against humanity," Masimini said. "The world has never given us our day in court."

OTTAWA COUNCIL FLUSHES AWAY THREAT TO CUT FEDERAL WATER

OTTAWA (CP) — City council has decided not to cut off the federal government's water after all.

The city and what Mayor Lorry Greenberg styles "The Feds" have been feuding for several months over the amount of money paid to the city in lieu of taxes for the vast array of federal facilities in the city.

Under federal legislation, the senior government does not pay the taxes other businesses or enterprises pay on land it uses here or anywhere else in the country. Instead, it gives grants — grants considerably short of what normal taxes would be.

The city fathers — who now receive about $30 million annually from the federal government — think they are being short-changed by about that same amount every year.

So, last spring and over Greenberg's objections, the city sent an ultimatum to the federal government that if it didn't come up with the additional money — or at least show some good and strong intentions in that direction — the city would cut off those services for which it is responsible.

This later proved something of a hollow threat when the city solicitor and the environmental manager ventured that the city was required by other laws to maintain services on which public health and welfare depend.

Nevertheless, Finance Minister Jean Chretien wrote the city this week — two months after the ultimatum deadline — to say he would like to accommodate the city to some degree, despite fiscal restraint guidelines, and would seek cabinet support for a bill permitting the federal government to pay the city more than it now pays.

Greenberg observed Wednesday at a meeting of the council that, while Chretien's letter held out little hope for a tax-grant increase, it at least seemed written in the right spirit. Council, therefore, decided to remove its threat.

TRANSLATION DELAY ASKED

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada says it is swamped by the task of translating all its aircraft instructions into French for francophone pilots, and asked Wednesday for an extension on the deadline set by a Quebec Superior Court injunction almost two years ago.

Air Canada lawyers told Mr. Justice Alphone Barbeau they would call several witnesses in the next few days to explain the complexity of the work, which is being undertaken by about 20 translators.

Before starting to translate the flight manuals themselves, a lawyer explained, a lexicon of technical terms had to be prepared for uniformity's sake.

Air Canada must also receive approval from the federal transport department before the French manuals can be used, the lawyer said.

Air Canada has appealed the injunction, handed down by Chief Justice Jules Deschenes of Superior Court in September, 1976, but the chief justice said several weeks ago that the court would reserve the right to grant or reject any applications for an extension in deadlines.

RCMP Letters 'Not Based on Fact'

OTTAWA (CP) — Letters written by the RCMP for solicitors-general "very often" were not based on fact, retired RCMP commissioner W. L. Higgitt testified Wednesday.

Higgitt told a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing that the Mounties would first brief the ministers on the facts, then draft a letter for them that wasn't factual.

"That is such a letter," Higgitt maintained, referring to one sent by solicitor-general Warren Allmand to Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham).

Lawrence had passed along a constituent's complaint that the RCMP were opening his mail.

The Allmand reply said Allmand had been assured by the RCMP that it wasn't their practice to intercept the private mail of anyone.

Higgitt last Feb. 1 told a Quebec inquiry that he was almost positive the RCMP hadn't drafted the letter. Last week he admitted that the force had.

Under cross-examination b Raymond Barakett, Allmand's lawyer, the 60-year-old Higgitt refused to back away from his contention that Allmand was aware the Mounties opened private mail. Allmand has denied this.

Higgitt at first contended that the letter was correct because it wasn't "a practice" of the force to intercept mail. He said figures given the royal commission showed only about 70 instances of mail-opening by the force.

He also denied that the letter was an assurance to Allmand from the RCMP that it didn't open mail.

Higgitt said it was an assurance to Lawrence, not to Allmand.

Royal commissioner Donald Rickerd said it was a "double assurance" not only to a member of Parliament but to a constituent.

"A triple assurance," said Barakett, adding Allmand to the list.

Barakett asked Higgitt whether he was suggesting the RCMP told Allmand the opposite of what was stated in the letter.

"I do not recall any such conversation," Higgitt replied. The letter was written in 1973 while he was still commissioner.

Allmand testified last February that the letter was drafted for him by Michael Dare, director-general of the RCMP security service.

Higgitt testified again he can't recall telling any solicitor-general the Mounties opened mail but he is sure the subject must have come up in briefings.

He reiterated earlier testimony that at one point, mail-opening operations needed the prior approval of John Starnes, who was director-general of the RCMP security service from 1969 to 1973.

Yves Fortier, representing former solicitor-general Jean-Pierre Goyer, then referred Higgitt to testimony by Starnes last winter that he had had no knowledge the Mounties opened mail.

Higgitt said he had only learned in the last three or four days that Starnes had said this.

'Winds of Cynicism Sweeping Canada'

OTTAWA (CP) — A selfish and negative mood seems to have swept the country leaving people preoccupied only with their own problems, Senator Al Graham, Liberal party president, said Wednesday.

"Whether it be in the media, in the home or on the streets, a profound sense of cynicism regarding our country, its institutions and its people is spreading throughout the nation," Graham said.

Society seems to be polarizing around "anti" groups such as anti-labor, anti-French, anti-government or anti-business, he said.

"I often wonder if there is anyone left who is for anything in our society other than his own self interest."

Graham emphasized he was not only referring to criticism of the Liberal government, which has fallen behind the Progressive Conservative in the latest public opinion poll.

Canadians are cynical about all governments, businesses, unions and law enforcement agencies.

"They are cynical about almost everything."

More and more Canadians are adopting a personal philosophy of "me first and the Devil take the hindmost."

Everyone acts as though greater restraint and greater productivity should be practised by someone else, he said.

While excessive optimism would be equally dangerous, nevertheless there is a distinction between constructive and destructive criticism.

Certain unnamed media sources have contributed to a demoralizing effect on society by force-feeding the public with a constant diet of utter negativism, Graham said.

"I am not advocating a cessation of criticism," he said. "What is required is constructive comment — not demoralizing rhetoric."

He urged Canadians to put aside their regional and partisan differences.

"It is time for us to cast off our current pessimism and renew our faith in our country and its future," he said.

Suburban Montreal Housing Rebounds

MONTREAL (CP) — Houses in the largely English-speaking West Island suburbs registered price increases among the highest in Canada during the past six months, says a national survey issued Wednesday by Royal Trust Co.

A typical three-bedroom bungalow in Beaconsfield jumped in price 14 per cent to $41,000 between February and October, while a detached two-storey house also rose 14 per cent to $68,500.

The only cites in Canada with price increases greater than those on the West Island were Calgary and Edmonton, says the survey, compiled by the trust company's real estate division.

Probe Counsel Won't Say If Alleged Break-In on List

TORONTO (CP) — Files containing the membership list and minutes of meetings of a leftist Greek exile group were stolen during a 1971 break-in at an east-end office, a former member says.

The group, Friends of Pak, was headed by Andreas Pandreou, who was a York University economics professor at the time and now heads a socialist opposition party in Greece. Friends of Pak has since disbanded.

"One morning the office doors were broken open and the files were missing," former member Gus Koutroubis said Wednesday. "We reported it to Metro (Metropolitan Toronto) police who came and looked around.

"But we never heard from them again."

Pak is a Greek acronym for pan Hellenic Anti-Dictator Movement, an organization formed to oppose the military junta then in power in Greece.

Koutroubis said members suspected a political motive for the robbery because only files were taken and valuable equipment belonging to a weekly newspaper published at the office was left behind.

"We figured out what was going on, but we did not know if it was our (Greek) consulate, agents of the dictatorship or the RCMP who broke in."

John Howard, chief counsel to the federal royal commission into alleged RCMP wrongdoing, refused to comment on whether the commission was investigating the break-in.

Mr. Justice David McDonald, chairman of the commission, said he had not heard of the break-in until Wednesday, but that it was possible the incident could have been among public complaints the commission had received.

Mr. Justice McDonald said Howard would know whether the break-in was being investigated by the commission.

4-Wheel Lada Import Eyed

TORONTO (CP) — Lada Cars of Canada Inc. says it has ordered 2,500 Soviet four-wheel drive utility vehicles for delivery next year if they can meet Canadian emission and safety standards.

The order is part of a $26.5 million deal that includes 7,500 of the Soviet-built Lada automobiles.

Halloween Arson Eyed In Olds Fire

Chopper attack on blaze

OLDS, Alta. (CP) — Some residents of this central Alberta town suspect that Halloween pranksters were responsible for starting a fire Wednesday that resulted in millions of dollars in property damage.

But RCMP and town officials said the cause of the fire, which destroyed three grain elevators and the town's winter recreational facilities, is still under investigation.

RCMP S.Sgt. Earl Dungate estimated the replacement value to the town's arena, curling rink, agricultural building, grain elevators and repairs to three houses damaged by fire at between $7 million and $10 million.

However, Hugh Horner, deputy premier and the minister responsible for disaster services, said the damage bill will likely total between $4 million and $5 million.

Bill Edgar, mayor of this community of 4,000 about 60 kilometres south of Red Deer, said town council is to meet today to discuss matters related to the four-hour, wind-swept fire which broke out about 5 a.m. local time.

The mayor said he and town councillors were aware of the feelings of those residents who suspected that the fire was started by Halloween pranksters.

One who blamed the pranksters was store owner Burgess Fullerton.

"They were setting fires all over town. The police just could not keep up with it."

Dungate said RCMP and fire officials were kept busy Tuesday night trying to contain Halloween pranks, including the burning of hay bales.

Edgar said the fire department had responded to 16 burning-bales calls up to two hours before the blaze erupted.

The mayor said the town had one more debenture payment on the arena before it was paid off. The previous arena was also destroyed by fire, in 1959.

Edgar said the town will likely rebuild the arena but he did not know about plans by the curling club or the agricultural society to replace their facilities.

The grain elevators destroyed belonged to Pioneer Grain Co., United Grain Growers and the Alberta wheat pool.

Firefighters from several surrounding communities joined the town's small volunteer firefighting crew in combating the fire. With the help of a helicopter water bomber, the crews brought the fire under control by mid-morning.

Dolores Heinzig, who lives across the street from the arena, said it was lucky that her family escaped injuries.

"I heard a roar at 5:15 a.m. When I looked out, all I could see were flames around the edge of the arena."

She said damage to her house and two adjoining homes was relatively minor, thanks to the help of firefighters and neighbors who brought out garden hoses.

Some residents, such as Alice Shewchuk and Dorothy Nourse, suggested that the town should ban Halloween for older children.

More Hints Surface On Identity of 'Mr. X'

MONTREAL (CP) — The mystery of "Mr. X," the sixth person involved in the 1970 kidnapping of British Trade Commissioner James Cross, continued to unfold Wednesday, with more hints from the media about his identity.

CBC News said the participant in the Front de Liberation du Quebec kidnapping is a 30-year-old English-speaking native of Great Britain now living with his wife and child in a suburb on Montreal's south shore.

The local CBC-TV station said it knew the identity of Mr. X, who they said immigrated to Canada in 1952, but was withholding his name because "he has not yet been accused of any crime."

The daily La Presse says Mr. X, now a teacher, was a militant student at Montreal's McGill University who participated in demonstrations by nationalist groups in 1968 in attempts to transform McGill into a French-speaking institution.

La Presse says he was, apparently until recently, involved in the Marxist group En Lutte (In Struggle), which at one time was led by FLQ member Charles Gagnon. The group has since voiced pro-federalist sympathies.

The French-language paper adds that two police officers went to England last year to question Cross and his wife in an attempt to get the diplomat to identify Mr. X from several photographs.

And La Presse says he may not have been the only individual who participated in the kidnappings of Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte who was not brought to trial, but that police know of at least another dozen persons against whom they had no evidence.

Quebec Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard acknowledged this week that Montreal police advised his department more than a year ago that a sixth man was involved in the kidnapping and detention of Cross, but that investigators had not been able to gather enough evidence to charge him.

The minister added that Tuesday's Supreme Court of Canada judgment limiting the activities of a Quebec inquiry into RCMP activities may prevent Quebec from launching into the kidnap crisis.

In Ottawa, British High Commissioner Sir John Ford said he hadn't heard about a sixth person involved in the kidnapping and couldn't comment as "it all happened before I got here; it's like past history to me."

News of the existence of Mr. X was revealed in an article by Marc Laurendeau in the monthly L'Actualite, after he conducted interviews in Paris with two of the Cross kidnappers, exiles Jacques and Louise Cossette-Trudel.

"It was better, in my opinion, to say nothing at all than to say what the CBC did," he said, adding it was not his intention to put the media on a chase for the identity of Mr. X.

Although he said his goal in revealing the existence of the sixth man was "to once and for all have the light shed on this affair," Laurendeau would not provide any further information.

"Everything I wrote in my L'Actualite article is in police dossiers . . . it would be better for the media to await public investigation of the events of the October Crisis than to be speculating on who Mr. X is."

In his article Laurendeau said the Cossette-Trudels informed him Paul Rose, serving a life term for the killing of Laporte, was not with the minister at the time of his death.

Also imprisoned in 1970 were Paul Rose's younger brother Jacques, charged with complicity in the murder of Laporte and now free on parole, Francis Simard, also serving life for murder, and Bernard Lortie, serving 20 years for the Laporte kidnap.

Four men, two wives and a child — among them the Cossette-Trudels — were allowed safe passage to Cuba after they agreed to release Cross. They went to Paris in 1974.

The Cossette-Trudels have apparently broken ranks with their fellow exiles and, homesick and eager to return to their native province, have been talking to journalists and writing letters to Quebec government authorities.

PC RAKES GOV'T ACCOUNTS

OTTAWA (CP) — If a private corporation kept its financial records the way the federal government does, "it would be called to account," Harvie Andre (PC—Calgary Centre) said Wednesday in the Commons.

Despite calls for reform by Auditor-General J. J. Macdonell, the federal government continues to overstate its assets and understate its expenditures, Andre said.

"When will the government take action on the recommendations of the auditor-general and ensure that the public accounts are a true and accurate statement?"

Finance Minister Jean Chretien replied that the government has complied with a number of Macdonell's recommendations, including his call for appointment of a comptroller-general to oversee day-to-day federal expenditures.

Volume I of the Public Accounts of Canada, tabled Tuesday in the Commons, contained a statement by Macdonell, who said he had some reservations about certain federal accounting policies "which, in my view, affect the fairness of the information presented in the financial statements."

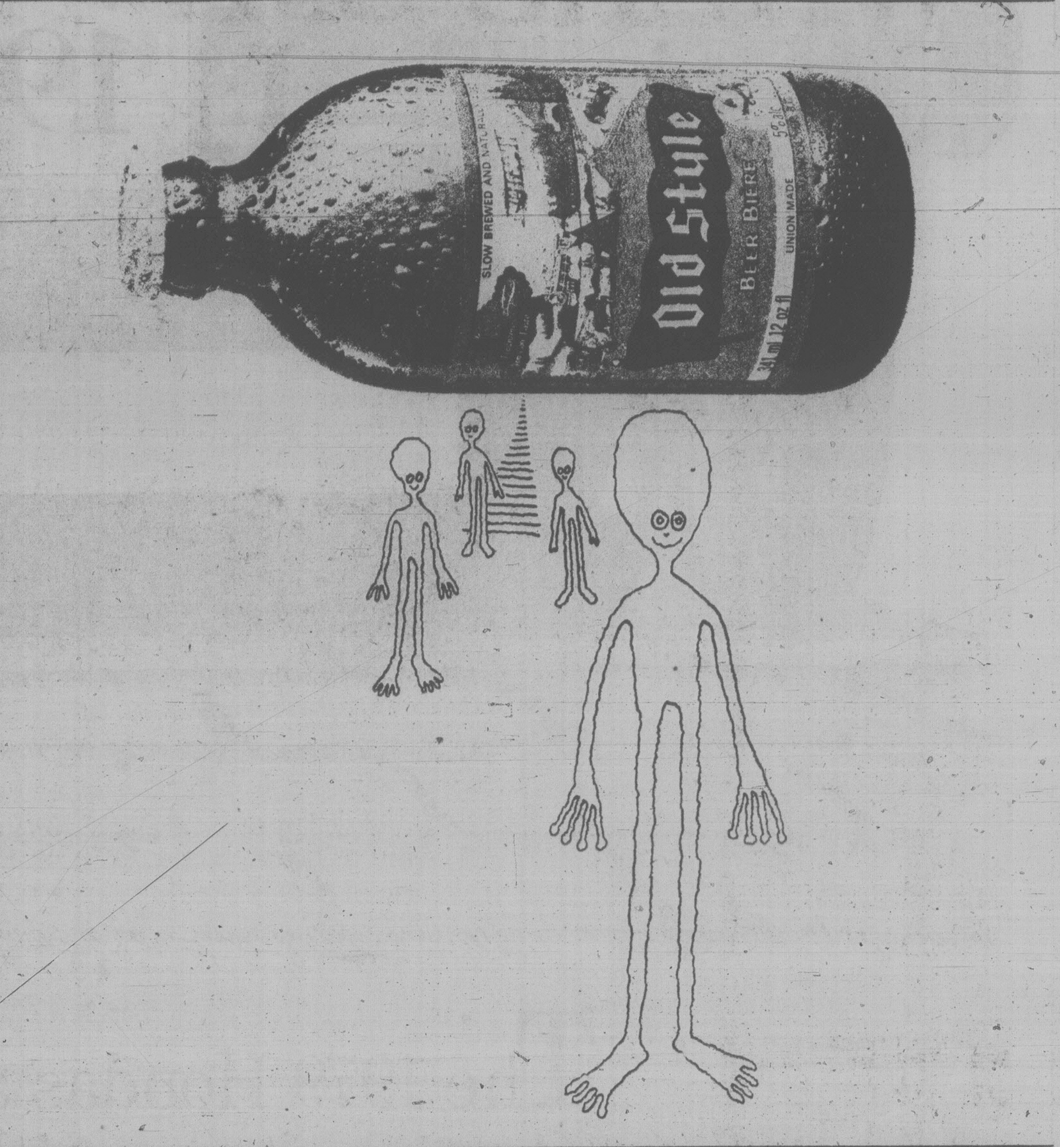
Macdonell criticized the government for excluding certain Crown corporations and loans to developing countries from the central record of accounts and Andre echoed his criticism.

Chretien replied that all Crown corporations are accountable to Parliament.

Macdonell said his reservations related to "balances designated to be deleted from the accounts but reported as assets and liabilities, the effect of excluding certain Crown corporations from the government accounting entity and the reported value of certain loans, investments and advances."

Macdonell suggested it is inaccurate to describe some expenditures as loans and investments because they will never be repaid.

Chretien said Wednesday the government is studying Macdonell's recommendations and continues to work towards improvement of its accounting system.



FRENCH LINK DENIED

MONTREAL (CP) — The France-Canada Federation says allegations the French government is interfering in Canadian politics are unfounded.

In a press release Wednesday, the president of the Canadian group, Bernard Wilhelm of Regina, said the federation "refutes charges by Tom Cossitt, Conservative member of Parliament for Leeds, that France is pumping secret funds into Canada to support Quebec independence."

Previous "press campaigns" suggesting French spies were contacting radicals here and aiding the only French-language daily in the Maritimes, Moncton's L'Evangeline, fizzled like "wet firecrackers," he added.

The federation asks all Canadians to ignore the recent campaign of "anti-French tittle-tattle.

The group says it has 4,000 members across Canada.

$225,000 Kidnap Offer, Court Told

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Chalifoux, who has admitted helping in the abduction of credit union employee Charles Marion, said Wednesday he was offered a part in another kidnapping by Claude Valence.

"Valence told me there was a man to go get, and it would pay $225,000," Chalifoux testified before a Quebec Superior Court jury hearing the trial of Claude Valence and his wife Jeanne.

"He showed me the picture of a man in a magazine but I never . . . gave him an answer." Chalifoux did not name the intended victim.

Chalifoux told the court earlier this week he was offered $5,000 by Valence to "pick up a package" — which turned out to be Marion.

Marion was kidnapped Aug. 6, 1977, and released 82 days later after a $50,000 ransom was paid by his family.

But Chalifoux insisted Wednesday: "I didn't realize I'd participated in the kidnapping until I saw newspaper reports on the ransom demand three days after it was done."

"That's when I realized I had been lied to," the heavy equipment operator told the jury.

Chalifoux said he began to have doubts about the scheme when he and a man called Pierre — whom he identified in court as Michel De Varenne, another accused in the case — whisked Marion away and tied him to a tree in the woods.

"I thought it was funny but figured we might be taking Marion somewhere so he could give us the package," he explained.

Chalifoux said he didn't go to police because "I was scared my life would be in danger."

Explaining why he had mailed two communiques and made ransom telephone calls for Valence and De Varenne, he said: "I always felt that if I didn't do what they wanted, something could happen to me."

Under cross-examination, Chalifoux agreed he had accepted $2,500 from Valence because his fear for the man faded after "the whole affair was over and Marion was freed."

Chalifoux is testifying under protection of the court, meaning his testimony cannot be used against him during his own trial on kidnapping and extortion charges.

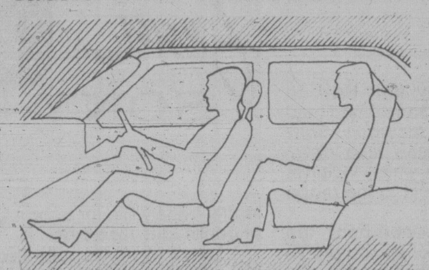
IT'S TAKING OVER WHERE BMW AND MERCEDES LEFT OFF.

Just because BMW and Mercedes have abandoned the under $10,000 car buyer, there's no reason for that car buyer to feel abandoned.

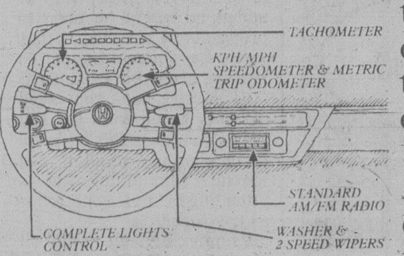
The new Honda Accord 4-door sedan more than makes up for any void that they left. Priced at just over $7,000 it is probably the single most significant new import luxury performance sedan to be affordably introduced, in years.

The philosophy behind the new Accord sedan is the same philosophy that has made the Accord hatchback such a phenomenal success. That is, that driving from point A to B in luxury and comfort shouldn't bore the pants off you. And that the fit, the finish, and the attention to detail should be better than any car anywhere near its price.

Inside the new 4-door Accord, you'll find yourself seated in firm, yet comfortable, fully reclining fabric bucket seats. The rear seat passengers sit in contoured seats with built-in, moulded headrests. With your hands never leaving the steering wheel you have complete control of the headlights, parking lights, dimmer switch, windshield washers and wipers, including the intermittent wiper control for light drizzle. In front of you is a tachometer, a trip odometer and lights that tell you if any of the doors aren't closed or if a tail light is burnt out, or if the oil or oil filter need changing or the tires need rotation.



Other standard features include an AM/FM radio. A remote control for the rear door locks, for the protection of your children. And an interior trunk release which opens up a trunk that holds more than enough luggage for four.



Mechanically, the Accord has a balance of engineering features that bring out its performance capabilities with a minimum of fuss. The transversely mounted, 1600 cc. engine has a transistorized CDI ignition system, for longer plug life and reduced maintenance and operating costs.

Accord's front wheel drive improves traction and gives the driver a more positive and direct feel of road conditions. Rack and pinion steering provides precise, accurate control. And independent MacPherson Strut suspension on all four wheels delivers a comfortable ride while keeping the wheels firmly on the ground, even when you're driving hard over a variety of road surfaces.

And every 1979 Honda, whether it's an Accord or Civic, comes with a 3 year warranty against rust perforation due to corrosion. Ask your Honda dealer for complete details.

The new Honda Accord sedan and the Honda Accord hatchback. Both of them are somewhat of a rarity these days.

Federal Deficit 'Primary Concern'

MURDER REMAINS A FAMILY AFFAIR

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of murders in 1977 rose 1.6 per cent from the previous year, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

The increase was far below the average annual increase of about 10 per cent in murders in recent years and occurred in the first full calendar year after Parliament abolished the death penalty in July, 1976.

The western provinces had the highest murder rates in 1977, Saskatchewan leading the way at 4.70 per 100,000 population. Prince Edward Island had no murders last year.

Quebec had more murders — 179 — than any other province but the rate was near the national average at 2.85.

Suspects and victims were related or acquainted in more than six of every 10 homicides with domestic homicides accounting for nearly one-third of the victims and only 68 homicides occurred during commission of another crime.

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial finance ministers said today the federal deficit must be a primary concern for Finance Minister Jean Chretien as he formulates a new budget.

At the opening of a federal-provincial finance meeting, some ministers said the federal government faces tough choices as it prepares a budget to deal with a sluggish economy.

Chretien has promised a budget by mid-November and said earlier this week that he will make up his mind on a precise date following talks with the provincial ministers.

Some private sector groups and the government's own economic advisory body, the Economic Council of Canada, have suggested tax cuts to stimulate the economy. But the government is already running a record deficit on spending this year, a factor federal officials have to bear in mind.

Ontario Treasurer Frank Miller said as the conference opened that the deficit will have to be the chief concern of the government. But he added he might be open to proposals of tax cuts if they would have a real impact on stirring economic expansion.

"I haven't been convinced tax cuts would work but I'm young enough in this business to change my mind if I'm wrong," said Miller, who is attending his first conference as treasurer.

Premier Bennett Campbell of Prince Edward Island, also his province's finance minister, said he thinks Chretien does not have much choice but to go for a "restraint-kind of budget."

Today's meeting is the fouth since Chretien became finance minister last fall. It follows by a day an inconclusive meeting of first ministers on constitutional reform and precedes a meeting of first ministers on the economy later this month.

The finance ministers were dealing with progress on government spending restraints agreed to in the first ministers' economic meeting in February.

As part of its spending restraint plan, the federal government said Sept. 8 it would cut transfer payments to the provinces by about 3.5 per cent or $370 million.

The government has little room to manoeuvre because it expects to run up a $11.8 billion cash deficit this year. There will have to be further spending cuts if the government hopes to keep that deficit down and cut taxes.

Raids Follow Strike-Pay Fraud Claim

MONTREAL (CP) — Police confirmed today they have raided the offices of the Confederation of National Trade Unions after receiving complaints that strikers at Robin Hood Multifoods Ltd. were defrauded of their strike pay.

A police spokesman said the raids, staged last week, were part of an investigation begun after "there were complaints about fraud regarding cheques paid to the strikers."

The spokesman declined to say who had complained, or who had allegedly defrauded the strikers, who were then affiliated with the CNTU. No charges have been laid.

Unclaimed UIC Cheque Poser

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance officials will investigate why between 100,000 and 150,000 unemployment insurance cheques were not picked up by jobless persons during the recent postal strike.

Employment Minister Bud Cullen and officials said this Wednesday after Conservative Tom Cossitt said in the Commons the high number of unclaimed cheques indicates a large number of fraudulent unemployment insurance claims.

Cullen rejected the suggestion, saying there probable are other reasons for the fact that the cheques were not picked up at special distribution centres established across the country during the strike that lasted more than a week in most places.

He said most insurance claimants probably were back at work or were unaware that cheques were being distributed during the postal shutdown.

Cossitt sought assurances from Cullen that a thorough investigation will be made to determine why cheques were not picked up and that prosecutions will be laid in case of fraud.

Later, a department spokesman said a routine investigation will begin into the unclaimed cheques three weeks from their date of issue.

Department investigators would first determine which cheques had not been claimed because of sickness or other legitimate reasons.

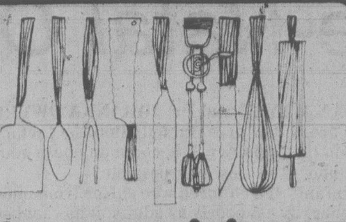
Scarsdale Diet Hazardous?

By MARIAN BURROS
Washington Post

FOOD & nutrition



The Scarsdale diet is making dramatic inroads. Dr. Herman Tarnower, a cardiologist and internist who practises in Scarsdale, N.Y., started giving out the diet to his patients several years ago.

He says he doesn't know how it got so popular. In the last two months his office has received 5,000 letters from all over the country and around the world.

The Scarsdale diet has become the rage just like others that promise quick and painless weight loss.

First it was word of mouth. Then, last July, a New York newspaper wrote a story about all the people in that affluent Westchester suburb who were on the diet: "The Scarsdale Diet: If It's Friday, It Must Be Spinach." Put the word "diet" in the headline and a wide readership is assured. After all, Americans spend $10 billikon a year in quest of thinner selves.

By September, the diet had made its way into a women's magazine with readership of more than 8 million, and carried the headline: "Dr. Tarnower's Super-diet — Easiest Diet Ever!" In large type is the claim that you can lose up to 20 pounds in 14 days.

By the time the diet had made its way to a supermarket-checkout tabloid at the end of September, the headline had become: "How to lose 14 pounds in 14 days."

Following the rise, and subsequent fall, of most other physicians who offer an easy way to lose weight, Tarnower should be appearing on talk shows soon, if he hasn't by now. He already has a contract to do a book.

Dieters who think they have found a new answer are in for a mild shock. Variations on the Scarsdale diet have been around since 1862. Back then, the version of the low-carbohydrate, high-protein diet was called the Banting diet.

Many nutritionists warn that, like the Banting diet, the Scarsdale Diet is nutritionally unbalanced, lacking sufficient carbohydrates for normal body function. The result, according to Dr. Sam Hashim, director of the department of metabolism and nutrition at Columbia University's St Luke's Hospital Centre, is a rapid return of the lost pounds as soon as the dieter goes back to normal eating habits.

Medical experts explain that low carbohydrate diets produce a state of ketosis, which leads to a natural reduction in appetite. But they also say that ketogenic diets produce the wrong kind of weight loss. First there is a dramatic loss of body fluid, and a small loss of solid waste, but no loss of body mass. After that, any weight loss that occurs, once ketosis has taken place, is due to total caloric reduction brought on by loss of appetite.

Eventually, if the person can endure the diet for more than a couple of weeks, he or she will lose body mass. The problem, according to many medical experts, is that much of the body mass that is lost is lean, i.e., muscle tissue.

Tarnower disagrees. He claims that with his diet, you don't lose just water. "I am quite certain you lose body weight in the way of fat," he said over the phone last week. "When you don't have carbohydrates sufficient to meet your body needs, you draw on your fat to provide required calories and when you draw on the fat you lose weight."

Hashim says he's heard it all before. "Why do these people seem to have a predilection for being experts in nutrition?" he asked. "Why aren't they instant experts in neurosurgery or plastic surgery?"

Sounding both frustrated and annoyed, Hashim said, referring to Tarnower, "This man talks without any deep knowledge of the subject. It shows a total lack of understanding about body function. When he says it draws on fat, it is not so. When carbohydrates are very restricted, the body draws on protein."

Warming to the subject, Hashim said, "If you eat as much as you want, and it exceeds your energy needs, you will gain on this goddarn diet. The loss is not the fat he is dreaming about.

"Oh yes, you lose some fat, but it looks if if you do not lose any more fat than on any other diet of equal caloric value."

According to Hashim, and a number of obesity expets, the diet is hazardous. "In anybody who has potential kidney disease, it can bring it on. In existing kidney disease, it can make it worse because the kidney has to excrete the excess ketones. You are overloading the kidneys."

There are different hazards for those without kidney problems, Hashim said. The diet can bring on attacks of gout. It can lower blood sugar to such an extent that a person could go into hypoglycemia.

In recent times — though obviously not recent enough, since people continue to use it — the most spectacular resurrection of the Banting-type diet was created by Dr. Herman Taller who called his 1960's version "Calories Don't Count." His book by the same name was the first runaway best seller among diet books. But Taller ran afoul of the law. According to Edwin Bayrd in The Thin Game (Newsweek Books, $8.95): "For all the scientific wrongheadedness of Taller's advice, he might have gotten away with it if his own desire to 'live a full life' had not occasioned an excess of greed." Taller pushed the sale of safflower oil capsules as a necessary concomitant to the diet, and made a substantial profit. Eventually Taller was convicted of mail fraud, conspiracy, and violation of federal drug regulations.

Most subsequent promoters of the Banting-type diet have avoided similar problems by marketing the idea without trying to sell a product.

Taller's successor was Dr. Irwin Stillman. He emphasized the high protein aspect of the diet, along with consumption of eight glasses of water a day, in his Doctor's Quick Weight Loss Diet, Stillman was interviewed endlessly, quoted and enshrined in print. He also became a familiar figure on talk shows. Again, his own patients spread the word.

His succsssor was Dr. Robert Atkins, a cardiologist, whose variation of the Banting diet, according to Bayrd, "has the distinction of being simultaneously the most widely criticized and the most widely successful quick weight-loss regimen of all times."

Bayrd says Atkins' diet is no revolution, just a distillation of everything known at this time about high-protein, low-carbohydrate diets.

Atkins' diet also involved rapid weight loss through induced ketosis. In the process he peddled a million copies of his hardcover book, Dr. Atkins' Diet Revolution.

With all that is known about the inherent dangers of a high-protein, low-carbohydrate diet, it's hard to believe that the liquid protein diet could have enjoyed such success. That is until the Food and Drug Administration questioned the relatonship between a substantial number of deaths among people who had been on this diet.

Now that the liquid protein diet has faded from popularity, as all fad diets do when the word begins to spread that the dieters have put back all the weight, the Scarsdale diet is in the limelight.

This diet takes the high protein, low carbohydrate diet a bit further. It tells the dieter exactly what foods to eat for each meal of one week, though it doesn't say how much to eat except for a restriction on the amount of protein bread.

"That's what I like about it so much. I don't have to think 'what has carbohydrates and what doesn't.' It makes it easy to eat out and to shop," said one current Scarsdale fan.

And that's the only thing that makes this diet different from its predecessors.

Along with his criticism of the diet, Hashim offered more bad news. There is only one way to lose weight, he said: "Regulate the energy balance."

Some Wines to Mull Over: Madeira, Sherry and Port

craig claiborne

Q. What does the term "mulled" as in mulled wine mean?

A. Basically it means wine that has been heated and spiced. You may use fortified wines such as Madeira, Sherry or Port. Or you may use table wines such as Bordeaux or Burgundies. In addition to the wine base, the drink calls for making a light syrup of water, sugar and such spices as cinnamon stick, a cracked whole nutmeg and whole cloves. Plus the peel of a lemon and orange. After cooking briefly, this mixture is strained and added to the wine. When fortified wines are the base for the drink, you simply bring it to the boil. If table wines are used, you may simmer the beverage for about five minutes or longer. The origin of the name is unknown although the American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language states that it may be derived from Middle English mul which is dust, meal, or powdered spice.

In its origins, mulled wine was made by sticking a poker hot from the chimney coals into it.

Q. What is vanillin?

a. Vanillin is synthetic vanilla. It is made from various bases including eugenol, a substance derived from distillation of clove oil; sugar or sucrose; lignin, a substance found in wood pulp; coal tar; oil of sassfras; waste paper pulp and so on.

Vanillin or imitation vanilla lacks the subtlety of pure vanilla and food chemists maintain that it imparts a relatively harsh odor and a bitter, rank after-taste to foods, candies and the like in which it is used. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration requires that the label specify "Imitation Vanilla" if the product contains a trace of synthetic ingredients.

Q. Is it true that you should never eat anything cooked with or over pine needles and branches?

A. Hardly. If so, a few of my friends are in danger. In fact, one of the best outdoor meals I have ever enjoyed was an unforgettable meal prepared by an acquaintance and neighbor, Tino Nivola, the sculptor. He sandwiched thick slices of swordfish between pine needles and branches and cooked the sweet flesh over high coals until cooked throughout. The pine provided a tempting, woodsy and slightly charred flavor to the swordfish.

Cooking with Wine . . ?

By WILLIAM RICE
The Washington Post

Long treatises have been written about serving wine with food. But what about cooking with wine? Recipe instructions may specify "dry" sherry or "dry white wine." Occasionally — though not often enough — there will be a warning against using salt-enriched "cooking wine," along with another axiom: "Don't cook with wines that taste so bad you wouldn't serve them to drink."

At the other end of the spectrum, only the most gullible can suppose that Coq au Chambertin is really made with Chambertin, a red Burgundy that retails for $15 a bottle and up. It's perfectly acceptable to use something more modest, the experts say.

That's about the extent of the guidelines available to the conscientious cook.

So The Washington Post's food section decided to conduct its own experiment. Each of four dishes was prepared three times. The only variable in each recipe was the quality of wine.

One was made with a standard, generic wine. A second was made with a medium-priced, varietal table wine. The third utilized a wine of great reputation and considerable price.

A dozen persons sampled the foods without knowing the identities of the wines involved and voted for their favorites. Each dish was served as a separate course.

In three of the four comparisons the costliest wine won out — but not necessarily by a decisive margin — and the medium-priced wine was not always the second choice. In the fourth recipe, ironically, the most expensive wine was the loser by the most decisive margin of all. But several important points were made. When cooking with wine:

—A great wine will improve the dish, but probably not enough to equal the difference in cost between it and a non-aristocratic wine.

—The longer a dish cooks or marinates, the less significant the difference in wine quality becomes. But do not go second-class when the wine is not cooked, as in our fruit compote, or when a fortified wine such as brandy or sherry is added near the end of the cooking process.

—The differences discerned came most often in the taste, not the smell, of the food or the sauce. The dish with the lesser wine had — or left — a harsh quality, indicating an imbalance such as excessive alcohol or acidity.

The recipes used were as follows:

A pate of duck, calling for red wine and sherry, cooked at least a day ahead and served at room temperature.

Sole poached in a wine and water court bouillon and served with a beurre blanc sauce that began with a reduction of shallots and wine.

Coq au vin, served without the flavorful but palate-distracting traditional garnishes of mushrooms, pieces of bacon and small onions.

Fruit in wine, a combination of fresh fruits chilled in wine for about four hours before it was served.

Some general guidelines:

Wine performs the functions of any other liquid, but adds flavor and aroma. If a recipe calls for wine to simmer for a long time, or to be flamed, the alcohol disappears. Therefore the dish may be served to children or non-drinkers.

If only a small amount of wine is required, consider using some from the bottle that will be served with dinner. For an almost instant sauce, add a little wine to the pan in which meat or chicken has been sauteed, place over heat and scrape the bottom to free the flavorful essences. Bring to a boil, add some broth or water, seasonings and perhaps a little butter. Pour over the meat.

Vermouth, which often is on hand awaiting the call for a martini — is an acceptable substitute for dry white wine in recipes. It is flavored with herbs, however, so if the amount is half a cup or more, use half vermouth and half water. Leftover wine should remain drinkable — and therefore cookable — for several days. The only sure test is taste it.

Table wines usually are only 6 or 7 per cent alcohol, so they will not burst into flames near direct heat as does brandy. Pour table wine directly into the cooking pan, but ignite brandy or whiskey in a spoon or separate pan with a long match or by tipping the pan toward the flame. Beware of pouring wine into another liquid or brandy over something cold such as ice cream and then trying to flame it. Chances are the alcohol won't catch fire. Ignite it, then pour.

BARTENDER WINS PRIZE

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto bartender Charles Rendes, 49, has won second prize and two trophies at the International Cocktail Competition in Opatija, Yugoslavia, for a mixture he calls Canadian coffee—rye whisky, Kaluha, Amaretto, whipped cream and hot, black coffee. Rendes said in an interview that 82 bartenders from nine countries were entered.

Pre-Natal Obesity Factor?

By Dr. JEAN MAYER and Dr. JOHANNA DWYER

Q. I have heard that prenatal nutrition is a factor in the likelihood that a baby will become an obese adult. Is this true and, if so, how is it possible?

A. Since infants and children who suffer from undernutrition generally eat poorly as adults, it has not been possible to sort out the effects of chronic undernutrition from the long-term effects of deprivation in childhood.

But a famine in Holland that lasted from October, 1944, to May, 1945, did provide an opportunity to study the relationship between undernutrition before birth or in infancy and the incidence of obesity.

Investigators recently reported the results of a study of almost 95,000 Dutch citizens who were conceived and born during the famine. Those with the highest prevalence of obscenity had been nutritionally deprived during the first two three-month periods of intrauterine life.

It has been suggested that the period of life in which the fetus was subjected to nutritional deprivation might have affected the normal development of the appetite-control mechanisms in the hypothalamus. But, interestingly, neither the group exposed to the famine during the first trimester alone or only during the second and third trimesters had a high prevalence of obesity, raising the question as to which period of intrauterine life is most critical for the development of normal appetite controls.

While these and other observations are interesting and contribute to our understanding of obesity, we would emphasize that no woman should alter her dietary practices in an attempt to prevent obesity in her offspring. A good prenatal diet should contain enough of the right foods to meet the increased nutrient demands of pregnancy, with sufficient calories to allow the pregnant mother to gain somewhere between 24 and 30 pounds.

Q. Three secretaries in my office are dieting. Yesterday, they were all eating a diet candy containing something called sorbitol. Today, they all complained of having diarrhea. The label said the candy contained magnesium stearate. I wonder whether this caused the diarrhea.

A. There could be many reasons why the secretaries had the same problem. If it was the candy, it is unlikely that it was due to magnesium stearate, which is used as a stabilizer in packaking material. More probably the culprit was the sorbitol itself.

Sorbitol is an alcohol which occurs naturally in many fruits and vegetables. It is produced commercially from glugose or fructose and has multiple uses as a food additive.

As an anti-caking and free-flow agent, as a stabilizer and thickener, or as an emulsifier or as a texturizer, it poses no problem. But when it is used as a nutritive sweetener, it has a potential for producing diarrhea. In fact, regulations provide that where "reasonably foreseeable consumption" may result in daily ingestion of 50 grams of sorbitol, the label must carry the statement that "Excess consumption may have a laxative effect."

Since sorbitol is absorbed quite slowly and apparently is metabolized without insulin, some physicians permit diabetics who have no weight problem to use sorbitol-sweetened foods in limited amounts. But the use of these products in weight-reduction programs is ill-advised for two reasons: 1) sorbitol contains just as many calories as table sugar; 2) sorbitol-sweetened products such as cakes, cookies and chocolate candy all contain other ingredients which provide calories the dieter may not need.

NO ROOM FOR THE QUEASY

TORONTO (CP) — Some favor the rich taste of fat sliced from behind the eyeballs of a caribou.

Others claim there's no delicacy more piquant than muktuk — the almond-flavored rind of a whale. And some even maintain the rawhide lashings of snowshoes can be rather nice if well boiled — not unlike pigs feet.

During a three-day symposium, a collection of peers and prospectors, architects and fur traders, scientists and bush pilots gave their view of the future in Canada's North.

But away from the lectern, they became Arctic epicures, swapping yarns about the delights and horrors they've experienced.

Richard S. Finnie, 72, the Yukon-born author of Lurc of the North, sailed the Arctic seas in the 1920s and says he enjoyed gobbling any kind of fresh meat — be it polar bear steaks or seal blubber.

But Finnie said there was one Eskimo delicacy he never went out of his way to sample.

"After killing the caribou, the Eskimos would squeeze them out like pimples and eat the wriggly works like cocktail snacks. I never got up enough nerve to taste the unappetizing-looking things."

Finnie said he regrets that Quebec-born explorer Captain Bernier never got due credit during his lifetime for his achievement of preserving Canadian sovereignty over the Arctic.

Another Canadian explorer who peers say never won recognition was Manitoba-born Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who, before his death in 1962, had added 100,000 square miles of the uncharted North to the maps of Canada.

His widow, Evelyn Stefansson Nef, an Arctic author, said Stefansson claimed he enjoyed nibbling on half-decayed fish and became rather fond of dog hair in his diet.

"You know the story of the old Arctic hand who told his guests at a dinner party that they'd just eaten Fido," she said. "No matter how much they appreciated the taste of the dog, a good per cent will always throw up."

One fellow with a hearty stomach is Graham W. Rowley, 65, the British-born former scientific advisor to the department of northern affairs.

Rowley lived with the Eskimos on Baffin Island in the 1930s. His favorite foods were clams from the belly of a freshly-killed walrus and Arctic salad — moss found in the stomach of a caribou.

Bio-dex

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle-	Every silver lining has its dark cloud. Keep a sharp eye out when an unexpected opportunity presents itself.
6-10 Neutral Cycle-	Take that extra holiday leave and get out of town for a short vacation. You've earned it and need it!
11-15 Positive Cycle-	Shadows from your past can't haunt you if you turn on the full light of reason. Objectivity is today's password.

"May the Force be with you!" The film critics may not all approve of the Force, but it sure helped Star Wars become a box office success. Maybe there are mysterious powers that shape our destinies. Certainly we have only just begun to understand some of our inner mysteries. We can chart the ebb and flow of our Bio-dex, but no scientist has yet discovered the origin of these powerful life forces.

When your best silver polish won't clean black corrosion from old sterling or silverplate, you can try several cleaners. But inexpensive rottenstone is all you need to buy at the hardware store. This extra-fine polishing compound and lots of elbow grease wil rub off the thickest of corrosion from silverware, chrome, aluminum. Then use your best silver polish for a shine.

Does sun now shine in on the arm of a sofa, back of an upholstered chair? Exposure to light, day-after-day, can fade even colorfast fabrics and weaken high-cotton (or other natural fibers) fabrics. Pull draperies or blinds to protect upholstery if you're at work all day.

Did you know victims of electrical hedge-trimmer accidents were most often hurt while changing hand positions with the trimmer still running, operating a trimmer with only one hand or trying to hold the cord away from the blade? Think about that when hedge-clipping.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Your advice that mothers should give their daughters sex education is ludicrous! If a daughter confides to her mother that she is shoplifting to support a drug habit, would you then advise the mother to instruct her daughter on how to shoplift without getting caught?

If not, may I say that sex without marriage is just as morally wrong as shoplifting and drug use. — RIGHT AGAIN

DEAR RIGHT: Wrong! The crime of shoplifting cannot be equated with the "crime" of premaital sex.

I hear from enough teenagers to know that once they have gone all the way with someone they think they love, they will continue to have sex every chance they get.(The sex drive is one of the most powerful of all natural urges. Second only to the need for food!)

It is the responsibility of every parent to teach their children ALL the facts in order to protect them from VD and accidental pregnacies.

Uninformed kids who are sexually active (and face it, millions are!) not only ruin their own lives, but they place a heavy burden financially and socially on society with problems of VD and unwanted children.

DEAR ABBY: I am 10 years old and want to become a famous actress. I think I would be very good at it because ever since I was a little girl I have been very good at "pretending" and that is what acting is isn't it? Do I have to finish high school to be an actress? — FUTURE ACTRESS

DEAR ACTRESS: Finish high school. And college, too, if you can. Being good at "pretending" might help a lot because there may be times when you have to "pretend" that you are eating.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to say that several years ago she falsified her birth date on her driver's licence because she didn't want her husband to know how old she was, and now that she's eligible for Social Security she's afraid to apply for fear they will revoke her driver's licence, fine her, or put her in jail!

She asked what the penalty would be if she confessed, and you said all she had to do was send a copy of her birth certificate to the department of motor vehicles, and all would be forgiven and forgotten.

It's not quite that simple. In most states (and certainly in Missouri) it is a misdemeanor to falsify one's driver's licence. Minors have been known to do this in order to pass for legal age to buy alcoholic beverages.

Perhaps the lady who falsified her driver's licence by deducting a few years committed no serious offense, but minors who falsify their drivers' licences should be made aware that this is a very serious offense which should not be taken lightly. — READER

DEAR READER: Thanks for making an important point which I overlooked.

Bedsores: They're Worth Avoiding

Dr. L. L. COLEMAN

My father had a stroke a month ago and is almost entirely confined to his bed. I know there is always the danger of bedsores. He doesn't have any yet because we keep turning him from one side to the other. Are there any other things we can do? — Mrs. N. M.

Dear Mrs. M.: You are very wise to give consideration to this possibility before a bedsore does develop. The pressure on the elbows, heels, shoulders, back and buttocks interferes with the blood supply to the tissues in these spots. If this is allowed to continue, the skin breaks and, when it becomes infected, creates a deep bedsore, called "decubitus ulcer." This can be extremely difficult to heal. Prevention, therefore, is absolutely imperative.

Arteriosclerosis and other vascular conditinos make the elderly more prone to this problem.

The pressure areas can be protected with rubber rings and foam-rubber padding. The tender areas of the skin should be cleaned frequently with alcohol and covered with dusting powder. Lubrication with oils or cocoa butter is also beneficial.

There now is an excellent way of achieving this with the use of a new device called the "Alphabed." This is a motorized pad that is placed over the mattress and under the patient's sheet. Air is gently propelled within the pad. This massages the tissues and activates the circulation of the blood, especially at the pressure points.

The Alphabed and other similar devices can be purchased or rented through surgical supply dealers everywhere.

Concentrated effort must be made to avoid the onset of a decubitus ulcer. For, once it has developed and infection set in, it becomes an arduous task to cure that which might have been prevented.

☆ ☆ ☆

Every once in a while I see spots of blood when I move my bowels. Since it lasts only a day or two, I do nothing about it. It's only when it comes back that I get scared. Does this seem like real trouble to you? — Miss A. O.,

Even though it occurs only occasionally, blood in the stool does have meaning and should be investigated. It simply means that a blood vessel, small or large, has broken somewhere along the intestinal tract.

Bleeding is one of nature's warnings and must be respected. In almost all instances, bright blood is caused by bleeding hemorrhoids, or piles. A simple examination can find the site of bleeding and immediately alleviate your anxiety.

Over 40,000 Indian children attend some 500 provincial schools across Canada. In addition, 30,000 Indian students attend federal schools in districts where no suitable provincial schools are available.

The richly illustrated 48-page booklet, Indian Education in Canada, explains the education available to Indians from nurseries for four-year-olds to adult education.

You will learn, for instance, that where necessary, transportation is provided for all students who must travel from their reserve to their school. Students who must stay away from the reserve to continue their schooling, receive free return transportation — by bus, train or plane — at the beginning and end of the school term and at Christmas.

Vocational and continued education is available to all Indians. For those in need, financial assistance is provided. Such assistance is also available to recognized Indian groups or individuals for projects to foster traditional cultural activities and to preserve Indian heritage. Classes in Indian languages are available to parents, teachers and others.

Canada Beats U.S. To Top Jobless List

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has been the only major Western industrialized country to lower its unemployment rate in the last four years, the U.S. labor department said Wednesday.

Canada, meanwhile, has replaced the U.S. as the industrial country with the highest unemployment rate, the report by the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

During the 1974-77 period, the U.S., which entered a severe recession in 1975, had the highest unemployment rate at 7.2 per cent. Japan and Sweden had the lowest jobless rate, 1.8 per cent, while an average of 6.9 per cent of the Canadian workforce was unemployed.

In the third quarter of this year, however, Canada topped the unemployment list at 8.5 per cent, while the U.S. unemployment rate was down to six per cent, tied for fourth. Japan was at the bottom with a 2.3-per-cent unemployment rate.

The bureau listed the following unemployment rates during 1974-77: the U.S., 7.2; Canada, 6.9; Britain, 4.7; France, 4.3; Australia, 4.1; Italy, 3.2; West Germany, 3.1, and Sweden and Japan, 1.8

The jobless rates in the third quarter of 1978 were: Canada, 8.5; Britain and France, 6.1; the U.S. and Australia, six; Italy, 3.6; West Germany, 3.4; Sweden, 2.5, and Japan, 2.3.

Asia, Africa Refugees Nearing Million Mark

GENEVA (Reuter) — There now are almost one million refugees in Asia and Africa and the number shows no sign of decreasing, the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) reported Wednesday.

The country with the largest number is Vietnam, where 350,000 people have fled from Cambodia as a result of border fighting between the two countries.

There are an additional 750,000 displaced persons in Vietnam, most of them Vietnamese.

In Africa, the situation is growing worse in Sudan where there was an influx of Eritreans in addition to tens of thousands already in camps there, the report said.

The number of Rhodesian refugees in neighboring black countries now totals more than 120,000, it reported.

Lebanon has 150,000 persons displaced by fighting there last March, and a Red Cross official said last week that thousands more had been made homeless by recent fighting in Beirut.

CANDY FACTORY NO JOY

BANGKOK (Reuter) — Police said today they arrested the owner of a candy factory near this Thai capital and freed 56 children aged between 10 and 15 who, they say, were held in slave-like working conditions.

Police said most of the children were emaciated, two were paralysed and several were suffering from malnutrition. Two children died, one of them apparently beaten to death.

The owner was charged with illegal detention and maltreatment of child laborers.

UPSTAIRS-DOWNSTAIRS KILLERS GET LIFE

LONDON (AP) — Life sentences have been ordered for a butler and bartender who teamed up late last year to rob and kill a wealthy, elderly British couple, then killed their female accomplice and a man who found out about their deeds.

The terms were levied Wednesday for Archibald Hall, a butler who forged his own reference papers and worked for England's elite, and Michael Kitto. The two, self-avowed homosexuals, stood trial in Edinburgh and London.

Five persons were slain in all. Kitto was convicted in three cases and Hall four and was linked to the fifth. The case left a string of bodies across Britain.

Testimony revealed the murders began late last year when Hall quarrelled with, shot and killed, then buried the body of gardner David Wright, 30, at the Scottish estate where they worked.

He then moved to London, where he took employment at the posh Knightsbridge apartment of former Labor MP Walter Scott-Elliot, 82, and his wife, Dorothy, 62.

Kitto, 40, told police he was recruited by Hall to rob the couple and was caught in the act by Mrs. Scott-Elliot, whom Hall suffocated with a pillow.

Kitto said they stuffed the woman's body in the trunk of a car, forced her husband to accompany them and, with an accomplice, Mary Coggle, 43, drove to Perthshire and dumped the body. Soon after, the budgeoned body of Scott-Elliot was found near Inverness.

Kitto testified that Miss Coggle, also known as Belfast Mary, talked of returning to London wearing the furs and jewelry of Mrs. Scott-Elliot which infuriated Hall. Kitto said Hall beat Miss Coggle to death with a poker in a rented cottage near Carlisle.

The bartender said Hall's half-brother, Donald, 37, joined him and Hall in January, but found out too much and Hall chloroformed him and drowned him in a bathtub.

Hall was convicted of murdering Scott-Elliot, Coggle, Wright and his half-brother. Kitto was convicted of killing Coggle and of being an accomplice in the Scott-Elliot slaying. Hall pleaded not guilty in Mrs. Scott-Elliot's death and prosecutors did not pursue that, but Kitto pleaded guilty to manslaughter in her death.

Prosecutors described Hall as a confidence man from the back streets of Glasgow who used phoney references to win employment at the homes of millionaires such as Sir Charles Clore and Sir George Aylwen, a former Lord Mayor of London.

Moonie Probe Bares Payoffs

WASHINGTON (WP)— A House investigating subcommittee said Wednesday it has found evidence that organizations controlled by South Korean evangelist Sun Myung Moon systematically violated U.S. tax, immigration, banking, currency and foreign agent laws in pushing toward a goal of running a world government.

The House International Organizations subcommittee recommended after an 18-month study of Korean-American relations that a federal interagency task force continue investigating the allegedly illegal activities of what it calls the "Moon Organization."

Many of the findings in the 447-page report released Wednesday have been touched on before by the press or earlier congressional hearings. But the conclusions about the Moon-related groups were stronger than any previously mentioned by the subcommittee.

Rep. Donald Fraser (Dem-Minn.) the subcommittee chairman, expressed particular concern about new findings that a Moon-controlled business in Korea approached Colt Industries last year — apparently representing the Korean government — to try to get permission to export M-16 rifles being manufactured there.

The Korean government has repeatedly denied ties between the government and the so-called Moon organization.

The subcommittee also reported:

—American corporations were forced to pay $8.5 million to the 1971 campaign of Korean President Park Chung Hee. Fraser said U.S. firms doing business in Korea are sill being asked today to make such payments.

—Korea took secret steps in the early 1970s to develop a nuclear weapons capability, but the plan apparently was dropped in 1975.

—Tongsun Park, as well as the Moon company, was involved in efforts to export Korean produced arms. Last year — following his indictment — Park approached Sam Cummings, a former Central Intelligence Agency employee and international arms merchant, about being an agent for such exports.

The subcommittee study was undertaken as a case study of the elaborate lobbying campaign the Korean goverment aimed at American government, media, and academic circles in the early 1970s in an effort to continue the flow of U.S. aid to the increasingly authoritarian regime of Park Chung Hee.

"We don't think the effort had any material effect on U.S. policy," Fraser said Wednesday. "We think they wasted their money."

The report said the subcommittee found evidence that Moon followers broke U.S. currency reporting laws by carrying large amounts of cash into the country.

Drug Troubles at The Yard

LONDON (AP) — Three former detectives of Scotland Yard's drugs squad have been charged with offences involving cannabis and were to appear in court today, the Yard said.

A spokesman said the accused were suspended from duty during an 18-month investigation by the anti-corruption squad.

The three men are Chief Insp. Tony Rich, 32, Insp. David Draper, 34, and Sgt. Kevin Carrington, 31. They are charged jointly with conspiracy to obtain, deal in and steal cannabis.

The Yard said the inquiry began after drugs seized by the police were found recycling back to users.

UFOs JUST HIGHLY CHARGED BUGS?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nocturnal swarms of insects, glowing "like a discotheque in the sky" from electrical discharges in the atmosphere, could be responsible for many night-time UFO reports, a government scientist said Wednesday.

Dr. Philip S. Callahan, an entomologist at an Agricultural Research Service laboratory in Gainesville, Fla., said migrating swarms of insects can be miles long, make eerie humming sounds and will glow blue, red and green when they enter an electric field created by a storm cloud and the ground.

"Although one insect wouldn't mean much in the sky because you couldn't see it from very far, if you had swarms of thousand of them, they would look like a big saucer," he said in a telephone interview.

"It would be very erratic and it would try to get out of the voltage field and as it darted around, it would be making a humming sound and suddenly it would disappear because it would leave the voltage field and it would look like it shot away into the sky.

Callahan, and a physicist co-worker, R.W. Mankin, reported in the current issue of the technical journal Applied Optics, published by the Optical Society of America, that insects are easily and harmlessly lighted up in the laboratory by placing them in an electric field.

Callahan investigated agricultural records in Utah where there was an outbreak of UFO sightings between 1965 and 1968 and found there were investations of spruce budworms in Utah before the UFO sightings. Spruce budworm moths have been known to swarm in clouds 64 miles long and 16 miles wide.

Cough Medicine Blamed for Birth Defects

BOSTON (AP) — Medicines as common as cough drops and aspirin taken by pregnant women can lead to internal bleeding, thyroid gland swelling and mental retardation in their newborn, a Houston doctor says.

Dr. Reba Hill also cited evidence that cough medicine containing potassium iodide can lead to potentially fatal respiratory problems in infants.

The Houston specialist in newborn research told members of the New England Obstetrical and Gynecological Society that pregnant women should limit any drugs during pregnancy, especially anticonvulsants, some antibiotics, potassium iodide, aspirin and tranquillizers such as valium.

Killer Vietnamese General Facing Boot from U.S.

NEW YORK — Ten years ago South Vietnamese Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan drew his snub-nosed revolver and killed a Viet Cong soldier in a picture that shocked the world. Today, Loan, a restaurant manager in Virginia, may be deported from the United States because of his act.

Leaders of the Vietnamese exile community in the U.S. are describing the government's attempt to remove Loan's American residency, and eventually deport him, as unfair and ridiculous.

The immigration and naturalization service, arguing that the then-Vietnemamese national police chief should have been tried in Vietnam for a possible war crime for the killing on a Saigon street during the 1968 Tet offensive, has advised Loan that his residency permit will be rescinded on grounds of moral turpitude.

Loan, 48, who lost his leg when seriously wounded in May, 1968, has declined to comment on the immigration service's move. But his former colleagues in combat have rallied to his defence.

"All the Vietnamese exiles are furious about this," said Nguyen Cao Ky, former South Vietnamese vice-president who now runs a liquor store in Los Angeles. "We recognize Loan as one of the most staunch anti-Communists that our country produced. Everything he did was for his country, and there were war crimes on both sides."

"This matter has legal implications that I can't pass judgment on," he said. "But there was great stress in Saigon at that time and great anger at the acts of the Communist terrorists."

The immigration service declined to elaborate on its case against Loan, stating that a hearing date is yet to be set. But the main facts of the incident have never been disputed.

Vietnamese police later said the victim was a Viet Cong lieutenant who had been seen shooting and killing a policeman from the second floor of the building where he was captured.

He Was Paid $100 Not To Fly

GORHAM, N.Y. — Lee Airth returned home from a two-day business trip $100 richer — not counting frills — because an airline paid him not to fly.

Airth, a sales representative for a Cranbury, N.J., pharmaceutical firm, let himself be bumped twice on a single trip and delayed by more than five hours.

Minutes before his plane was to depart Pittsburgh for Rochester, N.Y., an Allegheny Airlines official announced that the flight had been overbooked. Airth volunteered to stay off the flight and the airline paid him $50, gave him a $6 meal and a reservation for the next flight.

Soon after Airth seated himself on the next flight, 3½ hours later, the airline discovered a second case of overbooking. The call for volunteer bumpees went out once more.

Airth again stepped forward — to the cheering and clapping of fellow travellers who had heard his story.

He said airline officials quickly processed a reservation for a flight nearly two hours later, "and gave me an additional $50 for my deed."

Airth said he had no complaints.

"My wife and I have been trying to save up some money for a vacation," he said. "The $100 will be used to start up our travel fund. She wondered about the delay. But when I showed her the $100, she thought it was a good deal."

Bigamy Blast At Abbie

NEW YORK — America's most famous fugitive may be facing a bigamy rap as well as charges of dealing in cocaine if ever the FBI can get its hands on him.

Anita Hoffman, to whom Yippie-founder Abbie Hoffman refers as "my ex-wife," says there's never been a divorce, but that "Abbie has rewed."

Hoffman surfaces in print from time to time — his latest interview will be published in the December issue of Forum magazine — but bigamist or no, Anita says, "We'll be friends forever."

And she adds, somewhat superfluously, "Abbie doesn't live by the conventional rules."

Travolta's Hideaway

SANTA BARBARA — John Travolta has agreed to buy a 14-acre avocado ranch in a secluded canyon 35 kilometres from Santa Barbara. The price: $1.5 million.

Deeds filed with the county clerk show Travolta has already paid $417,600 and owes a little more than $1 million for the Rancho Tajiguas Adobe, a 178-year-old ranch build by the first commandant of the Santa Barbara presidio.

Pesticide Retained by Fruits

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Experiments by California researchers reveal the controversial pesticide DBCP is absorbed by fruit, it was announced Wednesday..

Researchers, using a new procedure on fruits from special test plots, discovered that DBCP persists in fruit which was already formed at the time soil was treated with the chemical, State Food and Agriculture Director Richard Rominger disclosed.

DBCP is widely used as a soil fumigant for controlling nematodes, but it was banned for agricultural use in August, 1977, because of findings of sterility among workers in plants where it was manufactured.

Nonetheless, the federal Environmental Protection Agency has allowed the controversial pesticide to be used on selected crops in other states. The department says that was "on the assumption that residues would not be found."

But the California tests reveal that residues of between one and 40 parts per billion persist in Valencia and navel oranges, lemons, peaches, grapes and tomatoes that were already formed when the test soil was treated, Rominger said.

Although the department contends the levels of DBCP found in the tested fruit do not present a health hazard, it also said additional investigation and evaluation of the findings will be necessary.

Chlorine Claims

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Insurance Corp. of British Columbia has started to process 90 minor claims for damages resulting from the chlorine tank spill last month on a city street, spokesman Bob Egby said Monday.

Egby said that while the question of liability has not been settled the minor claims, mostly for physical injury, are being handled. He said all of the claims are for less than $500.

Carter Puts Priority On Pay Curb Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter had a quick — and negative — answer Wednesday to George Meany's call for mandatory wage-price controls to fight inflation, and said he is contacting 500 of the nation's largest employers to ensure the success of his voluntary plan.

Speaking by telephone to an anti-inflation forum in St. Louis, Mo., the president said the success of his program depends on the support of hundreds of businesses and unions across the nation.

"I'm determined to make this program work," he said. "It will be my top responsibility on domestic affairs in the months ahead. I do not intend to see it fail."

In his opening remarks, Carter called mandatory controls "a very bad thing to do and which I do not intend to do."

Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, called Tuesday for mandatory controls, saying the voluntary program is unfair to labor.

Robert Kelly, a local AFL-CIO official, told Carter, "if industry will do its share . . . we will hold up our end of the bargain."

New Snag For N.Y. Papers

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times and The Daily News will not return to the newsstands until publishers settle with truck drivers and three other striking unions, despite resolution of the contract dispute with striking pressmen.

Both morning newspapers, idle for nearly three months, were preparing to resume publication by Sunday as talks continued with the truck drivers.

The drivers want the publishers to replenish a depleted health and welfare benefits fund. The newspapers refused to contribute to the company-supported fund during the strike because drivers were not crossing the picket lines.

Pressmen and the publishers initialled a new contract Wednesday. But William Kennedy, pressmen's union president, said he would not submit the pact to a vote until the drivers had a new contract.

The newspapers must also reach agreements with unions representing paper-handlers, machinists and mechanics.

The pressmen went on strike against The Times, The News and The Post on Aug. 9 and about 10,000 employees in 11 unions did not cross picket lines. Four other unions eventually went on strike.

The Post resumed publication Oct. 5 after reaching agreement with its other striking unions and promising to match whatever pressmen's contract was agreed to by the Times and the News.

The six-year pressmen's contract guarantees the jobs of all 1,508 pressmen at the three newspapers.

A Windmill? This Store Has It

VANCOUVER (CP) — If you happen to be shopping for a windmill, one of Canada's most unusual stores will sell you one for $3,685.

It opened in September, but already there's a constant stream of customers into the elegantly-decorated store stocked with everything from wood stoves and solar panels to organic toilets and water turbines.

The store is owned by Solace Energy Centres Inc., established 1½ years ago by three friends who decided to pool their talents and interest in alternative energy.

The three, in their 20s or early 30s, met at university and discussed going into business together. All were involved in Christian education at the University of British Columbia.

Company president is architect Bob Isaac-Renton, with Ed Martin and Vic Enns as partners. They are interested in development of the Third World as well as alternative energy.

"We hope that eventually we can use the business as a jumping-off point to take our expertise to the Third World," said Martin in a recent interview.

"We are also concerned about the depletion of non-renewable resources so we want to offer a practical form of alternative energy to the average person in Canada.

"We want to make people aware how they are polluting the environment by using non-renewable resources."

Martin said the trio spent a year researching alternative energy products before deciding what items to stock in their store.

"We compare laboratory tests for all the products we consider selling so that everything has been lab tested," he said. "We want to be in business for a long time."

Isaac-Renton and engineer Enns also will design alternative energy systems and installations for customers.

They are convinced that, although the initial outlay for alternative energy may be higher than for non-renewable energy such as oil and gas, the alternative systems will pay for themselves over a period of years.

The windmill is from Australia, the wood-burning stoves from Norway, Taiwan, Ireland, France and the United States, the organic toilets, which turn human wastes into compost, from Sweden, and the water turbine Pelton wheel is made here.

In the field of solar energy, the store has everything from solar panels to the black paint used on solar collectors.

Union Raps BCR In Slide Deaths

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Rail union officials Wednesday accused British Columbia Railway of disregarding safety and of not properly maintaining equipment and facilities.

The accusations followed the deaths Monday of two B.C. Rail employees as the result of a mudslide on tracks north of this central B.C. city.

Francisco Mastroianni, 46, died on the way to hospital after being pulled from the slide. Efrem Violato, 52, died of a heart attack during rescue operations. There will be an inquest into Mastroianni's death.

"We have been telling BCR management since 1967 that the mudslide in that area would eventually result in death," said Noel Hubbard, former northern chairman of the United Transportation Union.

"It is easy to do when you have no responsibility, but it riles me."

Hubbard said numerous mudslides have taken place in the area in the past, but the company makes only the repairs necessary to get trains through.

Kevin Rhodes, secretary of the Canadian Union of Transportation Employees, said the Crown-owned company seriously violates safety standards adopted by other railways.

Proposal Criticizes Logging

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The first in a series of proposals detailing the effect of the Nishga Indian tribe's land claim in northwestern British Columbia was presented to the 21st annual convention of the Nishga tribal council Wednesday.

In presenting the forest management proposal, members of the council's executive said existing logging operations in the 5,500-acre land claim along the Nass River north of here employ inadequate regeneration measures and have overworked some areas.

Deputy Named

Dr. Chapin Key has been named deputy minister of health, effective immediately, Health Minister Bob McClelland said Wednesday.

He replaces Jim Mainguy who is retiring following 38 years in the public service.

Key was executive director of Vancouver General Hospital before becoming executive director of health programs with the ministry of health in 1977.

Profits Blamed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Elimination of the profit system might not totally end the drug problem in the United States but it would certainly help, a representative of the U.S. Social Democratic Party said Wednesday.

Fanny Simon of New York City told delegates attending the International Conference of Social Democratic Women that cultural factors, psychological problems and peer group pressure all contribute to the drug problem.

"But basically it's a question of profit," she said.

Crash Kills Two

BURNABY (CP) — Two men were killed Wednesday as a result of a two-vehicle collision on the Trans-Canada Highway here. Florian Victor Mercier, 45, of Vancouver was killed instantly while a second man, whose name was withheld, died later in hospital.

Conflict In Air Probes?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The investigation of Canadian airplane accidents by Transport Canada amounts to a conflict of interest, a conference of the Air Transportation Association of Canada was told Wednesday.

The crash in February of a Pacific Western Arilines jet at Cranbrook and the recent crash of an Air Canada jet at Toronto were investigated by special teams under Transport Canada, which also regulates air traffic.

John Keinan of the Canadian Airline Pilots Association said there is a conflict of interest because Transport Canada is investigating itself.

Dick Shaw of the International Air Transport Association said that while the problem is not as real as it might seem, his association is proposing to split its resources into two parts to overcome it.

Meat-Cooking Plea Launched

The delegation came here from Vancouver because the city authorities said it was a provincial responsibility.

MP Art Lee (L—Vancouver East), who accompanied the delegation, recommended acceptance of a new federal standard for cooking meat, based on a bacteria count and not on the strict temperature control that the Chinese say ruins their traditional meat-cooking process.

In Vancouver, Victor Lee, newly-elected president of the Chinese Benevolent Association, has called an all-candidates' meeting for Sunday so that civic election candidates can register their opinions on the issue.

$3,000 Damage To Rooming House

Victoria fire officials are attempting to determine the cause of a fire Tuesday night that resulted in about $3,000 damage to an old rooming house at 2122 Cook.

The fire, reported by a tenant at about 10 p.m., started in second-storey floor joists and spread to two walls.

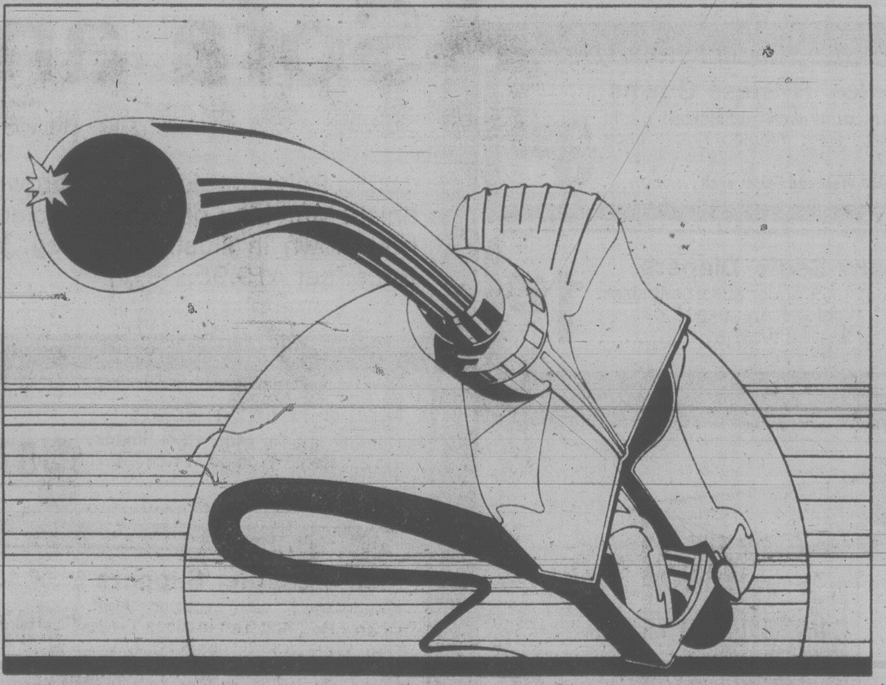
IS YOUR CAR'S TIMING CHEATING YOU OF MILEAGE?



A TANK OF ESSO EXTRA PREMIUM UNLEADED AND A $5.95* TIMING CHECK AND RE-SET WILL TELL YOU.

YOU COULD IMPROVE YOUR MILEAGE BY UP TO 5%.
A lot of cars that run on unleaded gas may also have their timing retarded. In fact, our survey shows that 1 out of 7 have their timing retarded an average of 4.6 degrees. This might get rid of engine knock but it also cuts down on fuel economy. And this could be the story on your car without you even realizing it. For $5.95, your participating Esso dealer can check and reset your engine's timing back to manufacturer's specifications. Then, you can fill up with Esso Extra Premium Unleaded and get the full benefit of this new high octane gasoline.

EXACTLY, WHAT IS TIMING?
Timing controls the exact moment when the spark plug ignites the fuel/air mixture inside the cylinders. If the spark comes too early or too late, you don't get full value from the gasoline you're using and you get less than full performance.

TIMING WILL ALSO AFFECT ENGINE KNOCK AND RUN-ON.
If your timing is off, you notice that premature or delayed ignition as a knock or pinging sound. It's especially noticeable on acceleration or going uphill.
Incomplete combustion which may also be caused by incorrect timing and/or gasoline, results in deposit build-up inside the cylinder and that leads to engine run-on after you shut off the ignition.

ASK YOUR PARTICIPATING ESSO DEALER.
If you are one of the thousands of Canadian motorists who have been having trouble with knock, run-on or poor mileage on your late model car, talk to your participating Esso dealer.
It could well be that your timing is off and that your car really needs a higher octane unleaded gasoline.
It's certainly worth $5.95 for the timing check and re-set to find out.
And a couple of tankfuls of new Esso Extra Premium Unleaded should prove that you're getting improved mileage and smoother performance.

*Or less. (Most cars until November 30, 1978.)

Band Trip Changed Their Lives

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

A Canadian tour with the Salvation Army's international staff band in 1952 changed the lives of Brigadier William Hosty and his wife, Freda, the new administrators of the army's Matson Lodge at 847 Dunsmuir.

Formerly attached to the army's international headquarters in London, Hosty said, "I couldn't breathe when I went back" after savoring the wide spaces of Canada.

In 1954 the Hostys were posted to Canada. They are now Canadians and want nothing more than to be allowed to stay in Western Canada for the rest of their lives.

Hosty, fourth-generation Salvation Army stalwart, shares his love of music with the 143 elderly residents of Matson Lodge. Music begins at 7:30 each morning with a record session. He has nearly 1,000 records in his own private collection. At live music sessions his horn-playing rounds out the assembly.

"You have to remember every senior citizen here has an interesting story to tell," Mrs. Hosty said. "It's most intriguing to discover the talents of the people."

Hosty tells about one of the residents who has made 28 or 29 violins during his lifetime, two of which — one made of applewood — he has at the lodge.

Many of the arts and crafts made by the residents will be on sale Saturday when the Ladies Auxiliary to Matson Lodge holds its annual bazaar in the auditorium at 2 p.m.

Some of the residents' skills are more down-to-earth than others. One man, now in his late 90s, is responsible for the retaining walls on the 5¾-acre property, having patiently hauled each rock to its assigned position.

Since arriving at Matson Lodge the Hostys have had the library extended. Many of the books, donated by Kiwanis clubs and others, are specially printed in easy-to-read large letters.

The Hostys make sure that the isolation which can turn homes for the elderly into ghettos never happens. Visitors are allowed any time of the day.

Students from Harbor View secondary school make regular visits and Hosty said the rapport between the youngsters and the elderly brings pleasure to both.

University of Victoria students have volunteered to conduct physical exercise sessions each Wednesday. Mrs. Hosty said 65 residents turned out for the first session of armchair exercises, one resident who will be 100 on Dec. 1 performing with the best of them.

Hosty said every-day life at the lodge is structured so that residents live as full a life as possible, drawing out the reticent and the lonely.

The recent wedding of two of the residents had the auditorium-cum-chapel overflowing for the ceremony and party that followed.

"They're a lovely family," Hosty said. "I'm having a whale of a time."

There are quiet and anxious times, too. Mrs. Hosty said nursing staff checks every resident on the hour during darkness.

"Mind you, there are times when you tear your heart when people get sick and are taken out," Hosty said.

Until that time the aim of he and his wife is to help enrich the lives of all the elderly who look to them as the heads of the Matson Lodge family.

Yule Seal Goal Set

The annual Christmas Seal campaign was launched Wednesday, setting a $700,000 goal for B.C. and $5½ million for Canada.

The campaign began witn the mailing of 160,000 Christmas Seal appeal letters to homes throughout the province and will be followed by another mailing of about 950,000 letters on Nov. 17 to every home.

The 1977 campaign raised $650,000 in B.C. for medical research and equipment to help combat respiratory diseases, including asthma, emphysema, chronic bronchitis and tuberculosis.

Free educational materials were provided to doctors and the public. The association's nurse educator spoke to 16,000 students throughout the province.

The free quit-smoking program is about to graduate its 5,000th non-smoker this year.

Lung disease takes an estimated $400 million annually from the Canadian economy for hospital treatments alone. Payments to doctors, the cost of drugs and other related expenses are estimated to add another $100 million.

Gloeckler Named

Victoria General Hospital's former director of planning and hospital services has been named the hospital's new assistant executive director.

Garth Gloeckler succeeds John Murray, who has taken early retirement for health reasons.

Executive director Jim Fair says Gloeckler's new position will involve some of his old duties as well as some of those carried out by Murray.

Murray was also the hospital's comptroller and Fair says the hospital's top administration will be realigned and a director of finance appointed in the future.

Gloeckler, 39, began his career in hospital service in 1962 as an assistant director of an extended care hospital in Calgary. He joined the staff of the Victoria General Hospital in 1974.

Appeal On Moore

The Crown will appeal the recent dimissal of charges against Courtenay Mayor William Moore. Date of the hearing has not yet been set.

He was acquitted of perjury but fined $1,000 and sentenced to three months in jail on the obstruction charge.

SUB LEAVES

The world's first fleet ballistic missile submarine left CFB Esquimalt dockyard today after a routine rest and recreation visit for her crew. The USS George Washington is a Polaris nuclear submarine which carries a complement of 12 officers and 128 men. She is commanded by Cmdr. Robert V. Morgan and her armament includes 16 Polaris A3 missile tubes.

"Remember when we were anxious for her to learn to talk?"

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, which was played in a duplicate game, nice defensive play by East-West enabled them to defeat South's part-score contract. Actually, even if the contract had been fulfilled, East-West would have obtained a good result on the deal, for virtually all of the other North-South pairs arrived at a makable game contract.

East-West vulnerable.
North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♢.

On West's opening lead of the king of diamonds, East played the discouraging deuce. At trick two West shifted to the eight of clubs. A low club was played from dummy and East captured the trick with his queen. To trick three East returned the nine of diamonds, West winning the trick with his ace.

West then played back his remaining club, East's ace taking the trick. East now made a third club lead, and no matter what declarer did, he could not prevent the defenders from making a trump trick. If he ruffed with the eight of hearts (as he actually did), West would overruff with the nine, as he did.

And if, instead, declared elected to ruff the third club lead with his king, in time, West's nine of hearts would be promoted into a winning trick. So, with the defenders taking the first five tricks, declarer suffered a one-trick set.

At most of the tables, the bidding by North-South was more vigorous than that presented above, with the most frequent contract being three notrump with North as declarer. Against this contract, even if East had guessed to lead a diamond, and West had returned a club, the defenders couldn't make more than two diamond tricks and two club tricks.

And, in those cases where East elected to make the more normal opening lead of the fourth-from-the-highest club, North made an extra trick at his three-notrump contract, thanks to the favorable location of the heart queen, and, hence, South's ability to bring home six heart tricks by picking up East's heart queen.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, November 3
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Moon position coincides now with a more active concern with the future, spiritual matters, education and travel. Aquarius, Taurus persons figure prominently — so does the number 4. You can "escape" your environment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Change in employment situation indicated. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Accent on basic abilities, recognition for talent in organization and cost-cutting. Member of opposite sex seeks counsel concerning relative in transit.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Spotlight on public relations, legal ties, marriage. Home life, domestic situation commands attention. Maintain low profile. You lose by attempting to force issues. You do best for yourself by listening, observing, preparing, taking notes. This is not time for direct confrontation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study Taurus, Gemini messages. You are able now to get what you need — through "quiet approach." Pisces is in picture. You plant seeds now for the future. See places, people as they are — not merely as you wish they might be.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Now you are in thick of things — you are off the sidelines and into the game. Capricorn figures prominently. Older individual, who has capital, is fascinated with your way of presentation. Know it — follow through.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Conclude transaction — reach beyond what appears to be a limitation. Aries, Libra figure in scenario. Stick with the established. Leave speculative ventures for another time. Stand tall for principles, get valid real estate appraisal. There is tax-saving loophole — if you will seek it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get to heart of matters with close neighbors or relatives. New ideas, versatility, emotional responses are featured. What seemed a defeat is transformed into an advantage. Your humor, resourcefulness play key roles. Someone returns an "important" favor.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Follow through on first impressions. Money picture is brighter than originally anticipated. What you possess has much value. Know it — don't give up something for nothing. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo persons are in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lunar cycle at peak — waste no time on self-doubt. Get going in swift, confident, precise manner. You will be surprised — in a most pleasant manner. Popularity increases. What had evaded you will be available. Know it and act accordingly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get to heart of matters. Check results of secret conference. Decisions made, in clandestine manner, could have direct effect on you. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons figure prominently. In matters of speculation, stick with number 4.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on sensuality, pleasure, relationship that becomes "intensified." Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. A promise is fulfilled. You could be in mood to celebrate. Okay, you have permission!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accept what seems an "arrogant order." You'll find that, indeed, what was said and done was truly for your own good. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons could be a part of scenario. Room is being made for you in a more "comfortable position."

IF NOVEMBER 3 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are bright, have lively sense of humor and find that Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles in you life. Plenty of social activity indicated this month, travel and reunions in December — you get feet on ground and feel more secure in 1979. You are popular, conscious of appearance — especially weight. You soon will receive an accolade from "interesting" individual.

Disappearances Taint Mexico's Image

By MARLISE SIMONS
Washington Post

MEXICO CITY — Since her two children disappeared three months ago, apparently following arrest, Alicia Valdes has been knocking on prison doors, waiting in police stations, pleading with guards at the Mexico City military camp. But she has found neither her daughter Rosalina, 21, nor her son Eduardo, 23.

Laborer Antonio Garcia has made the same rounds. His daughter Hortensia, 20, disappeared on June 7, after being picked up by police, according to an anonymous caller.

"What police? What prison? What cell? She must be somewhere," Garcia despairingly said to a human rights group last week. "God only help me if she's dead."

As reports of repression and police and army brutality in Mexico have increased over the last 20 months, the fate of these and another 373 people who have disappeared has provoked bitter criticism and started to taint Mexico's liberal image abroad.

Although the disappearance of political activists in other Latin American nations has been well-publicized, similar occurrences in Mexico have received little attention, perhaps because figures of international repute are rarely involved.

Recently, however, increasing repression here has led to a renewed interest in Mexico by international human rights organizations. Although Mexico has publicly welcomed President Carter's human rights campaign, U.S. officials for the first time raised the issue with the Mexican government earlier this year.

Mexico's authorities have traditionally used violence against opposition groups. But the hard-handed crackdowns, ranging from the use of the army to break strikes to reported kidnappings and torture by police, have provoked loud protests by human rights groups whose records show that 376 persons have "disappeared" in the last four years, many after arrests devoid of such niceties as formal charges, warrants and similar procedural protections.

This months, after a long campaign by action committees and opposition groups, the government responded by passing a new amnesty law.

In recent weeks, more than 30 of about 400 persons jailed on political charges have been freed. Several had been held without trial for five years. More persons will be released, the authorities say, "once the paperwork is done."

Before the new amnesty law was passed, officials insisted there were no political prisoners, also denying the frequently heard charges of torture and of "missing persons" held in clandestine jails or inaccessible military quarters.

Privately, however, one high government official recently conceded in an interview that he regarded the use of torture during interrogation as a "necessary evil."

A majority of the missing are either student or peasant activists or leftist guerrillas who are often picked up by the army or by the police's dreaded "White Brigade." This special anti-guerrilla unit was formed last year, by people drawn from Mexico's principal security police forces and the military police.

Although Mexico saw considerable urban and rural guerrilla activity in the early 1970s, most extremists have been grabbed by Mexico's efficient security apparatus and only two small groups are still sporadically active.

Therefore, defence lawyers say, many people arrested or missing are involved only in non-violent political work or are simply extremists' relatives who are held for questioning or moral pressure for indefinite periods.

Such disappearances staged by army or police may not be official policy, but the two-year-old government of President Jose Lopez Portillo on the whole has cracked down hard on the peasants' and workers' groups that were encouraged to organize during the government of his predecessor, Luis Echeverria.

This administration has sought to rebuild rightist confidence in the government, not only by adopting conservative economic policies but also by trying to suffocate unrest among peasants and the labor sectors that have been hit hardest by the current economic crisis.

The high inflation of the last few years has diminished the purchasing power of the poor dramatically, while unemployment stands officially at a record 51 per cent.

In Mexico City this summer, thugs — reportedly paid by the government — beat up people attending a union meeting at the General Hospital. When a general protest strike followed, more than 100 plainclothes police and soldiers raided the hospital, beat up and arrested nearly a hundred strikers and finally charged union leaders with theft.

These events illustrate the paradoxes of Mexican political life, so bewildering to outsiders.

While with one hand the government is tightening its control over dissenters, with the other it is making political concessions to bring the opposition into the political mainstream. The government this year legalized three new parties, one rightist and two leftist, including the Communist Party.

Plant Onions Now

GARDENING
jack beastall

One of the jobs listed for late September was the preparation of a small bed, about one foot square, for the sowing of onion seed in late October to early November.

This bed was to consist mainly of screened compost, built slightly higher than the surrounding soil to assure good drainage.

The quantity of seed will depend on the quantity of onions the family needs. It is sown quite thickly in the centre of the bed. There is a sound reason for this practice.

When the seedlings are lifted in spring for replanting into rows they should be no larger in diameter than an ordinary lead pencil. Those which have formed a small bulb will not produce a crop that can be stored.

An allowance in seed quantity is made for those seedlings on the perimeter of the sown area, which always form a small bulb because they have the room to spread.

These are not a loss. They are lifted with the other seedlings and planted fairly closely in a row for use as green onions during late spring before they make a flower stem.

A seedling onion having started to form a bulb receives a set-back when transplanted. This set-back has the same effect as planting an onion bulb which matured the previous year. Being a perennial plant, it immediately starts producing a flower head and seed.

The reason for sowing onion seed at this time of year is to get an early start next spring and have the crop ready to ripen during July.

Seed catalogues list about 20 varieties of onions ranging from extra early to early and late maturing kinds, and from one inch in diameter to five or six inches.

When the variety being grown has reached full size it should be ripened immediately, then lifted and allowed to thoroughly dry before being stored.

Should any water or fertilizer reach the roots after ripening has commenced, new growth will start. This causes the "bull-necked" bulbs, and the bulbs with bulges, which will not store for more than a couple of months.

In a small vegetable patch, it is difficult to place onions where watering can cease when the onions start to size up.

The onions must not be near other crops which are in full production and need constant watering, nor near a lawn which requires summer fertilizing and weekly watering to keep it green.

The top soil of the onion planting may be perfectly dry, but the underground moisture and the fertilizer salts can reach the roots of the onions and cause growth to continue.

Questions have been received recently from gardeners who expected this year's onion crop to store until spring, but have already lost fifty per cent or more to storage rot.

The reasons vary. In many cases, seed was sown too late in spring so that top size was not reached in the warmth of July.

Other reasons include: Water reaching the roots after sizing caused the bull necks which will not store; not harvesting at the correct time for the variety being grown; using seed of an early variety that is grown for use from July to September instead of a storage variety that will keep until spring.

A lot of gardeners planted sets which are supposed to increase in size during the season. Many of these go to seed. If the sets happen to be Sweet Spanish variety the crop must be used within two months after harvesting.

PINTO BLAMED FOR BLAST

WASHINGTON (AP) — A van driver who momentarily took his eyes off the road to look for cigarettes caused a fiery rear-end crash that killed three teen-age Indiana girls in a 1973 Ford Pinto car, a safety agency reported Wednesday.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said the explosion of the auto's fuel tank in the Aug. 10 collision was caused by the same problem that resulted in a U.S. recall of all 1971 to 1976 Pinto and Mercury Bobcat sedans.

Ford Motor Co. has been indicted by an Indiana grand jury in connection with the accident, which occurred on U.S. Highway 33 near Dunlop, Ind.

The agency said the driver of the Pinto was pulling off the road to check a gasoline odor when the auto was struck from behind by the van, traveling about 80 kilometres an hour.

The van driver "looked down for a package of cigarettes, and as he looked up he saw the Pinto just in front of him.

Agency investigators "cited this inattention as a definite cause of the accident, with the absence of roadway shoulders to allow off-road emergency stopping as a probable contributing cause," the report said.

A county grand jury in Elkhart, Ind., indicted Ford Motor Co. on three counts of reckless homicide and one count of criminal recklessness in connection with the accident, claiming Ford knew the Pinto fuel tank was unsafe and did nothing about it. Ford called the indictments unwarranted.

The agency report said engineers "conclude that while the crash was a severe one, it represents another example of a Pinto crash and fire" which resulted in the recall.

"The filler pipe was pulled out of the tank, and the fuel tank was penetrated by parts of the Pinto's understructure," the agency said. "These are considered typical of the Pinto fuel tank problem."

The U.S. dollar skyrocketed more than 4 per cent against the Japanese yen today in its biggest single gain in five years and opened dramatically higher across Europe today in response to President Carter's dollar-rescue plan.

Gold fell, opening $4.75 lower in London at $222.25 and $1.25 lower in Zurich at $219.25.

On Wall Street Wednesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rocketed 35.34 points — the largest one-day increase in history.

The market settled back today as investors began to have second thoughts about the dollar-strengthening package.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 9.53 to 818.26 at noon.

The dollar rose in Zurich, London, Frankfurt, Paris and Milan, but dealers cautioned that initial euphoria would wear off quickly and continued recovery depended on a follow-through by American economic policymakers to halt the greenback's steepest decline in post-Second World War history.

The U.S. currency began the day 5.56 per cent higher on the Tokyo exchange, opening at 188 yen — a stunning increase of 9.9 yen over Wednesday's closing price.

It climbed to 188.50 yen in chaotic trading before ending the day at 186, representing a 4 per cent jump. It was the dollar's biggest gain in a single day since 1973. Trading was a record $1.3 billion.

The Journal de Geneve, representing the Geneva banking community, in an article headlined, "The moment of truth for the dollar," said Carter "finally took the steps that everyone had been waiting for."

"This turn-around marks an end, hopefully, to the worst decline of the U.S. currency in post-war history," said a spokesman for the Swiss Bank Corp.

$297M Reserves Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Strengthening of the Canadian dollar during October left $297 million U.S. more in international reserves than one month earlier, the finance department said today.

This is the first time the department has reported a monthly increase in U.S. dollar holdings since May.

During recent months reserves of U.S. dollars have been falling as Bank of Canada traders intervened in international currency markets to support the dollar.

During September official reserves were depleted by $1.4 billion.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien welcomed Wednesday's dramatic increase in interest rates in the United States, saying the move will help stabilize the Canadian economy.

But Chretien refused to say whether he plans to match the 9.5 per cent U.S. Federal Reserve Board rate with an increase in the Bank of Canada lending rate.

Strikers Paper On Way

VANCOUVER (CP) — Many workers at the Province and Sun who went on strike Wednesday against Pacific Press Ltd., which produces both daily newspapers, were at work producing another newspaper six hours later.

The Express, written and edited by striking members of the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild, will appear Friday with an initial press run of 100,000 copies, the union said.

Managing editor Alex Young, a Province reporter for 11 years, said the thrice-weekly paper will sell for 25 cents at newsstands and at street corners.

The guild and the Vancouver Printing Pressmen's Union went on strike Wednesday after negotiators reached an impasse in discussions of a new collective agreement.

Four other unions in the joint council of newpaper unions were then locked out by the company.

Major issues in negotiations are a manning clause for printing pressmen, contracting out, manning for mailers, who bundle the papers, and proposed reductions in guild jurisdiction.

In a joint statement, Sun publisher Clark Davey and Province publisher Paddy Sherman said Wednesday that the issue of manning the presses involved restrictive labor practices, which they called featherbedding.

(Well=known Sun feature writer Moira Farrow echoed this sentiment when she commented on leaving the newsroom that she didn't see why the guild should be going out for the sake of a "bunch of feather-bedding pressmen").

The company wants to alter the unit manning clause which establishes the number of presses running. It has promised all persons now employed will retain their jobs and proposes to pay an average of $5,000 in cash to each pressman in return for giving up current practices.

"I don't forsee any meetings right away," pressmen's negotiator Gary Dunster said. "Economic issues haven't even been discussed—that will be the fun part."

The average daily circulation of the Province is 132,000 and the Sun's is 252,000. Some other newspapers said they would fill the void created by the strike.

A spokesman for New Westminster Columbian said the paper would not expand its distribution area but would have a slight increase in today's press run.

Victoria Times and Victoria Colonist will increase production to take up the slack in Vancouver Island areas usually serviced by the Province and the Sun, but the papers will not increase their distribution in Greater Vancouver.

TRAIN SWEPT INTO SKEENA

Mudslide, Floods Hit Terrace Area

Times News Services

TERRACE — Two communities east and north of here are being evacuated today in the wake of rampaging flood waters and a mudslide which also swept a train into the Skeena River and stranded motorists.

RCMP are evacuating people in the Lakelse area, 25 kilometres east of here, because of rising water levels and residents of Remo also are leaving their homes.

George Blakey, of the atmospheric environment service at the Terrace-Kitimat airport, said although the worst of the rain is over, water levels will continue to rise for at least 24 hours because of mountain run-off. The rain was tapering off early today.

Record rainfall overnight Wednesday, combined with melting snow, caused a run-off which severed most highway and telephone links in the area. Telephone service was out in most areas, although electrical power was not affected.

About 20 persons were stranded overnight between two bridges knocked out by flooding on Highway 16.

Two persons suffered minor injuries when they drove off a washed-out bridge. One had a neck injury and the other was cut on the forehead.

Rescue workers are also attempting to reach a Canadian National Railways car carrying two crew members which was swept into the Skeena River.

Highways minister Alex Fraser, who has been stranded here by the flooding, said he would ask the provincial government for disaster assistance for the area.

Fraser estimated damage to the highway system at about $5 million and said his ministry has "a mammoth task ahead" in replacing bridges.

The minister said he has ordered Bailey Bridges to be brought into the area as soon as possible in order that temporary facilities can be established.

The native village of Kitimaat, adjacent to the community of Kitimat, is completely isolated because the bridge which serves as its only approach has been washed out.

Chief Heber Maitland said most of the 20 homes in the village have about four feet of water in the basements.

The heavy rains have resulted in indefinite closures to Highway 16 from Hazelton to Terrace; Highway 16 from Terrace to Prince Rupert; Highway 37 from Kitwanga to Meziiaden and Highway 35 from Terrace to Kitimat.

Teenage Pipebomb Factory Smashed

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Saanich police have broken up a pipebomb factory run by juveniles.

Officers have seized seven of the crude but highly dangerous bombs and are hunting for others.

Four boys aged 12 to 16 are being questioned about the bombs but no charges have been laid as yet.

The bombs were made out of three to four-inch lengths of half-inch copper tubing filled with about an ounce of gunpowder and crimped at one end with a crude fuse or piece of string attached.

One Saanich policeman said it's a miracle no one has been maimed or killed.

"It's surprising considering the methods they used they all still have two hands," he said.

"They took very few precautions and obviously they were not aware of the danger to themselves and public. To them it was just a prank."

Police appealed to anyone finding one of the bombs to turn them in.

"These things are extremely dangerous," the spokesman said. "A person can lose a hand, arm — even his life — if he uses them in the wrong way."

A Saanich police spokesman said the bombs were put together in a shed at the rear of an unidentified Saanich property.

The owners of the shed were unaware of the operation which the juveniles apparently set up last Saturday to make Halloween bombs.

Still not known is where the boys got the supplies but a police spokesman said the gunpowder — as much as 20 pounds — may have been stolen from a home.

Also unnown is how many bombs were made. One group of boys told officers they had made 11 bombs in one hour.

Police with search warrants recovered seven bombs from two homes on Wednesday and several other residences have yet to be searched.

At least seven bombs exploded on Halloween including three in mail boxes and one in the wire grate on the door of a store at Durrance and West Saanich Road.

Director Given Blame

A report by Vancouver consultant Gordon Newhouse says the city of Victoria's personnel department functioned inefficiently under former personnel director Terry FitzPatrick.

FitzPatrick, a 31-year veteran with the city, was fired recently.

Council did not have Newhouse's report at the time of the dismissal but it is understood the consultant had briefed Mayor Mike Young about the matter.

In his written report to council, received by aldermen Wednesday, Newhouse said the personnel department has been functioning at about only 35 per cent of the required level for the last three years.

He said the rating would appear to be a direct reflection of the philosophy, approach and level of expertise of the personnel director in terms of both general and personnel administration.

Shortly before FitzPatrick was fired Newhouse also spoke to the mayor about a long-standing practice in the personnel department of allowing access to confidential files by the company that publishes B.C. city directories.

Newhouse became aware of the policy when he was studying the personnel department and was highly critical of the practice.

Newhouse recommended the clerical staff in the department be reduced and a new personnel director and a personnel officer be hired.

He also said the newly structured personnel department should play a greater role in labor-management relations and establish a working relationship with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association.

Youth Dies In Flaming Sports Car

Kevin Lee Skailes, of 1617 Amphion, was a passenger in the car driven by Wayne Anthony Roos, 18, of 88 Wellington.

A Victoria police spokesman said Skailes was trapped inside the burning car which ended up wedged against a fence and utility pole guy wire which preventing him from opening the door.

The heat was so intense there was no chance of anyone rescuing the youth.

The accident occurred at 3:18 p.m.

Police said the 1967 model car was travelling north on Rockland when Roos lost control on a downhill bend.

Police mechanics were examining the charred wreckage today to determine why the car burst into flames.

An inquest is expected to be held but no date has been set.

Zambia Raid By Rhodesia

SALISBURY (AP) — Rhodesian planes bombed a black guerrilla position in Zambia today, the military command announced, and unofficial reports from Zambia said casualties were heavy.

It was the first cross-border strike into Zambia by Rhodesian forces since airborne troops raided a dozen camps of the Zimbabwe African People's Union on Oct. 19 and killed a reported 1,500 guerrillas.

The South African Press Association reported from the Zambian capital, Lusaka, that the Rhodesian jets pounded a ZAPU guerrilla training camp just outside Lusaka. It said the camp housed 3,000 youths and clouds of smoke were pouring from it.

Unofficial reports said casualties were heavy, according to the SAPA dispatch.

ZAPU sources in Lusaka contended that the facility, called Victory, was a camp for black Rhodesian refugee children and housed more than 14,000 youths.

The Rhodesian military communique said that "as a result of information obtained from captured terrorists an air strike was carried out against a newly identified terrorist target in Zambia."

"The attack was carefully planned to ensure that a minimum threat was posed to Zambian life or property and was carried out with pinpoint accuracy," the communique said.

About an hour before news of the raid was flashed on Salisbury radio, three Hawker-Hunter jet fighters screamed over the Rhodesian capital.

In the raids two weeks ago, one of the camps attacked by the Rhodesians was described as military headquarters of ZAPU chief Joshua Nkomo. At the same time, Rhodesian troops swept into Mozambique to strike bases of Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union.

After the previous raids into Zambia, Britain airlifted a variety of anti-aricraft equipment to the Zambian government with the proviso that it not be given to the guerrillas.

UNITED WAY EXTENDS DRIVE

The United Way campaign is being extended to counteract the effects of the recent postal strike.

As of today, $630,000 or 68 per cent of the campaign's $926,000 goal has been reached.

The campaign was to have closed Oct. 31 but officials have decided to keep it going for several more weeks in a bid to make up any shortfall caused by the postal strike.

Broke VSO Could Fold This Week

Before the week is out the 37-year-old Victoria Symphony Orchestra could be out of business.

It could be as sudden and complete as that.

The Victoria Symphony Society board of directors meets tonight to discuss its $160,000 deficit, approximately $14,000 in unpaid taxes for which Revenue Canada is pressing, and an orchestra payroll of about $35,000 for the past two weeks due this week.

According to sources close to the situation, the society is flat broke with all available funds gone, including subscriptions for the balance of this season's concerts, and unable to raise money from any source.

At tonight's meeting, a confidential report on the society's situation prepared by Vancouver Symphony manager Michael Allerton will be presented at an in-camera session.

It has also been reported, though not confirmed, that symphony manager Jean Hunter, who has held the office for less than a year, will tender her resignation.

The board must also face the possibility that more than $100,000 in expected grants from the Canada Council and the B.C. Cultural Fund could be cancelled because of the VSO's precarious financial situation.

Symphony president Dorothy Frost has denied a report given out by a symphony employee last week that the financial firm of Richardson and Sons, with which she is employed, had offered temporary financing.

A securities analyst with the firm, she said, "There was no truth in it at all . . . I don't know how it came about. I don't carry that kind of influence with the firm."

Among rescue operations that have been scouted are proposals to suspend the board and install a business administrator, but this has met with negative response.

Frost, who was elected president at the last meeting of the board refused to comment on the situation until after tonight's meeting, but says the mood of the meeting will not be unrelieved doom and gloom.

"There are a number of proposals to be considered and some really exciting ideas to be discussed," she says, refuting the pessimism expressed by a number of people close to the operation.

As an ironic footnote, Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night agreed to consider sponsoring a concert.

The motion by secretary Larry Ryan passed but not before Telecommunications Workers Union delegate Dick Belfit said council shouldn't be "fiddling around with the cultural advancement of the community" at a time when there were economic wars to be fought.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Prices moved moderately lower in active mid-session trading today on the Toronto stock market.

Horne and Pitfield Foods Ltd. fell ⅞ to $13⅝ on the sale of 400 shares, while M. Loeb was unchanged at $7½ on 900 shares following their opening resumptions. Horne and Pitfield has announced shareholder-approval of its amalgamation with a wholly-owned subsidiary of Loeb and the company's continuance under the Canada Business Corporations Act.

Conduits-Amherst Ltd. gained 40 cents to $4 on 1,200 shares following a brief trading halt for news the company will pay a special 46-cent dividend.

Inco A dropped ⅞ to $19¾.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled back today as investors began to have second thoughts about the dollar-strengthening package which pushed the market to its best single-day rise ever Wednesday.

Pan Am led the most-active list, falling ¼ to $7½. A 130,700-share block traded at $7¾.

Stocks which scored hefty gains Wednesday were among the biggest losers; IBM fell 7 to $269⅛ and Boeing dropped 2⅛ to $62. IBM said 1978 profits wouldn't increase quite as much as they did last year.

Other losers of a point or more included Polaroid, off 1¾ to $47½; Eastman Kodak, down 1⅝ to $59⅜; Alcoa, off 1⅜ to $45½; General Motors, off 1 to $61.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Industrials and papers were higher and utilities and banks declined in moderate activity on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Northern Telecom was up $1⅛ at $32¼, IU International ⅛ at $13⅜ and CP Ltd. ⅛ at $22⅞. Bell Canada was off ⅛ at $61, Inco A ½ at $20⅛ and Baton Broadcasting ⅜ at $12⅝. Among speculative issues, Stanford Mines A was unchanged at 62 cents with 16,000 shares traded.

London

LONDON (CP) — Concern over union wage claims in excess of government pay guidelines sent the London stock market sharply lower near the close of moderate trading. The Financial Times index was down 7.1 to 472.1 an hour before the close. Leading industrials declined after an early rally, while oil issued eased.

CP AIR OPTS TO LEASE DC-10 PAIR

VANCOUVER (CP) — A review of future financial projections has influenced CP Air to postpone the planned 1979 introduction of DC-10 aircraft to its fleet, the company says.

Two wide-body DC-10s that were to be delivered in March and June, 1979, now will be leased to other airlines. Two additional DC-10s remain on order for delivery in 1980 and 1981.

A threatened strike of the airline's pilots this month further complicated the financial outlook as passenger loads on both domestic and international routes declined rapidly after the strike threat was made public, the company said in a press release.
